PRESIDENT ACTS TO HALT CROP LOANS BY 1935

Approves 40 Million for This Year.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Another governmental scheme to lift the American farmer from despair was confessed a failure today as President Roosevelt marked for the ash heap the granting of crop loans to farmers.

The President announced, however, that he would "taper" off the expenditure for this purpose, and approved a bill providing 40 million dollars for loans in 1934. He declared that this should be the last such appropriation to be made by the government.

The President's "tapering" off was marked as quite generous, in view of his language declaring the scheme a failure.

Issues Formal Statement.

The President's statement was as follows:

"In approving the bill providing $40,000,000 for emergency crop production loans for 1934 I do so on the theory that it is proper to taper off the crop loan system rather than to cut it off abruptly. A useful purpose will be served by aiding certain farmers who cannot yet qualify for crop production loans from the newly established production credit associations. However, where farmers have security to offer this year they should be required to obtain their loans from the associations which have been established to give farmers a permanent source of production credit.

"Unfortunately, previous crop loans show a large loss to the government. In prior years administrative costs exceeded the interest collected.

"The amount appropriated this year is far below the appropriations of previous years. This 1934 loan by the government should be considered as the tapering off loan and should be the last of its kind."

First Loans in 1921.

The first "seed" loans were granted to farmers in 1921, and were then restricted to distressed areas suffering from drouth or floods. The yearly totals were small, never amounting to more than $6,000,000.

But in 1931 the loaning principle was broadened to include almost any farm borrower, and the heavy lending continued during 1932 and 1933. Officials at the Farm Credit administration said an aggregate of about 180 millions has been loaned out, and that "somewhere around" 60 to 75 per cent, probably 70 per cent, had been paid.

At the 70 per cent estimate a loss to the government of 54 million dollars is indicated.

Mr. Roosevelt characterized this as bad business. The interest rate charged farmers was 5½ per cent.

CUT OFF EASY MONEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The brakes were put on easy money flowing from both the civil works and public works funds today.

Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator of relief and civil works tonight was preparing to order tomorrow the second wave of demobilization of CWA which is expected to cut another 300,000 persons off the federal pay roll within the coming week. The Illinois CWA is expected to drop 25,000 or more.

Meanwhile, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes was announcing that the few dollars remaining from the huge 3 billion 300 million dollars public works fund would be given only to public bodies and interstate railroads.

Secretary Ickes also ordered that no project built with easy money be named for any living persons, an order which may blot out the name of "Roosevelt Terrace," a 3 million dollar PWA housing project in San Francisco.

Chase Illinois Chief.

Beside putting the brakes on CWA expenditures again, Mr. Hopkins announced the appointment of Frank B. Chase, civil works engineer for Illinois, as head of the state CWA. Mr. Chase succeeds Robert Dunham, state relief director, who resigned from CWA when Hopkins curtailed his power by placing Cook county CWA under Col. Daniel Sultan.

Together with the 300,000 workers which Hopkins is expected to order off the CWA rolls during the coming week, the total dropped from CWA

Gang Terror Stirs Wrath of Mae West

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Mae West "called the hand" of the gangsters who prey on Hollywood today.

It was the first time the platinum blonde talked out of court about the gang that took her $17,000 in diamonds and $3,000 in currency.

She had just been told that Harry Voller, charged with being the instigator of the robbery of Sept. 18, 1932, when Mae was held up on the street here, was released on bond at Miami, Fla.

"It's time some one in Hollywood—speaking very frankly—showed what is known as intestinal fortitude," she said.

Two husky investigators of the district attorney's office, who have been guarding her constantly, nodded their heads.

"They threaten us in the picture colony under penalty of having acid thrown in our face," she continued.

"And they don't stop at acid threats, either.

"They threaten to kill.

Time to "Call Hand."

"It is time some one called their hand."

Her slow, throaty tones were accentuated by a wave of her hand, as she continued.

"And if it has to be me, I'll do it."

Then she told about going to court in the recent case, in which she testified against Edward Friedma, charged with the actual robbery. He was convicted and fainted when the jury returned the verdict, at which Mae commented: "He can dish it out, but he can't take it."

"I felt that somebody should put a stop to the foothold that thieves and racketeers were attempting to gain in Hollywood," she declared.

"The Los Angeles district attorney's office and the police department are efficient. They have kept Hollywood as clean as possible of crooks. But their work is in vain if those on whom the gangsters prey do not do their part and go to court on the side of the law."

She paused and tapped her toes on the floor.

Recalls Days in Court.

"Don't think it was any pleasure session—those days in court testifying against what investigators told me was a 'mob' that would stop at nothing.

"But I'll do it again when the law calls."

The officers guarding her are Jack Criss, chief of the district attorney's gangster detail, and J. C. Southard, investigator and pistol expert.

In addition, James Timony, former athlete and New York baseball player, her manager, is with her every time she leaves her home, and her chauffeur is a former boxer.

Meanwhile two Los Angeles officers were en route to Florida in an effort to return Voller here for trial. District Attorney Buron Fitts expressed fear that Voller's release on bond "will prevent the Los Angeles authorities from bringing him back."

Voller, before the robbery, posed as a friend of Miss West and was in her car with her at the time of the robbery. The district attorney charges he engineered the holdup.

PLANE WITH 8 ABOARD IS LOST IN A BLIZZARD

Rock Springs, Wyo., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Lost in a mountain blizzard, a United Air Lines plane with eight persons aboard was believed down somewhere west of here tonight.

A Japanese section foreman at Emery, Utah, reported the plane passed over his shack at 3 p. m. today with the pilot calling for directions by wireless.

The foreman, who has a short wave set, told the airport here he ran from his house and shouted at the plane, which was barely skimming the ground, that it was over Emery. A blinding blizzard enveloped the ship at once, he said.

The ship left Salt Lake City at 2 p. m. for Cheyenne.

Burglar Slain, Pal Shot; Slug a Policeman

One burglar was shot and killed, another was wounded, and Policeman Joseph Shayne of the Woodlawn station was seriously beaten in a desperate battle on the second floor of the building at 401 East 61st street early today. Maurice Weiss, young printer living at 407 East 61st street, was a hero in the encounter.

The burglars broke into the building shortly after 1 o'clock by climbing to the one story roof and then entering a window in a two story section of the building. They forced their way into a vacant office and commenced to drill a hole in the floor just above the Service Drug store, which they evidently intended to loot.

Dog Sounds the Alarm.

Their noise awakened a dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Polowich, janitors of the building, and the animal's barks aroused the Polowiches. They called police and summoned Weiss next door. Policemen Shayne, Ralph O'Dell, and Daniel Leahy responded. O'Dell went to the front of the building. Leahy stayed in the police car, a regulation. Shayne and Weiss then climbed the one story roof of the building in the rear.

Leaving Weiss armed and on guard on the roof, Policeman Shayne climbed through the second story window and interrupted the burglars at work. The room was dark. He ordered the men to surrender, but one of them struck him on the head with a crowbar. Shayne grappled with him. The other man attempted to jump out the window. As he half emerged through the window Weiss fired two shots at him and he fell dead upon the roof.

Policeman Shoots Burglar.

Meanwhile Shayne and the second man struggled desperately. The fight ended when Shayne fired one shot into his adversary's body at close quarters. When O'Dell and Leahy reached the room they found the slugged policeman and the wounded burglar lying unconscious side by side.

Shayne was taken to the Woodlawn hospital. He will recover. The wounded man, taken to the Bridewell hospital, identified himself as James Moran, 26 years old, 6456 Ingleside avenue. The slain burglar was Herbert "Left" Paul, 27, of 6450 Ingleside avenue.

Hyde Park Group Asks Mayor to Keep Area Dry

Mayor Kelly was petitioned yesterday by the Hyde Park Chamber of Commerce to preserve as dry territory that part of Hyde Park that has been prohibited territory since the annexation of the village to Chicago in 1889, and also the territory lying between 54th place and 56th street, east of the Illinois Central railroad.

DEFENSE RAISES SUICIDE HINT IN RHETA'S DEATH

Question Father of Slain Girl.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Suicide—heretofore only hinted as a vaguely possible explanation of Rheta Wynekoop's strange death—was broached openly as a first line of defense yesterday at the second trial of her mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who is charged with her murder.

Rheta's father, Burdine H. Gardner, Indianapolis seed dealer, was on the stand when Dr. Wynekoop's lawyers made their first bold bid to lay before the jury their theory that Rheta, in a supposed insane spite against her Wynekoop "in-laws," had arranged to chloroform and shoot herself on the doctor's operating table—all to embarrass her mother-in-law.

Hits Prowler Theory.

A reserve defense theory—that some prowler had entered the Wynekoop home, used the anesthetic and pistol with fatal effects to Rheta, then covered her body with a blanket before stealing away—was apparently knocked awry by an earlier state's witness. Policeman Walter Kelly, member of the first squad to reach the death scene on the night of Nov. 21, testified that he had tested all doors and windows upon Dr. Wynekoop's suggestion that the killing was the work of a marauder and had found them all securely locked.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty in direct examination of Mr. Gardner had developed a suggestion that Dr. Wynekoop was, in fact, plotting Rheta's death with slow poison some five months before she procured $12,000 insurance on Rheta's life and six months before the week of Nov. 20, when her philandering son, Earle, who was Rheta's husband, went out of town.

Recalls Letter from Doctor.

The suggestion of death by poison was conveyed through the father's recollection of a letter he had received from the doctor last Feb. 28, telling him that she, the doctor, "loved Rheta like one of my own flesh and blood, but the girl is seriously ill and you ought to know it."

Q.—When did you last see your daughter alive? A.—About September, 1932. She came to Indianapolis for the only visit she paid us since she had married Earle in August, 1929.

Q.—Did you correspond with her? A.—With her or with the doctor? We had regular letters from Rheta—only one from the doctor.

Told of "Rheta's Illness."

Q.—Well, tell us about the letter from the doctor? A.—We got this letter about the last of February, 1933. The doctor said she loved Rheta like her own flesh and blood—her own daughter. She said Earle and Rheta were very happy, but Rheta was ill and she thought I ought to know it.

The witness, a slight, middle aged man in a blue serge suit, betrayed a tremor in his soft voice at his recollection of Rheta's marital "happiness." The sun, glinting on his gold rimmed spectacles, hid the moisture in his eyes from the jury.

Q.—What did you do when you received the letter? A.—I was alarmed. I telephoned next day to Chicago and said I would come right up. The doctor said it wasn't necessary. Rheta was all right, she said.

"Who was it finally notified you when Rheta died?" the prosecutor concluded.

"A reporter from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE," the witness answered quietly.

Quizzed by Defense Lawyer.

In preliminary cross-examination, Defense Attorney Milton Smith established that Rheta's mother had died when Rheta was a child and that Mr. Gardner had married again.

"Then the second Mrs. Gardner, your present wife, was not Rheta's mother, but her stepmother?" Mr. Smith emphasized.

The witness assented with a nod. During his direct examination Dr. Wynekoop lounged deep in her chair, her feet propped up on the rung of Mr. Smith's chair and her pallid face in her bony left hand. On the cross-examination she sat erect and interested.

"Where did Rheta's own mother die," Mr. Smith pursued, approaching the ground on which he proposed to show hereditary insanity on the maternal side of Rheta's family. Mr. Gardner recalled that the first Mrs.

Plane Drops in Sea; Army Pilot Killed

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Lieut. George F. McDermott of Mitchel field, assigned to the army air mail service, lost his life today off Rockaway Point.

McDermott, with two other pilots, was on his way by plane from Floyd Bennett field to Langley field to pick up mail planes. His companions, Lieut. J. H. Rothrock, who was flying the plane, and Lieut. W. S. Pockock Jr., were picked up by the navy destroyer Bernandou about five miles off Rockaway Point after their amphibion had drifted for nearly five hours in spite of attempts by sea and air to save the plane and rescue the men.

The plane was still being battered late tonight by high waves, while coast guard destroyers and cutters continued the search for McDermott.

McDermott's death brings the record to five army pilots killed in connection with mail duties and preparations.

Bails Out, Breaks Leg.

Fremont, O., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Army Air Mail Pilot Norman Burnett suffered a broken leg today when he bailed out of his ship seven miles north of here. He did not have a load of mail with him at the time. Burnett was flying from Cleveland to Chicago. Burnett said he encountered a blizzard, lost his bearings, and decided to take to his chute.

Accident Delays Mail.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 23.—(AP)—An army mail plane was damaged today in landing here from Louisville. The pilot, Lieut. C. D. Manhart, was not injured. In another plane rushed here from Louisville he proceeded to Cleveland an hour late.

Pilots Lose Way, Land.

Everett, Pa., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Two army aviators, en route from Middletown to Pittsburgh for reserve duty, were forced to land at the Everett Municipal airport early tonight after they lost their way.

The wind tossed one of the ships against a fence, damaging it considerably.

The pilots, Lieut. Paul Shanahan and Corp. Daniel Moler, had left Middletown separately.

Hits Fence; Injured.

Albion, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Otto Hoskins, 27 years old, of Battle Creek, was seriously injured near here tonight in a forced landing. His Waco plane struck a stone fence. Hoskins, a licensed pilot, was flying from Battle Creek to Jackson, where he is employed by the Foraker-Decker Flying service.

"Army Was Unprepared."

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A task almost impossible is faced by the army in carrying the mails, according to Maj. C. L. Tinker, commanding officer of the Seventeenth Pursuit group, the unit flying the Oakland-San Francisco-Salt Lake City leg of the army air mail service.

"It was next to impossible," he said, "in the short length of time between receipt of the executive order to fly the mail and the initiation of army flyers into the work to make any preparation for it.

"Commercial air pilots have from a year to a year and a half special training over the routes which they are to take before they are allowed to go alone. They become thoroughly familiar with the terrain and weather conditions in the territory they have to fly over."

NEED MORE PILOTS HERE.

Lieut. Col. Horace M. Hickam, commander of the central zone of the army air mail service, said yesterday that he needed more pilots and planes to adequately handle the air mail service, and that funds which will provide the additional pilots and planes are expected to be provided through an emergency appropriation now pending in congress. Col. Hickam has a picked list of twenty commercial pilots holding reserve corps commissions whom he plans to place o active duty as soon as the appropriation becomes a law.

700 TRUE BILLS KNOCKED OUT BY HIGH COURT

Chaos Threatened in Chicago Trials.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

In a decision made public yesterday, the Illinois Supreme court declared illegal the Cook county grand jury system which has been in use since Chicago became a metropolis. The effect of the ruling was to plunge the crime fighting agencies of the county into the most serious situation in their history.

The ruling cast doubt on the legality of 700 pending indictments against 1,000 defendants and the authorities feared it would result in the liberation of a number of criminals. They estimated it would cost the taxpayers upwards of $1,000,000 for retrials and reindictments.

Affects Touhy Case.

The first case to come under the new ruling will be that of Roger Touhy, Albert Kator, and Gus Schaefer, who were found guilty early yesterday of the kidnaping of John Factor. The jury fixed their punishment at 99 years in the penitentiary. Attorney William Scott Stewart, who represented the gangsters, announced last night he would take advantage of the point and move for a new trial. His plea will be made in Judge Michael Feinberg's court this morning when the Touhy gangsters are scheduled to appear for sentencing.

Attorney Stewart was elated when apprised of the new decision and predicted it would be the lever by which he would force a new trial for his clients, and perhaps bring about their liberation if Factor is forced to return to England to face swindling charges there. Factor's stay against extradition expires on March 8.

"Naturally this gives us one more arrow in our quiver," said Stewart in commenting on the ruling. "It seems that right and justice will prevail after all," he added with a chuckle.

Courts Are Upset.

The decision, which caused great confusion in the Criminal courts and brought the judges together in a hurried meeting to decide how to meet the situation, came in a minor robbery case which had been appealed to the Supreme court as a test case. The opinion, written by Justice Warren H. Orr, a Democrat from Carthage, held that the method of choosing the grand jury in Cook county is illegal and that any person charged with crime who takes proper advantage of this technicality move have the indictment quashed.

Perceiving the widespread effect of the ruling, State's Attorney Courtney announced he would move for a rehearing and ask the Supreme court as a matter of public policy to reverse itself. The court was divided, 5 to 2, in handing down the decision. Dissenting opinions were given by the two Republican justices, Frederic R. De Young and Clyde E. Stone. Both held that the Cook county grand juries were legal.

Another Remedy Sought.

Meanwhile, a remedy was sought in another direction. Attorney Lewis F. Jacobsen announced that the state assembly would be asked to validate all present convictions and indictments. Jacobsen, who is counsel for the creditors in the Insull case, sent telegrams to city and county officials and bar association members suggesting a meeting be called to discuss the decision.

The court's ruling was in the case of Jack Lieber, 26 years old, who was convicted before Judge D. J. Normoyle of robbing George Wick, a salesman for the Rome Automobile Sales company, 4107 Milwaukee avenue. Lieber is serving a one year to life sentence in the penitentiary.

The question of the legality of the grand jury system had first been raised in 1929 by Attorneys Bernhart Frank, an appeal expert, and Attorney John L. McInerney, representing the late Timothy Crowe and the other sanitary district trustees and employes, who were indicted for conspiracy. The appeal is still pending in the Appellate court, and no decision had been made on the grand jury point until yesterday.

Selects Lieber Case.

In order to press the matter Attorney Frank selected the Lieber case to make a test of the question and raised the point in such a manner that the reviewing court was forced to rule on the grand jury issue alone.

In his appeal brief the attorney related that the Illinois statutes provide that "twenty-three veniremen shall be called for grand jury service." He charged that the grand jury which indicted Lieber had been illegally constituted because the sheriff had summoned sixty persons instead of twenty-three for grand jury service.

The court records, incorporated in the briefs, disclosed that of this number fifty-six persons responded. All save twenty-five were dismissed. The names of these were then placed in a box and the first twenty-three drawn were sworn as the jurymen. The lawyer argued that a strict interpretation of the statutes was essential and that under such an interpretation the calling of more than twenty-three grand jurymen was illegal.

System for Years.

This system of choosing a grand jury has been followed in Chicago since it became a city. The reason for this, it was pointed out by Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court, is obvious. Persons called for service may have died, moved from the address in the possession of the jury commissioners, left the city, or perhaps be too ill to respond to the subpena. The extra men are called so as to assure the required twenty-three men being on hand when the jury is impaneled.

Cook county has a special jury law, which does not apply to the other counties of the state. The reason, as explained by legislators, is that Cook county with Chicago as the seat of government is confronted with a situation unlike the small rural communities where the sheriff knows the residents of his county.

The Supreme court, however, holds these methods to be illegal.

Calls Indictment Illegal.

"The record in this case shows," yesterday's decision read, "that the plaintiff [Lieber] has been tried and convicted under an illegal indictment. This court has held that the statutory method of securing a grand jury is mandatory. No mandatory provision of the statute can be waived on the ground of expediency. The argument that a larger number of grand jurors are required in Cook county by reason of the dense population and practical difficulties there existing, is not borne out by the record in this case.

"Here there were sixty persons drawn and of this number only one was dead and three not found. On this showing, if only the required number of twenty-three persons had been summoned instead of sixty, it is certain that at least nineteen would have been secured, or three more than the minimum requirement of sixteen to constitute a grand jury."

In the past the Criminal court chief justices have held that it is necessary to have 23 jurors on hand in order to swear in a grand jury. They have construed the statute to mean that sixteen constitutes a quorum of the jury and that eleven votes are necessary for an indictment. The Supreme court decision apparently holds, lawyers say, that a jury can be impaneled with only sixteen jurors.

Provides Simple Methods.

"Regardless of the number of jurors found or excused in any given case," the decision continues, "the law provides a quick and simple method of filling out the panel. Since the number of grand jurors summoned and the manner of their selection for service were both illegal, the grand jury which indicted plaintiff in error in this case was not legally constituted. As this question was appropriately raised in the trial court the motion to quash the indictment should have been sustained."

This paragraph of the decision Attorney Frank and other lawyers construe to mean that the defendants already tried or indicted have not been placed in legal jeopardy. They are in the position of never having been tried or indicted.

Lieber's case was not remanded to the Criminal court for a new trial. The theory is that never having been legally indicted the reviewing court could not send the case back to the Criminal court because nothing is of record against him. Although Lieber will be liberated from the penitentiary under the decision, it is said he can again be indicted by a legal grand jury and brought to trial.

May Free Other Defendants.

If this theory is true, lawyers point out, the doors of the county jail may be opened to release other defendants who are not already convicted. These defendants could petition for writs of habeas corpus on the ground that they are being illegally detained on worthless indictments and, therefore, are entitled to their discharge. This situation would also apply to those under conviction, but not yet in the penitentiary, several lawyers held.

Some of the Criminal court judges, however, said that as a matter of public policy the courts could refuse to issue such writs thus forcing each defendant to appeal to the Supreme court. The defendants would be held in jail pending the appeal which would give the Chicago authorities an opportunity to re-indict them. It was also pointed out that a Supreme court decision is not final until the time for filing a rehearing petition has passed, which will not be until the April term of court.

Judge Walter P. Steffen apprised of the decision conferred with Chief Justice Finnegan. They arranged for a meeting of the judges Monday morning to formulate a uniform system of handling the flood of motions and writs expected to be filed by defense attorneys. In the meantime official copies of the decision were ordered rushed by air mail to the Cook county judges and prosecutors.

Judges Are Upset.

When the word of the Supreme court decision spread throughout the Criminal Court building yesterday it caused consternation among the judges and prosecutors, but elation among the defense lawyers. Judges hurried from the bench to confer with prosecutors and defense attorneys gathered in groups in the corridors discussing the possibility of a wholesale reversal of important cases.

Gathered outside of Judge Finnegan's court were the defendants in the racket trial listening to laughter of the battery of high priced lawyers, who are defending them. In this case and in the Wynekoop murder case where the grand jury question was squarely raised, the prosecution is in the peculiar position of having to win the cases in order to have the right to re-indict and retry the defendants.

The trial cannot be stopped by the state which would then be in the position of having placed the defendants in jeopardy according to some legal lights. Others contend that under the Supreme court ruling no legal indictment was returned at all, therefore no jeopardy could be claimed even if the trials were halted. State's Attorney Courtney, however, said he would not allow any trial to be stopped.

Affects Other Cases.

Other important criminal cases in which the grand jury question was raised are the Bain bank case, the Ernest J. Stevens embezzlement conviction, the Frank Souder and Gale Swolley kidnaping cases, and the indictment on which four officials of the Security Life Insurance company were convicted of conspiracy. These cases are pending on appeal in the Supreme court. The point was also raised in some unimportant cases, but as a general rule in the ordinary run of criminal cases, it was not made.

In some of the older cases, such as the sanitary district graft trial, the state would be unable to retry the defendants because of the statute of limitations, it was said. With no indictment pending the statute would be in operation and would long since have outlawed the charges. This would also be true in the Bain and Stevens cases, it is said.

Attorney Frank said the point of illegal grand jury is highly technical and calls for special procedure in presenting it. The state's hope, he said, is that some defense attorneys did not raise the question properly.

The cost to the taxpayers as a result of the decision could only be estimated by officials. The Touhy case alone cost $35,000 to prosecute. If witnesses in every pending case have to be called back before a new grand jury or grand juries for new indictments this expense will alone reach a large sum. It will also cause chaos in another quarter. At present the grand jury barely keeps up with current business and could hardly hear hundreds of old cases.

Three Chicago Slayers Must Die April 20, Court Rules

Three killers must die in the electric chair in the county jail on April 20, the state Supreme court ruled yesterday. Each had appealed from the death verdicts of Criminal court juries to the high court, claiming errors had occurred in their trials, but the Supreme court judges found that all had been given fair trials.

John Scheck, 32 years old, who tried to shoot his way out of the courtroom of Judge Charles Molthrop last Aug. 1, and killed Policeman John Sevick in a gun battle, was the first prisoner at the jail notified of the bad news.

"Well, if you've got to go, you've got to go," he remarked. His voice hardened as he discussed his case, declaring that he would not hesitate to kill again if faced with the same situation in a courtroom.

Scheck Isn't Sorry.

"I suppose the state must have its revenge because I killed a cop," Scheck said. "I only killed him because he would have killed me if I hadn't. I don't think a cop has a right to kill anyone. I saw Sevick pointing his gun at me, and I knew it was him or me. I'm not sorry."

The second to be told that he has less than two months to live was George Dale, 28 years old, sweetheart of Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, known as the "blonde tigress." Dale was sentenced to death and Mrs. Jarman to serve 199 years. She is now serving the term at the woman's penitentiary at Dwight.

The two were found guilty of the murder of Gustave Hoeh, 71 years old, a storekeeper, during a holdup last Aug. 4. Dale fired the shot which killed the aged man.

Dale appeared frightened when he heard of the Supreme court decision. "I was framed," he asserted. "I was pushed along too fast—railroaded. Everybody who's in wrong is getting it these days. If it's got to be, I suppose it must."

Slays Milk Wagon Driver.

Joseph Francis, 35 years old, a Negro, was the third man whose plea was turned down by the high court. He was sentenced to death for killing Joseph Hartell, 3425 North Irving avenue, a milk wagon driver, during a holdup last Aug. 6.

Francis also declared that he had been framed. He admitted shooting the driver on the witness stand but said it had been an accident.

"I'm poor and I've got no friends," he wailed. "That's why they're sending me to the chair."

The three murders all took place in the first week of August and all three killers will die on the same night.

STATE WILL DELAY KIDNAPING TRIAL OF BASIL BANGHART

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley last night announced that he would not request an immediate trial for Basil [the Owl] Banghart, Touhy gangster who is under indictment for the kidnaping of John Factor and who appeared as defense witness at the trial of his chief and two other assistants for the same crime.

The state's attorney's office is hopeful that Charles [Ice Wagon] Connors and Frank [Porky] Dillon, other Touhyites who are charged with the Factor kidnaping, will be caught soon, and that the trio may be tried together. Another member of the Touhy organization, Ludwig Schmidt, is being sought, although he was not indicted in the Factor case.

Edward [Father Tom] McFadden, who was freed of the Factor abduction charges, is being held for the Wisconsin authorities, who want him on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday overruled a motion for his release on a writ of habeas corpus.

FIREMEN RESCUE 3 WOMEN, MAN TRAPPED IN BLAZE

Three women and a man, trapped by fire on the upper floor of a two story house at 5939 Race avenue last night, were carried down ladders to safety by firemen.

The fire originated in the first floor and filled the building with smoke. Three occupants ran out. When firemen under Chief Daniel Ahern of the 2d battalion arrived they found four others still in the house.

The man and women walked out upon a narrow balcony and waited for the ladders to be raised, after which they were assisted down by the firemen. The fire damage amounted to $1,000.

ROB INSURANCE COLLECTOR.

Two gunmen yesterday afternoon held up Isadore Reisenfeld, 3000 West Washington boulevard, an insurance collector, in front of 5021 Roscoe street and took $100.

COURT REVERSES CONVICTION OF HARRISON PARKER

Holds Embezzlement Case Is Without Basis.

Harrison M. Parker, former head of the defunct Coöperative Society of America, won exoneration and complete freedom yesterday from a 1 to 10 year prison sentence in a decision by the Illinois Supreme court at Springfield.

The court found that there was no basis for his conviction, that no element of felonious intent was shown, and not only reversed the conviction but failed to remand the case for a retrial. This automatically ends the matter.

Sentenced to Prison.

Parker was indicted in January, 1931, on a charge of embezzling $349,000 from the North American Trust company of Chicago by manipulation of stock. He was placed on trial early in January, 1932, before Judge James J. Kelly, who heard the case without a jury. In August, Judge Kelly found Parker guilty of misappropriating $100,000 of the trust company's funds, and sentenced him to prison.

Through his attorney, Louis N. Blumenthal, he appealed the case to the Supreme court. Meanwhile, he remained at liberty on appeal bonds. In the fight before the Supreme court, Attorney Blumenthal asserted that some of the testimony against Parker had been perjured, and that, actually, there was nothing fundamentally criminal in Parker's stock transactions. The dealings were open, it was added.

Holds Evidence Sufficient.

On this point the Supreme court's opinion, written by Justice Lott R. Herrick, agreed, stating that Parker had made no secret of receiving the money involved, and adding that there was not sufficient evidence on which to base an embezzlement conviction.

"While the question of the merits of his [Parker's] claim to retain and use such moneys is in doubt, still the transactions he had were open," stated the opinion. "The conversion of any checks or moneys would not constitute embezzlement for the reason that the element of felonious intent is wanting."

HUBERT MOOR WINS NEW TRIAL; BREWER GETS REHEARING, TOO

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Two men under sentence of death as murderers were granted new trials by the Illinois Supreme court today. They were Hubert Moor, Robinson school teacher, who was convicted of slaying his wife, and Ed Brewer, who was convicted of slaying Grady Smith, state policeman, and Chief of Police Dan Law of Harrisburg in 1932.

In both instances the court reversed the convictions and remanded the cases for retrial. Both men have been in the death row in the southern Illinois penitentiary at Menard. Prison officials said the men would be removed to other quarters.

Moor won a rehearing by the Supreme court after his conviction once had been upheld. In the course of his trial he confessed that he had killed his wife in an automobile while returning from Indianapolis to Robinson because she was not a good housekeeper.

7 KILLED, MANY HURT IN CUBAN STUDENT RIOTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Feb. 23.—Seven persons were killed and many wounded in Santiago today in clashes with soldiers. The disturbances followed demonstration by high school students seeking to invalidate all examinations taken while Gerardo Machado was president of Cuba. Martial law was declared in Oriente province, and Maj. Manuel Rodriguez was appointed military governor. Mayor Javier Asua of Santiago was ousted.

Soldiers are patrolling the streets. Machine guns have been mounted on housetops. Similar student demonstrations were staged in Havana and other cities. Soldiers were attacked by the rioters. One man was killed in a bomb explosion here.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Sanitation Santiago Verdija denied reports he has resigned from the cabinet as a result of differences with the medical federation. President Carlos Mendieta yesterday ordered medical associations with memberships of 50,000 dissolved. Today Verdija challenged Dr. Ernesto Aragon, president of the medical college, to a saber duel. The duel will be fought tomorrow in the fencing parlor of the newspaper El Pais.

JUDGE M'KINLAY URGES CHANGES IN CRIMINAL CODE

Superior Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday suggested two changes in the Illinois criminal code in a letter dispatched to Gov. Horner. He urged that the criminal statutes be amended to eliminate the requirement that jury verdicts must be unanimous, and suggested that a two-thirds or three-fourths finding should be considered binding. He also suggested that defendants be required to file an advance statement of their defense.

"The longer I serve in the courts," said the judge, "the more I am convinced that a two-thirds or three-fourths vote of the jury should be decisive. As has often been pointed out, the United States Supreme court by a 5 and 4 decision may almost turn the country upside down. Yet if the state seeks to punish for an alleged crime, all twelve jurors must agree. It places a premium on attempts to fix or bribe a juror; it causes delay in the selection of jurors and it compels many a conscientious man to vote against his conviction in order to get results."

Concerning the proposal to compel a defendant to file a statement of his defense the judge said: "I do not see where the honest defendant would be prejudiced by such a change. The state must advise the defendant what he is charged with and furnish a list of its witnesses. The defendant has to divulge nothing until the trial is in progress. Both sides should have equal opportunity to know in advance what the issue will be."

WARDEN OF PRISON NEEDS SERVICES OF CONVICT CRACKSMAN

Warden Frank D. Whipp of the Joliet penitentiary is debating the advisability of calling on some of the safecracking experts in his custody to do a little job for him.

Several days ago the warden had occasion to consult records that are locked in the ancient safe of the prison clerk's office. This safe hadn't been opened for several years, and it was discovered the known combination of figures wouldn't cause it to operate.

Even a Joliet locksmith, called in to try his art, said he couldn't open the iron door. He ventured the opinion that the mechanism was out of order.

"I have no doubt," said Warden Whipp, "that some of our guests could open it, but if any one of them gets familiar with the safe we'd have to buy a new lock. I am thinking the matter over."

2 GET LIFE UNDER NEW CALIFORNIA KIDNAPING LAW

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Two men were sentenced to life imprisonment under the new California kidnap law today. They are William T. Burns, 31, white, and Eddie Mitchell, 28, Negro, both recently convicted of kidnap robbery crimes. Burns and two companions forced a dairy manager to drive from his home to the office and open the safe. The other two were sentenced to terms of five years to life. Mitchell forced a butcher to accompany him in a robbery which netted 87 cents.

Holds Auto Maker Liable for Injury Due to Defect

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday ruled that a manufacturer of an automobile is liable for injuries caused to a purchaser due to defective material or defective assembly. It affirmed the lower court's decision in the suit of Nathan Rotche of Chicago against the Buick Motor company. Rotche was injured when his automobile crashed into a ditch when a cotter pin on the front brake assembly became loose a short time after he had purchased the car.

TRADE GROUPS LAUNCH DRIVE TO BOOST FAIR

Work Started on Two Big Motor Exhibits.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Employés of A Century of Progress Exposition, exhibitors and concessionaires, and Chicago business men yesterday were starting a high speed campaign of construction and advertising in preparation for the 1934 World's Fair, which will open on June 1. The campaign will continue until the Fair starts.

Activity was begun on three fronts yesterday. Actual construction work at the Fair, which had been pending until the passing of the enabling acts by the legislature on Thursday, got under way. The administrative details of the new Fair were taken under consideration by officials and the south park board. Chicago business men, railroads, and hotels began a drive to advertise the Fair, and began taking reservations for summer conventions.

Start on Industrial Exhibits.

Two of the major industrial exhibits at the 1934 Exposition yesterday made the opening move toward participation. Two steam shovels and twenty men were working in three shifts at the Ford exhibit on the old site of Camp Whistler. Huge ditches for foundation pilings are already dug in the 11 acre tract, and within a few days the first steel in the 100 ton framework will go into place.

Officials of General Motors at a luncheon in the Stevens hotel yesterday announced the details of the $3,000,000 exhibit to be shown by that corporation on the site of the 1933 General Motors exhibit. With an expenditure of $500,000 for redecorating the exhibit, and an appropriation of $500,000 for operating expenses, the company's outlay for the two years' participation will stand at $3,000,000.

W. W. Lewis, advertising director of General Motors; Gardner M. Cobb, resident manager, and his assistant, T. H. Agnew, visited the building in the morning and unlocked the doors for the first of the workmen. In general the exhibit will be the same as that of last year, with the addition of a historical exhibit detailing the development of automotive industry in General Motors laboratories.

To Hire Chicago Workers.

The officials emphasized that as far as possible Chicago workmen will be employed in the preparation of the exhibit and in the operation and maintenance. Most of the $500,000 to be spent immediately will go for material and for salaries in Chicago.

"We feel that the 1933 Fair was of inestimable benefit to us," Mr. Lewis said, "and at present are confident that the 1934 Fair will achieve still greater results. In my opinion there is a general feeling of optimism throughout the country, and that is particularly noticeable in our business. Detroit is a different city from what it was a year ago."

Large Advance Ticket Sales.

Aside from the interest by concessionaires and exhibitors, Fair officials have another definite indicator of the interest aroused throughout the country by the 1934 Exposition. Advance ticket sales so far amount to 650,000 admissions, with requests on file to bring the total to a million. The money is in escrow for more than half of these requests. Last year, from Jan. 1 to June 1, advance sales totaled 2,250,000 tickets, and at this time of last year the sale was far behind that of the present.

"A new policy has been adopted this year," said M. M. Tveter, controler. "We will limit the advance sale to five million tickets in an attempt to keep them out of the hands of speculators and to see that they are delivered to those who will actually use them.

"In blocks of 25,000 the tickets are sold for 40 cents. Last year we experienced difficulty with speculators. This year this will be stopped. Also, we do not need money as badly this year as we did last year, and consequently the advance sale is not so important."

Change in Ticket System.

One change in the ticket sale is in the books. Last year the tickets were sold in books of 10, each ticket being good for admission to one or two concessions, in addition to the gate admission. Only these two concessions could be seen. This year the books are in blocks of five tickets, each ticket being good for a different concession. The books sell for $2.50 and represent a value of $3.75.

A campaign to have every business concern in Chicago use its own advertising, salesmen, and other facilities to stimulate interest in the Fair was launched yesterday by the Association of Commerce. The campaign managers pointed out that the nine million out of town visitors who visited the Fair in 1933 brought $40,000,000 in new business to Chicago, and put more than 130,000 Chicagoans into the wage earner class.

Railroads also were joining in the drive, getting a six month start over the similar campaign of last year, when many of the roads did not announce special rates until the Fair was half finished. The Illinois Central lines yesterday announced summer rates ranging from 1 cent a mile to 2½ cents a mile, depending on the length of stay in Chicago. Other roads are expected to follow suit within a few days.

Hotels Offer Special Rates.

Hotel associations were taking cognizance of the Fair by arranging special summer rates and attractions. Many hotels already have taken reservations for conventions and tour parties.

The activity at the Fair grounds will get into full swing Monday when Maj. Lenox Lohr, general manager, and President Rufus Dawes return to Chicago. Only two phases involving official action are still pending. They are the adoption of the south park ordinance necessary to the carrying on of the Fair, and the issuance of invitations to foreign powers by President Roosevelt. The latter action is not needed immediately, but is expected to be taken within two weeks.

On Monday or Tuesday park board officials and representatives of the Fair will meet to iron out the few difficulties remaining in the Fair contract. At present the Fair administration has one draft submitted by the south parks, and the park board has two contracts offered by the Fair. While there are several minor details to be worked out representatives of both sides yesterday asserted that no major dispute had arisen.

Contractors Go Ahead.

While no contracts can be accepted in final form by the Fair until the south park ordinance is adopted, both the Fair and the park board were so confident of a satisfactory solution in the next few days that contractors were permitted to go ahead while the officials "paid no attention to the activity."

"The south park commission has been working on a formal contract for two weeks," said George T. Donoghue, superintendent of south parks.

"Our engineers and lawyers are working in the closest harmony with the Fair officials, and I believe that within two or three days a contract suitable to both sides will be ready."

'HUNGER ARMY' INVADES LONDON; CITY FEARS RIOTS

Huge Demonstration Due to Be Held Tomorrow.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Nearly all the hunger marchers who for the past six weeks have been converging on London from all parts of the British Isles have reached the capital. There are a couple of contingents still en route. They are due at London headquarters late tonight.

It is estimated that the 2,300 marchers will be joined in the great demonstration to be held Sunday in Hyde park by another couple of thousand from the suburbs and more thousands of unemployed from London districts.

The communist newspaper Daily Worker today gave its entire front page to news of the marchers, and asked that millions of workers be in the streets Sunday.

Trouble Is Feared.

This is considered certain to lead to trouble, for London communists are mainly composed of gangs of toughs whose chief object is to start a free for all with the police at any time and any place, with or without reason.

It will not help matters when they learn that two of their leaders were arrested tonight on charges of making seditious statements. The arrested men are Tom Mann, radical Socialist leader, and Harry Pollitt, communist leader. They were hustled out of London for Wales, where the statements are alleged to have been made and where they will be placed on trial.

The temper of the marchers also was not appeased tonight when Prime Minister MacDonald refused to meet a delegation of the marchers and hear their complaints. MacDonald said the deputation could do no service to the unemployed and added: "The communist purpose of these marchers is common knowledge."

Marchers Get Free Movies.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent tonight made a tour of various centers and found most of the marchers resting, bathing swollen feet, mending torn clothing, and doing other similar jobs. One contingent was enjoying free seats in a movie which had been arranged by local police.

In Trafalgar square the correspondent found workmen measuring the windows of one or two shops which will be covered with strong boards over the week-end. Similar action is being taken around Hyde park, particularly the huge windows of Gordon Selfridge's department store.

Ten thousand special police were called out today for week-end duty to assist thousands of the regular forces.

It is hinted that the police have a trump card up their sleeves and in case of trouble will use a weapon never before tried out against demonstrators in Great Britain. The weapon probably is a gas bomb. What effect it will have remains to be seen.

WITNESSES FOR MRS. GEORGE COX ASSAIL HUSBAND

Trial at New Orleans Draws Crowds.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—George M. Cox, capitalist, shipbuilder and former malt dealer, who operated a fleet of boats from Chicago to Lake Michigan resorts sat in a New Orleans courtroom today and listened to witness after witness blast him as a drunkard, a man of ungovernable temper, philanderer and the assassin of his own wife's character.

The court was hearing a contempt rule against Mrs. Thelma Cox for her failure to permit her estranged husband to see their 3 year old child, in violation of a court order. Mrs. Cox's defense was that her husband was not a fit man even to see his child.

At one point during the trial one of Cox's bodyguards, testifying reluctantly for the defense was threatened with a jail sentence for failing to answer a defense attorney's question regarding vile epithets Cox is alleged to have applied to his wife. The witness explained his hesitancy was due to the "exceedingly vile nature of Mr. Cox's language."

"Don't be mealy-mouthed," remonstrated Judge Hugh C. Cage, elderly, austere, dignified. "These spectators have come here to hear filth, so give them all the filth they want." It was given and not a soul left the court.

Later witnesses testified that Cox slapped his wife while she held their baby in her arms. Other witnesses told of his alleged misbehavior with women in Chicago, in hotels and on his boats. Some of this testimony was particularly salacious. Judge Cage warned the spectators to get out of court if they didn't care to have their sensibilities shocked. Again not a soul moved or left the court.

The case went over until Monday.

Capt. Zimmer, Overcome by Gas, Still Improves

Capt. Matthew Zimmer, head of the city uniformed police, who was overcome by carbon monoxide fumes from an automobile Wednesday morning, continued to improve last night in his home at 8132 South Sangamon street. The captain was greatly helped by a blood transfusion Thursday, according to his physician, Dr. Lawrence F. Draper. Another transfusion will be made today.

MOTHER OF BOY JAILED FOR DEBT PAYS A $10 FINE

Mrs. G. E. Weber, 1521 North Mason avenue, was fined $10 and costs yesterday by Justice of the Peace Louis P. Gibson of Oak Park after a traffic policeman testified that she refused to obey his order to drive around a congested area. She is the mother of William Weber, 17 years old, who was jailed last week after a lengthy court battle for failure to pay a $2,500 judgment for damages in an automobile accident. Policeman Hugh English further charged that Mrs. Weber threw a summons for the violation in his face and told him that "Oak Park policemen are dumb." She was taken to the station in a squad car and booked for disobeying police directions. She denied the accusations but paid the fine.

Woman Killed by Train in South Side Suburb

Mrs. Lola Willis, 58 years old, of Robbins, a suburb in the vicinity of 142d street and Western avenue, was killed last night by a southbound train on the Rock Island track at 103d street and Walden parkway. Whether she fell off the platform at that point as the train approached or was walking across the tracks could not be determined.

JAMES A. REED ATTACKS CHILD LABOR MEASURE

"Substitute Congress for Parents."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—James A. Reed, former United States senator from Missouri, attacked tonight the proposed child labor amendment to the constitution as designed to "substitute for the authority of the parent the authority of congress."

The proposition, Reed said, "comes to us under a false title."

"The ordinary and casual reader," the Missourian said, "would understand that it is a proposition intended to protect children of tender years against being thrust into sweatshops and into unhealthful places to work for a livelihood, but that is far from the real purpose and the real language of the amendment.

"Let me read it to you: 'Section 1. Congress shall have power to limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age.'

Power Over Education.

"Adopt that amendment, and the congress of the United States will have power not only to regulate the labor of children but the labor of young men and young women up to the very day when they become eighteen years of age. It is revolutionary; it strikes at the home; it is inimical to the discipline of the family; it substitutes for the discipline of the home and for the rights of parents the 'ipse dixit' of a congress. . . .

"Moreover, the language is so broad that congress would have the power to regulate and to control the education of children, for the education of children comes within the language of the amendment limiting and regulating the labor of the child. . . .

"It may be said that congress will not exercise this power to its fullest extent.

State Laws Already Operative.

"That is a dangerous fallacy and illusion. There are very few powers that have ever been conferred upon congress by the constitution that it has not seen fit to exercise first or last, and already that ancient and revered doctrine is being stretched to the breaking point.

"I am not talking about children of tender years, for unfortunately there have been cases where children too young have been put to work in factories or in mills; but fortunately the laws of the various states have governed that proposition, and, if I remember right, there are only one or two states in the Union that do not have laws calculated to protect the infant, the small child; but no state, so far as I know, has ever gone so far as to invade the home and say that a boy of sixteen or seventeen years of age shall not be permitted to work. . . .

"To my mind, this un-American thing ought to be killed by every legislative body."

Team Sold at Auction Near Canton for $540

Canton, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—At a sale at the Emery Dikeman farm near Canton a matched team sold at auction for $540. Sixty-one head of horses were also sold, $87.50 being the lowest price paid for a single animal.

A YOUNG MAN AND HIS OPINIONS CALL AT THE WHITE HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Ordinarily, if you're called to the White House to explain your stand on a public question, you come away a bit subdued. Not so the young man who walked out of the front door of the executive mansion this afternoon.

He was smiling.

He said he had had "a very nice discussion about it."

The "it" referred to the pending child labor amendment which, in a recent speech in Massachusetts, he had opposed.

Today he repeated his opposition, or at least intimated that the discussion hadn't changed his mind.

And he smiled again.

But let's clear up the mystery.

The young man was James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and he had come to Washington for a brief visit with his parents, during the course of which his mother had asked him "why in the world" he was against the amendment, for which she is working heartily.

He gave her his reasons. A few days ago, in a letter she wrote him, she had asked him for his reasons and had remarked at the time:

"That's all I'd ever do; ask a person's reasons, for everybody is entitled to his own opinion."

Then she added, "He must have reasons which he regards as sufficient. I am sure they would not be sufficient for me."

Earlier in the day Mrs. Roosevelt attended memorial services for the late King Albert of the Belgians, which were held at Catholic university, under the auspices of the Belgian embassy.

Because of duties which require her attention here in Washington, she has canceled the trip she had planned to take over the week-end, down to the government subsistence farm project in West Virginia.

Youth and Girl Bound Over After Fatal Fight

Edward Kubal, 19 years old, 5338 South Wells street, and Lucille Jacobsen, 15 years old, 240 Swann street, were ordered held to the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Leroy Frandsen, 38 years old, 4632 Wentworth avenue. Frandsen died in St. Bernard's hospital from a skull fracture after a fight with Kubal on Feb. 3 at Swann street and Wentworth avenue.

BROWN DECLINES TO TELL REMARK MADE BY FARLEY

Air Mail Inquiry Upset by Refusal.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The big question now before the senate air mail committee is: what did Postmaster General Jim Farley tell former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown that Mr. Brown would not tell the committee today during his fifth session on the witness stand?

The question may be answered tomorrow, if Postmaster Jim gets back from an out of town trip in time to face Mr. Brown across the committee table.

It was something of a "personal nature" that Mr. Farley had asked him not to repeat, Mr. Brown said today.

There wasn't anything said of any nature that would offend the committee or its members, Mr. Farley was reported as stating this afternoon down in Durham, N. C., where he was dedicating a postoffice.

Recounts Call on Farley.

A call for him to appear at his earliest convenience was issued by Senator Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] the committee chairman. Mr. Farley was reported on the train on his way to Washington tonight.

Mr. Brown told a lot of things that happened the afternoon of last Jan. 19 when he called on Mr. Farley to return correspondence relating to air and ocean mail that his secretary—not Mr. Brown himself, of course—had somehow removed from the postoffice department files.

He told, for example, how James Maher, the postoffice stenographer who caused the first stir by informing the committee Mr. Brown had ordered important papers burned, had told him [Mr. Brown] that the committee chairman had put the words in his mouth.

He told how Mr. Farley had accepted the restored correspondence and then remarked:

"You know I haven't any sympathy with these political investigations."

Under Friendly Questioning.

The questioning of Mr. Brown was again in the hands of Republican Senator Warren R. Austin, and in response to the Vermonter's friendly cues the witness continued:

"I said to Mr. Farley, 'I always thought you were too good a sportsman to hit any one below the belt just because he belongs to another party.' And he said, 'I wouldn't hit any one below the belt.'"

Senator Black was listening attentively; so was Senator Pat McCarran [Dem., Nev.].

Mr. Brown went on:

"I said, 'I can't understand what this is all about, Mr. Postmaster General. The only time I remember seeing Senator Black was when he came to see me with former Senator Heflin, and I'm sure he was treated with every courtesy'."

"Then," Mr. Brown continued, "Mr. Farley made a remark of a personal nature which I don't feel at liberty to repeat."

"Repeat it," came the shout of Senator Black.

"Repeat it," echoed Senator McCarran.

"He asked me not to," Mr. Brown hedged.

Sticks to Refusal.

Senator McCarran raised his brows with a knowing air.

"Do you wish the ladies excluded from the hearing room?" he asked.

It was not of an "obscene nature," explained Mr. Brown virtuously. "But I am not going to repeat unless Mr. Farley consents," he went on.

"I am asking you to repeat that expression," Senator McCarran insisted gruffly.

"I am going to stick to what I said," said Mr. Brown.

"But you'll repeat it, if he says you can?" inquired the Nevada senator.

"Of course," quoth Mr. Brown.

"Well," said Chairman Black, freighting his voice with ominous import, "we'll get him up here before you get through."

Explains About Papers.

Mr. Brown's explanation of how the air mail papers came to get into his possession was a long one, at times fraught with sentiment, at times oddly mixed up with "fancy cooking utensils." It was his secretary, Kenneth McPherson who packed up when Mr Brown left the postoffice department

He told MacPherson to sort out his personal papers, save those that had any value, and dispose of the rest. His instructions related to persona correspondence only. So the packing boxes were brought in and the packing was started.

But Mr. Brown's lifelong hobby has been cooking.

"I had a little electric kitchen in a room off my office," he explained "and a lot of fancy cooking utensils and dishes. The first job was to get those packed."

And when he and Mrs. Brown moved into their New York hotel a month or so later, "it was the cooking utensils and dishes that got the first call again.

"I had a little kitchen built," said Mr. Brown. "The box marked dishes and cooking utensils was brought up. Later the bound books were brought up."

Correspondence Opened Last.

And the box of correspondence was not brought up at all until last January, when the committee got busy and Mr. Brown wanted to refer to a record of air mail contracts that had been prepared in answer to a senate resolution. There was some delay but finally, said Mr. Brown:

"I opened the box and there were two folders."

They contained, it appeared, official papers relating to ocean and air mail. Mr. Brown digressed to explain that even though these particular papers had been taken away, two additional copies of all important letters he wrote were always made and should even now be in the department.

"Did you give any instructions about placing those papers in the box?" asked Senator Austin.

"I certainly did not," replied the witness. "I was terribly shocked when I found them. I don't know of anything that upset me more."

As soon as possible he rushed to Washington to return the papers to Mr. Farley, and met Mr. Maher.

"I was sitting on the bench outside Mr. Farley's office," said Mr. Brown. "Maher came up and extended his hand. I kept mine at my side. He said: 'I wanted to tell you that what the newspaper said wasn't what I said and wasn't what I wanted to say. I wanted to tell the committee about the other two copies of the letters and that the burning didn't mean anything, but they wouldn't let me. They kept putting words in my mouth.'"

Ingalls Defends Competitive Bidding on U. S. Planes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—David S. Ingalls, former assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics, today denied the claim of private aircraft manufacturers that the navy can secure better and cheaper planes through direct negotiation with the builder than through competitive bidding.

Testifying before a subcommittee of the house naval affairs committee, Mr. Ingalls declared that the system of competitive bidding on service aircraft, together with a constant threat that the government will enter the airplane manufacturing business, provides an effective check on the profits of private concerns producing aircraft and engines for the navy.

The present system of naval aircraft procurement under which all companies may bid for the construction contract offered by the navy department, according to Mr. Ingalls, was inaugurated by him early in his three year tenure of office during the Hoover administration. He was convinced, he told the committee, that it "saved the government substantial amounts and cut the profits of the manufacturing companies."

Mr. Ingalls was the first navy official of the Hoover régime to be called to the stand in the subcommittee's investigation of alleged exorbitant profits to private aircraft companies under contracts with the navy. Tomorrow, former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams is expected to testify.

At about the half way point in the navy's five year aircraft development program, Mr. Ingalls related from the stand today, he instituted the system of competitive bids for naval contracts which still prevails. At the same time he raised the threat that unless private manufacturers brought their prices down the government would undertake to build a large part of its own planes and engines. It was his opinion, he said, that this threat "caused a material drop in prices."

The five year program authorized by congress, according to the former head of naval air operations, contemplated the expenditure of 85 million dollars. He pointed out that under the competitive bid system it was carried out at a cost of $58,437,000, or nearly one-third less than the estimated requirement.

Mr. Ingalls declared that while he felt the threat of government manufacture should be held over the heads of private aircraft companies, he was not in favor of letting the government actually engage in the business.

Mr. Ingalls was asked whether there might not be a collusion between naval officers and airplane manufacturers in connection with navy plane contracts. "At no time was there any suggestion of collusion or any other kind of wrongdoing on the part of the naval officers who served with me in the department during my tenure in office," he replied.

HALT SALE OF BEER; WORD 'PRESIDENT' ON LABEL BRINGS ACTION

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has "no choice beer."

Federal Alcohol Control Administrator Joseph H. Choate Jr. made that plain today when he told of forcing a California brewer to stop peddling a beer labeled "President's Choice." The label, displayed by Mr. Choate, blazoned its legend in clear blue letters with a picture of the capitol dome in the background.

A women's organization in California protested to the White House against the peddling of "President's Choice"; the White House called up Mr. Choate; Mr. Choate called up the brewers' code authority; the brewers' code authority long distanced its California board and the next day there was no more "President's Choice" beer to be had.

YANKS IN BRAZIL ASK U. S. FOR NEW AIR MAIL LINE

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Directors of the American Chamber of Commerce in a resolution today urged the United States to provide additional air mail service along the east coast of South America.

They cited European competition arising from a new German ocean air mail line, the forthcoming completion of a French trans-ocean mail system, and the reinauguration of mail service by the Graf Zeppelin.

One American east coast line [Pan-American] operates on a weekly schedule.

INDIANA MINES ORDER MILLION AND HALF TREES

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Orders for a million and a half trees for planting on land left bare by strip mining of coal have been received by the state department of conservation and will be filled by the division of forestry from state nurseries. The trees will reforest approximately 1,500 acres in the mining area of southwestern Indiana.

A tabulation of orders placed through the Indiana Coal Producers' association shows that 800,000 black locust and 700,000 evergreen and walnut transplants will be purchased from the state nurseries. These trees have been found well suited for reforesting the mining area.

Black locust planted on similar land five years ago has grown to a suitable size for fence post use.

Trees ordered by the coal companies are purchased from the state nurseries here.

PRESIDENT GIVES HAFFA CLEMENCY IN LIQUOR PLOT

Notice of presidential clemency ordering remission of an $11,000 fine imposed for prohibition law violation was received yesterday by Titus Haffa, former alderman who served 17 months in a federal penitentiary following his conviction on liquor law conspiracy charges.

Haffa, who is now Republican candidate for 42d ward committeeman, was advised of the action in a letter from James A. Finch, an attorney of the department of justice. With the communication he received a photostatic copy of the President's warrant.

The order, which is in the nature of a pardon, reads in part: "I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in consideration of the premises, divers other good and sufficient reasons thereunto moving, do hereby grant unto the said Titus Haffa a remission of the fine." The order was also signed by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

ADMITS PERJURY IN RACKET TRIAL; CHARGES THREAT

Violence in Cleaners' War During 1931 Retold.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

James Cox, former operator of a cleaning and dyeing plant, returned to the stand yesterday in the racket conspiracy trial and testified that he perjured himself in his testimony a month ago after he had been threatened in the Criminal courts building by Robert Rado and Jean Franks, two union business agents who are defendants in the case.

Cox gave his testimony outside of the presence of the jury, and strenuous objections were raised by defense counsel to his repeating it to the jurors. Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court, the trial judge, took the matter under advisement and Cox was dismissed for the day.

Testimony on Violence Sought.

Cox, who operated a cleaning plant in the suburbs, originally was called as a witness to tell of violence which pervaded the cleaning and dyeing industry in 1931, under the Cleaning and Dyeing Institute, of which Dr. B. M. Squires was named dictator. It was this violence which caused charges of conspiracy in the present indictment to be made against Dr. Squires, Rado, Franks and other officials of unions in the industry, and Morris I. Kaplan, attorney for the Institute.

Before Cox testified, Harry Neiditch, owner of the Wisconsin Tailor shop at 212 South Marion street, Oak Park, had testified that vandals had entered his shop and thrown acid on the clothing there. Cox had been cleaning Neiditch's suits, but Neiditch had formerly sent his business to the Central Cleaners and Dyers, in which George [Bugs] Moran, north side gang leader, was interested.

Cox's Original Testimony.

In his original testimony on Jan. 29 Cox stated that Rado had come to him shortly before the acid throwing incident and asked him to refuse to do Neiditch's work, stating that Neiditch should take his work back to the Central plant. On cross-examination by Attorney Joseph B. Harrington, however, Cox said that Neiditch, after the acid was thrown, blamed the Central Cleaners and Dyers for the vandalism.

Yesterday Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber put Cox back on the stand and questioned him as follows:

Q.—Did you see anybody the day you testified? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where? A.—Right downstairs here.

Q.—Who did you see? A.—Rado, Franks, and Al Maltz [another union official, not on trial].

Recites Veiled Threat.

Q.—What did they say to you? A.—They said: "In regard to your testifying against us for that Wisconsin Tailors, your name will go right back on that board again and have the red mark put around it."

[Previously Cox had told of a visit by Rado who told him that his name was posted on a board in the union headquarters as an unfair operator.]

Q.—Was there anything else said? A.—They said: "You know as much as we do that we had nothing at all to do with the Wisconsin Tailors getting acid. You know as well as we do that the Central did it. Don't you never say at no time that we ever told you to lay off doing the Wisconsin Tailors' work. If you go up there and testify against us there is going to be plenty of trouble against you."

Admits His Fears.

Q.—You told me that when you testified here before that you were afraid, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—You also told me that they told you downstairs that if they [the prosecution] were to ask you in regard to Neiditch that you should say that the Central Cleaners did it—they suggested that you should say that? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was the one who told you that? A.—Rado.

Q.—Who was present? A.—Maltz and Franks.

Q.—Anything they said about cleaning your own suit? A.—Mr. Rado says—Mr. Rado and Al Maltz—in May they said that they would "clean your suit for you for the first and last time so you would never be able to wear it again," and he reminded me of the same thing right downstairs here again the day I testified. They said that [first] in front of an attorney named Joe Schecter and my wife, at 212 South Marion street, Oak Park.

Another witness told yesterday of the famous conference in the office of the late Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general, to which Ald. Oscar Nelson, one of the defendants in the case, and other labor leaders accompanied Al Capone and State Senator Dan Serritella.

The meeting in Attorney Brundage's office was described to the jury by Miss Nell Wolf, 6046 North Menard avenue, reception clerk in the office. She said that Capone, Nelson, and Serritella were members of a delegation of about a dozen who called there in the fall of 1931.

Asked to Intercede.

Mr. Brundage died, apparently by his own hand, a few days before the racket trial opened. He was to have been a prosecution witness. He had charged in public statements that at the meeting he was asked to intercede with his old friend, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who had just found Capone guilty of income tax frauds, to obtain a light sentence for the gang chief.

Cross-examination of Miss Wolf brought out that Patrick Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council, and Jerry Horan, president of the Flat Janitors' union, were in the delegation which visited Brundage.

Nelson's Version.

Nelson's version of the story is that Brundage asked him to come to the office with a delegation of labor leaders, and that he did not know until he arrived that Capone and Serritella also were to be present. At the meeting, he says, Brundage asked labor support of his candidacy for governor.

Three laundry owners testified yesterday that the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' union called strikes on their plants after they had failed to sign the agreement drawn up by Attorney Aaron Sapiro, a defendant, for reorganization of the laundry trade in the summer of 1932.

Only one of the witnesses, Matthias Rohrer, 5621 North Maplewood avenue, who in 1932 owned the Ravenswood laundry, admitted that he had had any difficulties with union employés. A strike at his plant on Aug. 15, 1932, resulted in all of his drivers joining the union, to which only two had belonged before.

Finally Quits Business.

Rohrer never joined the laundry association and continued to pay his drivers higher base pay than that paid by members of the association until a second strike was called on Feb. 17, 1933. He fought back for a month and then quit business.

Charles Stroh, manager of the Edgewater laundry, said a strike was called at the plant on Aug. 29, 1932, after he had notified his drivers that he intended to pay them the same scale paid by members of the association, from which he had resigned. He fought the strike for two weeks, then capitulated.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Thelma Todd, "the most beauteous blonde" in the movies, today drew up divorce papers asking her freedom from Pat De Cicco, sportsman of New York and Los Angeles. The pair were married in Arizona in 1932. Miss Todd based her action on incompatibility.

VALLEE VICTOR IN NEW MARITAL TILT WITH WIFE

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Rudy Vallee won another round in his marital battle with Fay Webb Vallee today when Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag granted a temporary injunction restraining his wife from suing in California or anywhere outside New York.

The California suit, recently instituted, for maintenance and divorce, was brought merely to harrass Vallee, the court held in disapproving of Mrs. Vallee's efforts "to speculate for the most favorable result in whatever forum she is able to serve process on the defendant."

In California Mrs. Vallee sought $7,450 a month alimony, $50,000 counsel fees and $10,000 for expenses in pressing her divorce action there.

Justice Shientag cited a separate agreement signed April 5, 1933, under which Mrs. Vallee is collecting $100 a week, provided against her bringing another suit so long as Vallee was not in default.

Mrs. Vallee has contended that at the time she made the $100 a week settlement Vallee was getting $350,000 a year, but she was unaware of it.

INDICT RACKET TRIAL WITNESS ON PERJURY COUNT

Harold Johnson, former manager of the Lexington hotel which once housed Al Capone, was indicted yesterday on a perjury charge growing out of his testimony in the racket conspiracy trial in the Criminal court of Chief Justice Phillip J. Finnegan. The indictment was returned before Chief Justice Finnegan.

Johnson had testified that he collected $2,500 in rent owed by Capone from a cleaning and dyeing shop across the street from the hotel. Later Johnson testified on the stand that he received the money from Sylvester Butze, Capone gang hanger-on, in a cigar store next to the hotel. On a third appearance in court Johnson testified that Butze was an employé of the cleaning shop.

LEOPOLD IS MADE KING; HIS QUEEN STEALS THE SHOW

Crowd Cheers New Rulers at Brilliant Ceremony.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23.—Queen Astrid, blue-eyed Swedish queen of the Belgians, stole the show this morning when her tall, blond husband became King Leopold III. at an impressive and glittering ceremony.

However fine the young king looked on his solitary throne, and however great the enthusiasm aroused by his throne speech, delivered both in excellent French and Flemish, Queen Astrid was the cynosure of all eyes. Clad in black, she sat under a baldachino between her little boy, Crown Prince Baudouin, aged 3, and her small daughter, Princess Josephine Charlotte, aged 6. Both children were dressed in white silk.

Assembly Cheers Queen.

King Leopold reaped the first thundering applause during his throne speech when he exclaimed, "The Belgian dynasty is in the service of the nation." But a few minutes later the entire assembly shouted, "Vive la Reine" [Long live the queen] not because Astrid had said anything, but because of a simple motherly gesture toward little Prince Baudouin, who, rather fidgety in a grand red and gold chair, wanted to climb down from it. Astrid took him in her arms and placed him on her knee. This was, perhaps, a breach of etiquette, but it endeared her to every mother and father present.

The chamber of deputies was a gorgeous picture. Diplomats in gilt-embroidered gala uniforms assembled first. They sat, oddly enough, on the seats usually reserved for the extreme left-wing parliamentarians—the socialists and communists. Msgr. Micara, papal nuncio, struck a purple note in their midst. He wore purple from head to foot, even purple gloves. Cardinal Van Roey, successor to the late Cardinal Mercier, arrived all in scarlet. Diplomats rushed to kiss his hand.

Leopold Greeted By Cheers.

An usher then announced, "The members of parliament," and a number of gentlemen in tail coats, even Emile Vandervelde, the international labor chief, crowded into their benches. Their plain black and white contrasted with the colorful assembly of diplomats.

At precisely 11 o'clock Leopold entered. He walked to the throne while a cheer of "Vive le Roi," or the Flemish "Leve de Koning," greeted him. Three communist deputies tried to pierce it with their voices, "Long Live the Soviets," and "Down with the Monarchy," but the huskiest bass throats of parliament had been placed next to them and simply outshouted the disturbers.

Standing upright and stretching his arm high, Leopold swore "to observe the constitution and the laws of the Belgian people, to maintain the nation's independence and the integrity of its territory." Then he sat down and while sitting read his throne speech both in French and Flemish.

The Throne Speech.

The outstanding passage in the throne speech was the following:

"Belgium's constitution is supple enough to adapt itself to the varying needs of the times."

Right and left wing members of parliament applauded this sentence. Flemish deputies shouted, "Long live the constitution." They were greatly pleased with the fluency of King Leopold's Flemish. It was the first time a Belgian throne speech was repeated in Flemish and it was delivered by a king who speaks Flemish like a Fleming.

The closing sentence of the speech, "I give myself entirely to Belgium, and the queen will assist me with all her heart in the fulfilment of my duties," was followed by an ovation both for the young king and queen.

Little Prince Baudouin, who up until then had been greatly interested by the cardinal's scarlet attire, repeatedly pointing his finger at it, now got up and waved his little hand at the assembly. Queen Astrid bowed.

Even the prince of Wales, who had been inspecting the galleries for pretty faces, looked stirred. Next to him were Crown Prince Olaf of Norway and Crown Prince Humbert of Italy. All three must have thought that some day they, too, will give similar throne speeches.

And would it get such roaring applause? And would people cry and wave handkerchiefs? And would old men embrace each other in joy? King Albert was dead and buried and women still cried when the new young king passed by his father's crypt this morning on the way to parliament. But later all were gay, curious and excited.

There were those wonderful military bands and cavalry preceding the royal procession as it started from parliament. Leopold rode a brown horse. He was followed by his brother, Charles. Thousands again lined the streets back of a double row of soldiers. Today they shouted, "Long live the king," and "Long live the queen," throwing flowers on him and Astrid's court carriage.

Crowds Thrilled by Royalty.

All the princes and princesses who had attended the ceremony followed in carriages and had a rousing success. Few in the crowd knew exactly which was the prince of Wales, which Humbert, and which Olaf. But at every approaching carriage "Ohs" "Ahs" arose and workers exclaimed naively, "Look! Another emperor," or "Take a peep at that queen, mother."

Dowager Queen Elizabeth was not able to attend today's ceremonies due to illness.

At 4 p. m. members of Belgium's upper and lower houses carried their address to Leopold to the royal palace. This reply to the throne speech expressed the confidence of parliament in the young king. It had been voted practically unanimously, with the exception of three communists and seven socialists. Three hundred thirty members of parliament shook hands with the king and 300 kissed Queen Astrid's hand. The 30 socialists merely shook hands with her.

Capone Agent Gets Prison Under Dyer Auto Statute

New Orleans, La., Feb. 23. — [Special.]—Cecil Squires, reputed Al Capone representative in New Orleans, was sentenced today to 18 months in the new federal prison at El Reno, Okla., for transporting three stolen automobiles from Chicago to New Orleans. He was released on bail pending appeal.

ITALIAN CROWN PRINCE THINKS LEOPOLD WILL BE A "GREAT KING"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23.—Just before leaving Brussels tonight on the Basel train, Crown Prince Humbert of Italy granted his only interview during his visit in Belgium to THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent, who was presented by Conte Luigi Vannutelly Rey, Italian ambassador.

"I am very sad to return to Brussels in such circumstances," the prince said. "I felt great affection for my father-in-law and sincere admiration for him. Belgium has lost a great king and Belgium has undergone a great sorrow, but she has rallied admirably by acclaiming in sublime fashion Leopold III. I have been very happy to be present at the accession to the throne by my brother-in-law. He will be a great king and I have been very touched to see the enthusiastic welcome the Belgian people gave him."

Asked about the baby expected by him and Crown Princess Marie Jose, he said:

"The Italian people and I are very happy about this event. It will complete the happiness of my union with Marie Jose."

THALIA MASSIE WINS A DIVORCE IN SECRET TRIAL

Lieutenant Lets Cruelty Charge Go Uncontested.

Reno, Nev., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The marriage of Thalia Hubbard Fortescue Massie and Lieut. Thomas Hedges Massie, young naval lieutenant involved in the sensational Honolulu murder trial of 1932, was ended in a speedy Reno divorce trial today.

Charges of extreme mental cruelty, the particulars of which were given privately by Mrs. Massie behind the locked doors of Judge Benjamin F. Curler's court, won her a divorce decree in less than 10 minutes.

Mrs. Massie's attorney asked the court for a private trial, mandatory under Nevada law when requested by either party to a divorce action, and court bailiffs ordered an eager crowd from the courtroom.

Denies Honolulu Involvement.

A few minutes later it was all over, and the young matron, daughter of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, socially prominent in Washington, D. C., left the court building in the company of her attorney and witness, who certified she had been a resident here six weeks.

She wore a black crepe dress, trimmed in white, with black hat and coat to match.

Mrs. Massie reiterated previous statements that today's divorce proceeding "had absolutely no connection" with the Honolulu rape case, which attracted world wide attention.

The assault upon Mrs. Massie by a group of natives was followed by the slaying of Joseph Kanahawai, and the trial for his murder of Lieut. Massie, Mrs. Massie's mother, and two enlisted men of the navy. Convicted of manslaughter, their sentence was commuted soon after the verdict.

Report Incompatibility Charge.

Mrs. Massie came to Reno to establish divorce residence last Jan. 10, saying she did so "reluctantly and only at the insistence of Lieut. Massie."

Evidence that there had been a marital rift between the Massies for some time previous, however, was given in Lieut. Massie's power of attorney in today's proceedings. It was signed in Los Angeles Dec. 20, 1933.

Mrs. Massie asked for no alimony. It was understood her testimony related largely to their incompatibility and to Lieut. Massie's suggestions that they be divorced.

She said she expected to remain here "for several days," after which she will visit friends at Carmel, Cal. Her plans for the future are "still indefinit," she said.

Asked if she intends to remarry, she replied: "I am not going to marry anybody." The couple married at Washington Nov. 24, 1927.

Later tonight Mrs. Massie was taken ill at a roadhouse and was taken to a hospital. Other guests at the roadhouse who saw Mrs. Massie carried from the place circulated a report that she had attempted to commit suicide. Her physician denied the story.

Quebec Really Has Snow! It's 56 Ft. High in Places

QUEBEC, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Attesting to the abundance of snow which has fallen in the Quebec district this year, roads department agents say in some places along the railway lines mountains of snow measuring 56 feet in height exist. At points between St. Fabien, Rimouski, and St. Eloi, Temiscouata, the snow has been piled up until it completely covers telegraph wires.

ROOSEVELT SENDS CONGRATULATION TO NEW BELGIAN KING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today sent the following cablegram of congratulation to King Leopold III. of Belgium:

"On this, your majesty's accession to the throne of Belgium, I send you cordial greetings. May your majesty's reign be fraught with signal success in carrying out your high ideals for your country's welfare, and may health and happiness attend you in your high office."

BRIDE SHOVELS WAY TO ALTAR THROUGH DRIFT

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A bride shoveled her way to the altar through a snowdrift in Cold Spring Harbor, L. I.

Bertha Jacobsten was to be married Wednesday to Walter C. Ruerode of Brooklyn. The hour was 1:45. But Monday the Jacobstens found themselves snowbound.

Bertha telephoned Ruerode, "I still love you. I shall be at the church."

The Jacobstens waited until Wednesday for the snow to melt, but it didn't. At 6 a. m. Bertha and her father seized shovels. They plied them for 1,400 feet and reached a cleared road.

She reached the Brooklyn altar four hours late, but Ruerode had waited.

HENS ORDERED TO HATCH IN TIME TO MEET TRAINS

Columbus, O., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The state utilities commission ruled today that sitting hens would have to accommodate their hatchings to train schedules, or else——

A hatchery at Galesburg, near Toledo, asked the commission to change the schedule of trains serving that community so that chicks wouldn't be delayed in delivery. The train cruised through town at 8 a. m., the hatchery said, and their hens didn't like to hatch their broods at that hour.

The railroad protested the proposed change. The commission agreed with the railroad.

POLICEMAN FINDS A NEW USE FOR HIS SUSPENDERS

A policeman's stout suspenders have more uses than merely supporting a pair of trousers as Policeman John Corcoran proved yesterday afternoon. Summoned to Halsted street and Garfield boulevard to capture a frisky yearling steer which had escaped from the motor truck in which his owner, James Gut of La Crosse, Ind., was taking him to the stockyards, Corcoran bethought himself of his suspenders. While the animal made short dashes at pedestrians who crowded the intersection, Corcoran divested himself of his galluses, fashioned a loop, tossed it over the animal's horns, and brought the steer to bay.

2 Bandits Rob Loan Firm; Get $250 Cash and Checks

Two bandits stole $250 in cash and $650 in checks last night in a robbery in the offices of the Ondrejhlynka Building and Loan association at 2234 Chicago avenue. Wenzel Roth, 2255 Huron street, the manager, lost 65 cents of his own money in addition. As the bandits were about to depart, Mrs. Maria Hajek, 4346 West 25th street, entered. They ordered her to surrender her money, but didn't press their demands when she replied: "I haven't any. That's why I'm here—to get a loan."

JOBLESS, DIES BY HANGING.

Christian Gad, 55 years old, 1737 North Washtenaw avenue, hanged himself yesterday, supposedly while despondent over his unemployment. The body was found late in the day by a roomer.

NASH BID ON PWA CONTRACT PUT UP TO WASHINGTON

Roosevelt Frowns on Jobs to Committeemen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt was asked today what he thought of national committeemen bidding on and receiving municipal contracts, especially those financed with federal funds. The question, put by newspaper men, was believed to have applied to Patrick Nash, chairman of the Democratic party in Cook county and a national committeeman, who has bid for a contract to be let by the Chicago sanitary district.

Before replying the President made the reservation that his statement could not be applied directly to any specific situation or committeeman, then he added that he thought committeemen, in their capacity as business men, should not bid on local contracts paid for by the federal government.

The President declared that he thought national committeemen ought to choose between staying on the committee and bidding on such contracts. He said "that was pretty close tying in" when a committeeman bid on such a project.

Financed by the U. S.

The project in question in Chicago is the proposed branch of the west side sewer system to collect sewage from the loop district. This is a part of the sewage disposal program financed with the recent loan of $42,000,000 by the federal public works administration to the Chicago sanitary district.

The seven bids submitted were opened by the sanitary district trustees on Feb. 1. It was found that Nash Brothers had the low bid, at $1,124,024. The next in line was the Underground Construction company with a bid of $1,282,165, and the third lowest bidder was the S. A. Healy company with a bid of $1,297,235.

The bids were referred to Philip Harrington, chief engineer for the district. On Feb. 8 Harrington recommended that the contract be let to Nash Brothers as the lowest responsible bidder. The contract was let to Nash Brothers on that date, subject to the approval of the local PWA advisory officials, in keeping with the terms of the loan agreement between the federal government and the district.

Question Put Up to Ickes.

This approval has not been received and it was said in Washington today that the officials in Chicago had submitted the question of whether or not Nash Brothers should get the contract to Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior and public works administrator, because of "political implications."

This was two weeks ago, it is understood, and Ickes has not yet announced his decision. Late this afternoon Ickes was on a train bound for Chicago, ostensibly for a speaking engagement, although it was deemed possible that he might confer there with officials in regard to the Nash contract.

According to reports the Nash bid on the project was lower than the preliminary engineering estimates of both Harrington and the local resident engineering staff as to the probable costs of the project.

Details of Sewer Project.

The sewer in question consists of a siphon under the Chicago river near Taylor street connecting with another sewer and thence running north and into Franklin street to Wacker drive and under the lower level of Wacker drive to Michigan avenue. Branches will be installed in several of the east and west streets to bring the sewage originating near the river back to the main line sewer.

According to plans the main sewer will vary in size from 9 feet 4 inches in width at Taylor street to 7½ feet in width at Michigan avenue. It is said that approximately 600 persons will be employed directly on the project and in ancillary industries.

STATE CWA CHIEF

FRANK D. CHASE.

Frank D. Chase, executive director of the Illinois civil works administration, yesterday was appointed state administrator of the CWA by Harry L. Hopkins, federal civil works administrator, according to dispatches from Washington. Mr. Chase was in Indianapolis yesterday taking over details of his new duties from Howard O. Hunter, regional federal supervisor of the CWA, who had been acting state administrator for almost a month.

Mr. Hunter became acting administrator when the Illinois Emergency Relief commission resigned as a body as state administrators for the civil works administration a month ago. The resignation took effect upon the appointment of Col. Daniel I. Sultan, district army engineer, as civil works director in Cook county, over the heads of the state administration.

Mr. Chase tendered his resignation as state director of the CWA at that time, but it was not accepted. He became associated with the Illinois civil works administration during its inception in November, as chief engineer, and a few weeks later was appointed state director of the administration, in which capacity he took up most of the problems he will handle as administrator.

SHAW DECLARES ROOSEVELT IS "DOING WELL"

PANAMA, Feb. 23.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw, the Irish luminary of letters, passed through the canal today on the steamer Rangitane, en route to New Zealand on a vacation. He had words of tribute for President Roosevelt.

"He is struggling to extricate the country from the control of private interests, similar to the policies of Hitler and Doumergue, who both got a terrific majority because they promised the overthrow of parliaments which do nothing but prevent things being done," he said. "Mr. Roosevelt is doing well. He has advanced greatly since I was last in the United States."

Regarding the assassination of Augusto Sandino, Nicaraguan rebel leader, Shaw said: "It's all in the day's work for a rebel general, but we should shoot other generals, who are generally 50 years behind the times."

Sue to Oust Appointees of Oak Park Village Head

Quo warranto proceedings were instituted in Superior court yesterday, asking that two appointees of Willis McFeely, president of the Oak Park village board, be ousted from their positions. The action, brought by members of the village board through State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, is aimed at John F. Tyrrell, made corporation counsel, and Otto J. Eckert, member of the plumbing board of examiners. The suit asks that Fred W. Pringle be recognized as corporation counsel and Grover C. Scott as a member of the plumbing board.

GREEN GETS U. S. REPORT ON CWA CONTRACT QUIZ

Withholds Comment on S. Park Dirt Case.

United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green yesterday received a full report of the investigation of charges which led to cancellation by the Civil Works Administration on Jan. 26 of its share of contracts awarded to John P. Moriarty for black dirt to be used on south park projects.

The report was submitted to S. Norman Moe, chief of the Chicago division of investigation for the CWA.

Green Withholds Statement.

Mr. Green announced that he will make no statement until next week, after he has had time to determine whether evidence is sufficient to warrant its presentation for grand jury action. Mr. Moe also refused to discuss the findings. It was learned that he has not previously furnished information on the inquiry, as has been represented.

Reports yesterday indicated that the investigation orginated with another government agent who is said to have discovered irregularities while in the field on a roving assignment.

Discredit Collusion Hints.

Whether this took the form of material not up to specification or billing for dirt not delivered was not learned definitly. These reports tended to discredit earlier rumors that an unreasonable price and alleged collusion in bids brought about the inquiry. It is said that contracts and bids merely came in for surveillance in the natural course of investigation.

Mr. Moe's report consisted of 50 mimeographed pages, including numerous exhibits and forms. There also is said to be a statement by Moriarty, in which he offers a reduction of the contract price. A copy of the report was forwarded to Washington.

Expresses Faith in Donoghue.

Mayor Kelly, who is president of the south park board, issued a formal statement yesterday expressing "utmost confidence" in Supt. George T. Donoghue of the south parks and others handling south park contract matters. Mayor Kelly said he has been informed that the price stipulated in the contract is "very reasonable," and was surprised, he said, to hear of charges of collusive bidding.

Sweeping statements concerning CWA pay roll padding disclosures published in an afternoon paper were denied vigorously last night by Lt. Col. Daniel I. Sultan, chief engineer and administrator of the CWA in Cook county.

Col. Sultan explained that he directed paymasters to deliver checks in person to the workers on various projects "simply to forestall frauds. The same system for checking timekeepers was used on the Panama canal construction, he said.

FRANCE TO SPEND $195,000,000 FOR NEW AIR FORCE

PARIS, Feb. 23—(AP)—France today announced plans for a vast three year aviation program, to cost a billion francs [about $65,000,000] a year.

Gen. Victor Denain, minister of air, told the finance committee of the chamber of deputies that French military aviation was in an "extremely difficult" situation and promised that "lost ground will be regained." Through the adoption of model planes and improved morale, he asserted, the country's air forces will improve rapidly.

The program will be financed through a loan and is in addition to the 1,654,000,000 francs [$106,610,000] air budget. Some circles regard the step as another answer in France's refusal to continue "rearmament" talks with Germany.

IDENTIFIES WIDOW OF SLAIN GANGSTER AT SLAYING SCENE

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—"That's the girl——"

Isidor Moroh pointed a steady finger at Mrs. Lottie Coll, widow of the slain gangster, Vincent [Mad Dog] Coll, who with two men associates is on trial for her life in the Bronx County court.

Moroh, a money lender, had just related to Judge Harry Stackell and a jury how he had fought off two men and a woman who had tried to kidnap him the night of last June 21 when he had $923 cash in his pockets.

"——and they are the men."

Moroh pointed again, this time at Alfred Guarino and Joseph Ventre, both 23.

They, with the Coll girl, are accused of first degree murder in the death of Mollie Schwartz, 22, fatally wounded the night of the attempted holdup as she chatted in front of her home, on Wheeler avenue, the Bronx.

Moroh testified that he grappled with Ventre and threw him into the path of Guarino, who was armed with a revolver. As he fled he heard four shots fired. It was one of these shots, the prosecution contends, that killed Miss Schwartz.

NICARAGUA QUIET AFTER SLAYING OF REBEL SANDINO

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Still under a "state of siege," Managua and the surrounding territory was quiet and orderly today. Nothing of the trouble apparently anticipated by the government had followed upon the slaying of Gen. Augusto Sandino, the former rebel chief.

Sandino, who caused the American government a loss of 133 United States marines and several million dollars in the five year Nicaraguan campaign, was killed yesterday by a group of American trained national guardsmen, with his brother and two companions.

The government claimed the national guardsmen acted in spite of strict instructions to extend complete guarantees to Sandino. Government precautions, including the granting of extraordinary powers to President Juan B. Sacasa, were apparently directed against possible retaliation from Sandino's followers or else political troubles.

NATIONAL LABOR BOARD SETTLES STRIKE IN ELGIN

A strike of 89 employés of the Woodruff & Edwards foundry plant at Elgin, which has lasted since last September, was ordered called off yesterday by the national labor board, according to Washington dispatches.

The board ruled that the company shall immediately post a preferential list composed of all the employés appearing upon the pay roll last Sept. 8, and that those upon this list shall be reinstated before any new workers are employed. This ruling will reinstate 26 members of the International Molders' union who were allegedly discharged for taking part in union activities at the foundry.

The national board, while admitting there was bitterness between the strikers and the company, decided that there existed no substantial differences preventing a settlement of the strike.

Supreme Court Upholds Barrington Injunction

The state Supreme court at Springfield yesterday sustained the action of the Lake County Circuit court in making permanent an injunction restraining the village of Barrington from disposing of sewage in Flint creek, which flows through the grounds of the Barrington Country club. The injunction was granted by Judge Edward B. Shurtleff at the request of club officials.

will have reached $50,000. The orders which Hopkins plans to issue tomorrow, are reported to set forth the complete demobilization schedule for CWA in every state, between now and May 1, the date when civil works are to end.

In addition the orders will set forth the new and lower rate of pay for CWA, 30 cents an hour as a minimum, instead of the 40 or more cents. Working hours per week will also be prescribed.

Private Borrowers Shut Off.

Secretary Ickes' order shutting off easy money for all private borrowers except railroads, was a part of his slowing down on public works since the exhaustion of his funds. He now has left only those amounts which come back from revoked or defaulted loans.

Projects calling for 3½ billion dollars, however, are pending before PWA for approval, and the order excluding further private loans was the first step in weeding them out. The order, however, will not stop loans for low-cost housing projects which will be made out of a 100 million dollar fund already marked for that purpose.

FINDS UNWANTED CHILD IS SIGN OF MARITAL DISCORD

Mothers who do not want their children are usually disappointed in their husbands, a disappointment which they disguise either by cruelty or an over-protection of the child. Such was the conclusion of a study of unwelcome children conducted by Dr. H. W. Newell, of the Mental Hygiene clinic, Baltimore, described by him yesterday at the eleventh annual meeting of the American Orthopsychiatric association in the Palmer house. A lay definition of the word "orthopsychiatric" is "the straightening of mental kinks."

"Back of this unhappiness in marriage we find an emotional instability and immaturity of the parents, and find that they are decidedly neurotic, or psychiatric," said Dr. Newell. "This brings about a situation which results in suffering for the unwanted child.

"Many mothers punish their unwanted children severely, nag at them, and persist in calling them 'dumb.' On the other hand some mothers feel a sense of guilt because the child is unwanted and express an over-anxiety about them and give in to them easily."

TENSION BETWEEN LITHUANIA AND POLAND GROWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Feb. 23.—Renewed demonstrations by Lithuanian students against Poland, accompanied by an article in the semi-official paper Lietuvos Aidas today, are likely to aggravate the already strained relations between Lithuania and Poland.

The French journalist Henri de Chambon discussed the east European political situation in the Lietuvos Aidas. He argued that the establishment of a closer union between the Baltic states, France, and soviet Russia is essential. He added that such a union must be preceded by the creation of a Baltic bloc.

STOCK EXCHANGE HEAD SEES PERIL TO FREE SPEECH

Whitney Defends Fight Against Regulation.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—In one of the few interviews he has ever granted, Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange, said tonight that the right of free discussion of public questions has gone, and the constitutional right of free speech no longer exists in this country, if recent charges of propagandizing hurled at him were sustained by public opinion.

The charges were made by members of the senate banking and currency committee. Whitney said they were occasioned by letters addressed by him to heads of corporations whose securities were listed on the New York Stock exchange, calling their attention to the provisions of the pending securities bill which directly affected them and their securities.

Calls Charge Unfounded.

"I think the charge is unfounded," said Whitney. "I summarized the provisions of the bill and asked the presidents of corporations having stock listed on the New York Stock exchange to give the matter their personal consideration.

"I think every citizen has the right to call to the attention of other citizens the provisions of pending legislation which would affect them. In this case I feel the exchange was under a duty to do so.

"The corporations listed on the exchange had paid a fee to secure a public market for their securities. The pending bill would destroy this public market and would force many corporations to withdraw from listing. I think we would have been derelict in our duty if we had not called the bill to their attention. If this is propaganda, then the right of free discussion of public questions has gone and the constitutional right of free speech no longer exists."

Dictate Credit Policy.

Whitney said the proposed bill would hurt not only the business of brokers, but all American industry and business as well.

"The bill," he said, "although it purports to regulate stock exchanges, is actually cleverly devised to allow the federal trade commission to dominate and regulate all American business and industry, and to allow the federal trade commission to dictate the credit policy of our banking system with regard to security loans, which the Glass-Steagall bill vested in the federal reserve board."

Whitney said the collapse of 1933 was not due to the speculation in one or two alcohol stocks, but to other more important factors. He said security and commodity prices started to rise in April as a result of abandonment of the gold standard. The fear of an inflation of our currency stimulated business, and the earnings of corporations started to rise for the first time in nearly three years, he added.

Then Security Prices Rise.

"Naturally," he continued, "security prices likewise rose, but the increase in the security market was as nothing compared to the rise in commodity prices. Wheat sold at more than $1.20 a bushel, and other grains rose to equivalent levels. The stock exchange was not responsible for this.

"The collapse in July did not start in the stock market, but started in the grain market, where prices had reached an unsound level. The decline in commodity prices unsettled the stock market. It is to be noted that security prices have again returned to the level reached in July, whereas grain prices still are far below the peak reached in the July movement."

Want 18 Children Each, Girls Tell Questioners

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 23.—(AP)—They want eighteen children each. So said two of the 33 young women attending the "marriage university" conducted here by the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. Sixteen of those answering a questionnaire preferred three children and fifteen thought two children would be right.

U. S. BOARD RULES IN FAVOR OF LOCK FIRM EMPLOYES

Orders End to Strike at Rockford.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Ruling on a six month industrial dispute between workers and officials of the National Lock company of Rockford, Ill., the national labor board today charged the company with "studied hostility" to the purposes of the NRA and prescribed three steps looking to the resumption of normal conditions at the company's plant.

Under threat of court prosecution the labor board decreed that the strike, in which 400 men are said to be involved, shall end at once. The company was ordered to reinstate on its rolls all strikers who desire reinstatement, and was directed further to permit a federally conducted election among its employés for the purpose of selecting representatives to bargain collectively with the company management.

Strike Began Aug. 31.

The strike, according to the labor board's review of the case, began on Aug. 31, 1933, when workers walked out in protest against the discharge of the president and another active member of a recently formed federal workers' union in affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

In its ruling the board found that the company "interfered with its employés' right to organize to bargain collectively," a right which the much disputed section 7-A of the National Recovery act seeks to preserve. The compay, it was charged, likewise posted a bulletin in its factory which contained a "serious misquotation" of the NRA labor provision, and in addition seriously hampered the government's efforts at arbitration by obtaining an injunction restraining the Chicago regional labor board from seeking a settlement of the strike.

"The national labor board and its regional boards were established by the President of the United States for the purpose of maintaining industrial peace," said the board's ruling, signed by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York. "To restrain a disinterested agency of the government from investigating the causes of an industrial dispute and seeking to compose the differences between the parties to the dispute manifests a lack of coöperation in the recovery program.

Charges Company Interferes.

"This board finds as a fact that the National Lock company interfered with the right of its employés to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing."

The position of the company regarding federal efforts to arbitrate the situation was outlined in a telegram sent by officials of the concern to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief.

"We are now and at all times have been willing to deal with our employés individually or collectively," they declared, "but we resent and refuse to accept interference from outside labor forces, who are not in sympathy with our mode of operation and whom we refuse to trust with our business secrets."

The board's ruling did not set a date for the election which it has ordered to be held.

In a brief ceremony Senator Thon told Judge Frank M. RACINE INDUSTRY PARALYZED BY LABOR DISPUTES

Case Works Employes Picket Plants.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Racine, Wis., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—More trouble tonight apparently was brewing along Racine's industrial front as 1,000 or more employés of the J. I. Case company began to picket both the south side factory and the main plant.

A. W. Mitchell, chief organizer of the Racine county workers' committee, which is sponsoring the labor movement for higher wages, declared the south works had shut down completely, and that at the downtown plant only 75 persons were working in the toolroom and the experimental department. All other departments are closed, he said. Employés of the printing department, he asserted, walked out at noon.

The Case company difficulty, he announced, no longer is a strike but a lockout. He declared that in effect employés at the south works had been fired.

A so-called "passive" strike on the part of the employés led up to the situation.

Punch Clock; Don't Work.

Since Tuesday 950 men at the plant have walked into the factory, punched the time clock, sat around in the factory playing cards or gossiping until it was time to go home, and then punched the time clock again on the way out without having done any work.

Today the men were permitted to enter the factory as usual. When it came time to punch the clock at noon they found their time cards had been withdrawn. That, the employés committee said, is equivalent to discharge.

The workers were paid for their time until Feb. 15, but they still have several days' salary coming.

A dispute developed in the factory when a foreman, according to the workers' committee, accused one man of being a communist. The employés then obtained a big American flag attached to a ten foot pole and brought that into the factory to emphasize their Americanism and their announced antagonism to communism.

March from Factory.

The entire group marched out of the factory with the flag at their head. They placed the flag in a field facing the factory.

Factory officials refused to discuss the situation.

The workers' committee continued its strike at the Oster Manufacturing company, which is closed, and at the B. D. Eisendrath tannery, where employés who have refused to join the strike have slept and eaten for the last several days rather than brave the picket line.

It was announced at the committee headquarters that the NRA regional labor board in Chicago had "intimated" that it soon would take a hand in the dispute. The committee has protested in a telegram to President Roosevelt and the regional board that the factories are violating NRA provisions.

The American Federation of Labor union is conducting its own strike at the Nash Motors company Racine plant and keeping widely aloof from the workers' committee.

Some union men refer to the workers' committee as "outlaws," while the employers, according to the committee, stamp the new organization as "communists" in an effort to discredit them.

The committee is organizing so-called "vertical" unions trying to enroll all employés of every department in industry, from white collar workers down, into a single union, as contrasted with organization by crafts.

"The crafts type of union is going to be obsolete," declared Harold Cranefield, attorney for the workers' committee. "The rapid growth of our organization is largely due to the dilatory tactics of the A. F. L., which has been opposed to the vertical union."

Active as Socialists.

Several of the new organization's leaders previously had been active in Socialist party circles. Mitchell was a candidate for alderman on the Socialist party ticket two years ago and Jack Duller was the Racine party secretary. The fact that both are Socialists, they declared, has nothing to do with their activities in the workers' organization.

"This is not a political organization," Mitchell explained. "It is purely a labor movement and there is no politics in it."

3,000 MEN STRIKE IN TOLEDO PLANTS MAKING AUTO PARTS

Toledo, O., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Demanding an increase in wages and recognition of their union 3,000 workers of four automotive parts plants went on strike here today.

The first to leave their benches were 2,000 at the plant of the Spicer Manufacturing company. Then followed 440 workers from the plant of the Bingham Stamping company; 330 from the Logan Gear company and 250 from plant No. 2 of the Electric Auto Lite company.

The workers are demanding a minimum wage of 65 to 70 cents an hour as compared to 40 to 46 cents per hour which they have been receiving, and the right to have their own rather than a company union; to receive their pay each Saturday instead of every other Saturday, and other minor changes in working conditions.

JAIL 2 SUSPECTS IN ROBBERY AND BEATING OF PAIR

Two bandits alleged to have beaten a druggist until he and his school teacher wife disclosed the hiding place of tax warrants and Liberty bonds were in custody at the detective bureau yesterday while police sought the third member of the gang.

Those held were William King, 42 years old, 1034 Belmont avenue, and Harry Burns, 32 years old, 3231 North Clark street, both ex-convicts. They were accused of having beaten Joseph P. Vovesny Jr., and threatened his wife, Rose, a school teacher, on Jan. 26 at the couple's home, 5680 Forest Glen avenue. The robbers obtained $5,000 in Liberty bonds and tax warrants valued at $250, police said. Two cases of whisky worth $150 also were taken.

Pending the capture of the third bandit, said to be known as "Kid" Casper, the police would not elaborate on details of the robbery, but it was reported that the band was traced when they tried to realize on the tax warrants. Vovesny, who was beaten on the head by the bandits, owns a drug store at 3309 Milwaukee avenue.

POLICE HEROISM AWARDS MADE FOR THREE YEARS

Win Lambert Tree and Harrison Medals.

The Lambert Tree and Carter Harrison gold medal awards to police officers for outstanding heroism in 1930, 1931, and 1932 were announced yesterday by Richard J. Collins, president of the civil service commission, and Joseph P. Geary, civil service commissioner. The awards alternate so that in one year the police department gets one award and the fire department the other.

Police Sergeant Herman Meyer and Patrolman John P. Conway were awarded the Harrison medal and Patrolman Edward Hanus the Lambert Tree medal. Sergt. Meyer won THE TRIBUNE hero prize of $100 in February, 1930. The medals will be presented by Mayor Kelly at an early meeting of the city council.

Bandits Enter Auto.

Sergt. Meyer's act of heroism was as follows: On Feb. 3, 1930, while off duty and in civilian clothes, he was sitting with two friends in an automobile when two bandits, both carrying guns, entered the car and sat in the front seat with Meyer.

As the car was driven away the policeman maneuvered so that he could draw his gun. He shot and wounded the driver, and then, seizing the gun of the bandit on his right, killed him. The wounded bandit was identified as a participant in a robbery and murder in Kentucky and sentenced to death.

Captures Holdup Man.

The Carter Harrison medal was awarded Patrolman Conway for slaying a bandit and capturing another who had robbed a grocery store at 5509 West North avenue on June 4, 1932. The bandits were followed in an automobile by a clerk, who picked up the policeman. At an intersection Conway engaged in a gun battle and captured his men.

Patrolman Edward Hanus was awarded the Lambert Tree medal for killing a bandit and wounding and capturing another in a private home at 3240 Armitage avenue on Dec. 18, 1931. He was off duty and visiting with friends when one bandit knocked at the front door and the other at the back door. The policeman killed the bandit at the front door and then captured the other.

GOV. CHAS. W. BRYAN CANDIDATE FOR U. S. SENATE NOMINATION

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Gov. Charles W. Bryan, thrice chief executive of Nebraska and brother of the late William Jennings Bryan, announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the United States senate to "assist President Roosevelt in restoring prosperity."

Only last fall Bryan said the national administration's recovery program had turned the farm belt into "a seething mass of unrest" and that the farmer's throat was being "cut from both ears." Today he advanced as his platform virtually the same program he espoused last fall.

Soon after the 67 year old governor revealed his plans the man he appointed to fill a senatorial vacancy last spring, 80 year old Senator W. H. Thompson of Grand Island, Neb., announced he would not be a candidate.

Along with inflation by increasing currency, Bryan reiterated his belief the soldiers' bonus should be paid "at the earliest possible moment" and advocated its payment with the new money.

YOUNG MOTHER HELD TO JURY IN AUTO ROBBERY

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Stolen, 34; recovered, 34; stripped 5 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Thursday].

A blonde, fashionably dressed mother of two children who identified herself as Mrs. Helen Hayes, 21 years old, of the Sheridan-Plaza hotel was held to the grand jury yesterday when she admitted stealing the car of a friend and attempting to sell it "to buy prettier clothes." Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Automobile court set bond at $2,500 on a charge of auto theft.

Sheffield avenue police on Thursday were summoned to an automobile agency where Mrs. Hayes offered to sell for $350 a car worth considerably more. Sergt. William L. Cox learned that the car had been stolen Feb. 19 from John R. Dudley, 1014 South Wabash avenue, and arrested Mrs. Hayes.

"My husband is an engineer in China," Mrs. Hayes testified. "He sends me money, but not enough; I wanted prettier clothes. I knew Mr. Dudley, so I borrowed his car and had duplicate keys made. I used them to steal his car.

Judge Graber ordered that Mrs. Hayes be given a mental examination.

LOOP BANK PAYS PERSONALTY TAX BILL OF $231,900

The first large 1933 personal property tax bill was paid at the office of County Treasurer McDonough yesterday by the Harris Trust and Savings bank. The bank paid $116,497 in cash and the remainder, $115,403 in 1933 tax anticipation warrants. The warrants were in large denominations and included issues of the city, board of education, county, and several of the park systems. The personal property tax bills still are being mailed out to most of the city and country tax townships.

LAUD ASSEMBLY FOR FIRST CUT IN COSTS SINCE WAR

L. V. L. Praises Horner for Pointing Way.

Substantial praise for constructive legislation and economy was given the present general assembly yesterday in a report issued by the Legislative Voters' league. Much of the credit was awarded to Gov. Horner for his influence in these directions.

The league said that this assembly is the first since the war to reduce the cost of government in Illinois. Then the report continued:

"It enacted a greater variety of constructive legislation than any other previous legislature within half a century. It doubtless will be remembered longest as the assembly which, in cooperation with a governor pledged to retrenchment, took effective action to lighten the heavy burden of taxation in the state."

Members' Work to Be Reviewed.

Only the introduction of the report was made public. Three other sections reviewing the records of members whose terms expire are to be released during the next few days.

Getting down to the figures on retrenchment, the league found that the 1933 biennial appropriations for carrying on the regular work of the state government—that is, exclusive of appropriations for roads from special funds, for waterways and for bond principal and interest—was approximately $20,000,000 less than that voted by the regular session of 1931.

Comparison of Appropriations.

The figures showing the approximate cost of carrying on the state government during each biennium since the war and the 1933 appropriation for that purpose were cited as follows:

1919 [Lowden]	$ 62,109,030
1921 [Small]	81,438,267
1923 [Small]	85,505,368
1925 [Small]	97,168,320
1927 [Small]	108,663,348
1929 [Emmerson]	122,613,722
1931 [Emmerson]	128,105,630
1933 [Horner]	108,667,050

The first Horner appropriation total was $19,438,580 below the last Emmerson total, the rate of decrease being 15 per cent.

Stops Increases in Pay Rolls.

And there was a corresponding cut in the amount appropriated for salaries and wages. The last Lowden appropriation in 1919 for this purpose was $14,293,277. Small and Emmerson both raised this figure until it was more than doubled in 1931, the total for that biennium having been $29,948,270. The current biennial appropriation for pay rolls is $25,562,962, a decrease of 14.6 per cent.

The report also accredited Speaker Roe with reducing the expenses of the house of representatives, but criticised the senate for raising its costs.

The league listed twenty-four bills, groups of enacted bills, and resolutions as constructive legislation. Among them were the Ward constitutional convention resolution, the Ragan Chicago park consolidation bill, the sales tax, the civil practice act, the corporation act, the Ryan automobile anti-theft bill, the Barr child welfare bills, the Burns economy measures, the Kerner-Skarda act, and the repeal of the state prohibition laws.

Praise Repeal of Immunity.

It also commended the repeal of the Small immunity act and the Crowe-Carlstrom special state's attorney law. It criticised the assembly for not passing the Schnackenberg bill for permanent registration of Chicago voters, the Rennick election consolidation bills, the Gurning corrupt practices bill, and the Monroe bills to establish civil service over Cook county and Chicago sanitary district employés.

Among the bills the league listed as bad legislation defeated were the Huebsch bill to reduce the powers of the courts in labor disputes, the Lantz bills for poor relief by direct taxation, and the Sunderland dog racing bill. The last of these was vetoed by Gov. Horner.

The report gave particular credit to Senator Richey V. Graham [Dem., Chicago], president pro tempore of the upper house, for the adoption of a long urged addition to the senate rules requiring committees to record and file records of all preceedings and for cutting down the list of this chamber's standing committees from 37 to 29. It also praised David E. Shanahan [Rep., Chicago], former speaker, for "saving" the appropriation for Illinois' representation at A Century of Progress.

Criticize Tax Commissioners.

One of the bitterest bits of condemnation in the report concerned the regular session activities of two members of the state tax commission, Scott W. Lucas and Barnet Hodes.

"A disgraceful episode," read a part of this section," developed in connection with the discreditable lobbying methods said to have been employed by two members of the state tax commission in efforts to secure votes for a bill enlarging the powers of that commission."

The league also described as "unfortunate" an "increased antagonism against Chicago fomented by certain downstate interests and legislators for selfish reasons."

"The league," read this criticism, "deplores acceptance of the narrow gauge leadership that has not hesitated to stir up sectional prejudices for selfish political purposes."

First Official Illinois Liquor License Issued

The first state liquor license issued in Chicago was obtained yesterday by Herman Schmidt of the Otto Schmidt Wine company, importing distributors. Since passage of the law Jan. 31, liquor dealers have been issued temporary permits, pending investigation, upon presentation of their city license receipts. The actual issuance of licenses began yesterday.

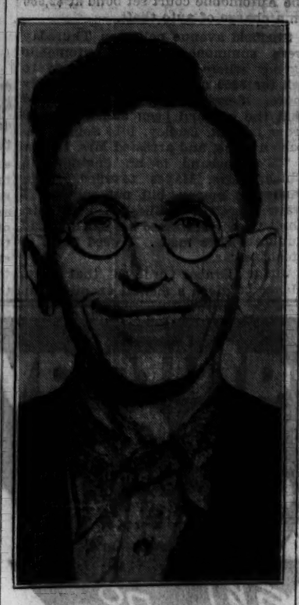
PASTOR ACCUSED



THE REV. L. H. SHOCKLEY.
[Acme Photo.]

PASTOR INDICTED AS POISONER OF THREE IN TEXAS

Pampa, Tex., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Rev. L. H. Shockley, 50 year old itinerant preacher, was charged today with the poison deaths of three persons and a plot to take the lives of four other relatives by marriage in 1930.

The county grand jury indicted him for the fatal poisoning of W. T. Hudgins, his father-in-law, Terry Erwin, son of his wife's sister, and Mrs. Terry Erwin.

An attempt to kill by poison Lloyd and Ernest Erwin, Terry's brothers, their mother, Mrs. Nora Erwin, and her daughter, Mrs. Ruby Bean, was charged.

The indictment alleged the poison was mixed with flour which the family used.

Investigators offered as the asserted motive for the poisonings a desire of the preacher to come into the possession of the $10,000 estate of his father-in-law.

"It was that flour that poisoned us," Mrs. Nora Erwin told authorities. "Some of the bread we ate was fed to my father's dog and cat and they both died. It was just an accident that any of us lived."

M. D. Bentley, real estate man at McLean, where all of them lived, said the Hudgins estate consisted of about three sections of land and some money. Bentley was one of several private investigators who worked on the case.

Claude Williams, a McLean attorney, promised the Gray county sheriff that he would surrender Shockley.

The Evangelist had been at liberty on $8,000 bond granted after the grand jury indicted him recently for Hudgins' death. He was arrested Feb 12, at Springfield, Mo., and returned to Pampa.

Shockley said with emphasis, "I plead not guilty," when he was arraigned on the old indictment. He insisted that he was innocent and said he was willing to face his accusers and match their reputation and character with his.

Hudgins died Nov. 6, 1930, Mrs. Terry Erwin died the day of Hudgin's funeral Nov. 7, and her husband died Dec. 31, 1930, in Oklahoma City. The others poisoned have never fully recovered.

SLAIN SURGEON'S SCHOOLMATE HELPS DEFENSE

Greenwood, Miss., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A physician, who described himself as "just a country doctor," today took issue with the state's medical experts, who testified in the murder trial of Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean that they believed Dr. John Preston Kennedy died last August of mercurial poisoning.

Dr. Dean, charged with having given Kennedy a poisoned whisky highball, smiled with the rest of the courtroom as Dr. John Martin of Pope, Miss., appearing for the defense, said he was a country doctor, and spoke lightly of leading Greenwood physicians who had appeared for the state.

Of one of the state's star witnesses, he said, "I never heard of him until I saw his name in the newspaper," and of another, "I figured he was just another country doctor like the rest of us."

Testifying to Dr. Kennedy's "drinking habits," Dr. Martin said he and the dead surgeon were schoolmates.

Although a state objection prevented his testifying about "drinking at school," Dr. Martin said he had seen Kenndy drunk in recent years, and that "on one occasion, I suspected him of taking a narcotic to steady himself because of the liquor."

FOILED KIDNAPER, LACY, IS LINKED TO OTHER CRIMES

James Lacy, alias Jack Wyman,, who, with Charles Mayo, was frustrated in an amateurish attempt to kidnap E. P. Adler, Iowa publisher, several days ago, was described yesterday as a wife deserter, ex-convict and bank robbery suspect.

According to Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan, who is preparing to submit Lacy's case to the grand jury for indictment, Lacy left his wife and two children in Tinley Park, Ill., five years ago. In 1929, as Wyman, he was sentenced to the penitentiary at Bismarck, N. D., for forgery. He was paroled in 1930. The bank holdup in which he is suspected was committed a year ago.

Mayo, Lacy's partner in the Adler kidnap plot, committed suicide by hanging himself in a police cell Thursday. Mayo was a member of one of the oldest families of Howeilton, Ala.

WILLETT CALLED A MILLION DOLLAR HUSBAND BY WIFE

Alienation Suit Mentioned in Alimony Hearing.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett of penthouse fame, 2130 Lincoln Park West, declared yesterday that her husband, Howard L. Willett, 49 year old head of a trucking company, is "worth a million dollars as a husband," aside from his financial worth. She made the statement on the witness stand in the Superior court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort in a hearing on her plea for $25,000 a year temporary alimony pending her separate maintenance suit.

Her statement concerning her husband's worth was in reply to a question put by Attorney Jay Fred Reeve, representing Willett, asking her about the million dollar alienation of affections suit she has pending against Mrs. Mary Cave Hall, wealthy widow of 5490 South Shore drive.

First Mention of Suit.

It was the first time the alienation of affections suit has been alluded to directly since the hearing began more than two weeks ago before Judge Desort.

Mrs. Willett resumed the witness stand late in the day after Willett completed his testimony regarding his financial affairs, which, he claims, do not warrant his paying her more than the $918 a month he voluntarily has allowed her since their separation in January, 1933.

On cross-examination by Attorney Reeve, Mrs. Willett at first answered questions regarding her suit against Mrs. Hall with reluctance. More than once she reproved Attorney Reeve for insisting on discussion of the matter, saying such discussion was "very poor taste."

"There is a lawsuit," she said when asked if she had any claims against Mrs. Hall, "for a million dollars, and my husband has just disclosed on the witness stand that he was worth a million dollars."

Questions Bring Laughter.

Questions put to her by Attorney Reeve following this statement, and her answers, included:

Q.—O, you are suing for the cash value of his worth, then? A.—[Rippling laughter only.]

JUDGE DESORT: I suppose he's worth his weight in gold.

MRS. WILLETT: [first replying to the court's sally with a gurgle of laughter.] You know, this is very poor taste to discuss this matter in court, Mr. Reeve.

ATTORNEY REEVE: You are suing for one million dollars for alienation of his affections, aren't you? A.—He's worth that much as a husband, not just for his money.

Q.—Is it your present intention t[o] remain married to Mr. Willett? A.—[Raising her carefully plucked eyebrows and parting her well rouged lips] I want to.

Q.—You stated in court here that you wanted him to come back. Did you mean you wanted him to come back before or after your case against Mrs. Hall goes to trial? I don't think you made that statement in good faith. A.—From the time he left home [the penthouse at 2130 Lincoln Park West] I've begged him to return.

Attorney Benjamin B. Davis, of the law firm of Socrates, Davis, & Cohen, representing Mrs. Willett, then spoke up. "We'll let Mr. Willett return this afternoon if he wants to come home. We're ready for him any time," he said.

Mrs. Hall Mentioned.

Mrs. Hall's name first came into the testimony when, after Mrs. Willett had testified on re-direct examination that her total debts for the year 1933 were $7,374, to support her contention that she could not live on $918 a month. Attorney Reeve asked her if she were not a "garden architect."

"I am no longer a garden architect. I wanted to be," Mrs. Willett said, her manner one of wistfulness.

ATTORNEY REEVE: Didn't you get $2,000 for designing a garden in 1931? A.—I did that for a friend and I gave it to her as a gift.

Q.—Who was that friend?

MRS. WILLETT [turning to Judge Desort]—Do I have to answer? After Judge Desort indicated that she must, Mrs. Willett continued.

"It was Mrs. David Hall," she said. [Mary Cave Hall is the widow of David Hall.] "I sent her a bill for $2,100 for a design for her garden. She said she didn't owe it, and her attorney, Alice Greenacre [who represents Mrs. Hall in the alienation suit], who has always been Mr. Willett's lawyer, too, sent me a bill for $2,500 for a skeleton will she drew up."

Q.—Where did you make this design for her garden? A.—At her summer home in Lake Villa.

Later, she said, she withdrew her bill for the design.

Attorney Reeve, over Attorney Davis' objection, asked Mrs. Willett if she did not want to amend her separate maintenance bill to one of divorce, to which she replied with decision, "No!"

At Attorney Davis' continued objections to his line of questioning Attorney Reeve said:

"My idea is that Mrs. Willett and Davis want to show by their statements that Willett is foolish not to return to his wife——"

Confirms the Point.

MRS. WILLETT (interrupting)—I still think so, too.

Q.—Do you object to the publicity in this case? A.—Very much.

Q.—Why did the divorce negotiations break off? A.—Because Mr. Willett took Nathan William MacChesney (her attorney in the negotiations) to lunch at the Tavern club.

Q.—Didn't you break on the question of how much? A.—No, not on any specific amount, but Mr. Willett made the comment, "I must go to May a rich man."

Attorneys for Mrs. Willett later declared that "May" alluded to Mrs. Hall.

Judge Desort continued the hearing to next Thursday afternoon.

U. S. TO LET WHISKY IN FROM CANADA TO BREAK HIGH PRICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Joseph H. Choate Jr., federal alcohol control administrator, today announced that he has paved the way for importation of 25 million gallons of Canadian whisky to break the prevailing high domestic price of liquor.

Before granting permission to three great Canadian whisky trusts to bring their stocks across the border he forced them to cut their prices 25 per cent, Mr. Choate announced.

For the first time the Canadian whisky companies will actually be allowed to import their liquor into this country themselves. Previously it could not be brought in unless some American distiller or blender ordered it.

This procedure choked the imports down to a trickle, according to Mr. Choate.

Hiram Walker, Canadian Industrial Alcohol, and Seagrams are the three huge Canadian companies involved in the deal. They are to finance their own importing, including the payment of tariff.

JAPS PROPOSE U. S. AND TOKIO 'DIVIDE' PACIFIC

TOKIO, Feb. 24.—[Saturday]—(AP)—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota in the house of peers today discussed the possibility of an agreement between Japan and America to divide the Pacific ocean into two spheres of interest.

Baron Toshiatsu Sakamoto, retired vice-admiral, asked in an interpellation:

"Why could not Japan recognize America's supremacy in the eastern Pacific in return for American recognition of Japanese supremacy in the western Pacific?"

Hirota replied:

"If America is satisfied to conclude an agreement of such a nature, I do not believe it would be difficult."

Rumanian Chief Seriously Ill with an Ear Infection

BUCHAREST, Feb. 23.—(AP)—An ear specialist was called from Vienna today to confer with physicians here relative to the condition of Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu, whose ear infection has become much worse. It was necessary to lance the ear last night. Should the specialist decide that a mastoid operation is necessary, it is expected that Titulescu will resign his post and retire from politics temporarily.

MILK COMPANIES, DRIVERS SPLIT ON NEW WAGE SCALE

Continue Meet Hoping to Break Deadlock.

After deliberating several hours yesterday in the Stevens hotel representatives of the Chicago milk distributors and the union milk wagon drivers continued further efforts to agree on a new wage scale until tomorrow.

Each side had present twenty representatives, and it was agreed that when the conferences are resumed the number will be reduced to six representing the employers and six from the union. Little progress, it was indicated, toward reaching a satisfactory settlement had been made at yesterday's session.

Urge Lower Pay Scale.

The employers offered the argument that, since the price of milk at retail, delivered, has been lowered to 9 cents a quart and 6 cents a pint, while the compensation of the farm producers is fixed at $1.70 a hundred [3.7 cents a quart], it is both just and necessary that the drivers take a cut in their present $40 a week scale.

"Distribution costs must be reduced in Chicago to meet competition," said H. Stanley Wanzer, president of the Milk Council. "As labor covers a large percentage of these costs, it must recognize its responsibility to the public and its obligation to employers in working out a solution of the problem. We believe a large majority of our employés understand the situation and are ready to act soundly on it."

In response to this statement, Leslie G. Goudie, president of the joint teamsters council and one of the principal representatives of the drivers, declared that the drivers have already taken a 22½ per cent cut in their pay and that the request to absorb more cuts was "incomprehensible."

Drivers Stand Pat.

"It is contrary to the President's recovery program," he asserted. "The employés are not responsible for independents taking away the business of the distributors. Our men have already voted not to take a cut and although that was several weeks ago nothing has occurred since to cause them to change their decision."

The employers pointed out that, when the retail price of milk was 9 cents, farmers were getting only $1.45 a hundred pounds. They added that, with their present disbursements to farm producers and their workers, they are operating at a loss.

CHIEFS OF G. O. P. DROP CAPPER FOR AIDING NEW DEAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Senator Arthur Capper, recently appointed to the Republican senatorial campaign committee, has been passed over by Chairman Daniel O. Hastings of that committee in choosing a special "executive committee" to take active charge of the campaign, on the ground that he is disqualified by his "Democratic" utterances of late.

The Kansan in a recent speech warmly supported "the redistribution of wealth," which he said was the objective of Democratic policies.

This and other statements by Senator Capper aroused the ire of the Republicans directing the house and senate campaigns. The decision to shelve the Kansan as a member of the committee of five senators who will shape the policies of the contest was made after Senator Hastings, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, and Representative Chester C. Bolton of Ohio, chairman of the house committee, declared they would conduct a joint campaign independent of the national committee.

Senator Peter Norbeck, who says he is a "Theodore Roosevelt Republican," will succeed Senator Capper.

Suppose a child should tell Mother she was

OLD-FASHIONED

NOT old-fashioned in most things, you can be sure. Mother's home is modern. Her clothes are in style. The family car is the latest model. And she likes to feel that her children have up-to-date care.

But she still has the idea that winter meals must always be hot, heavy and monotonous. It's just a habit, of course. A hand-me-down from the age of warming-pans and red-flannel underwear. But young appetites know! They demand variety—something fresh and crisp. And they're right. Today, with our comfortably heated houses and closed cars, we don't need old-fashioned menus all the time.

Serve a modern winter breakfast. Crisp, delicious Kellogg's Corn Flakes, with milk or cream and a bit of fruit. See how eagerly your family enjoys it. A nourishing breakfast, too. Rich in energy. Easily, quickly digested. Remember, these crisp, appetizing flakes generate as much body-heat as many hot dishes. And they're so economical—so easy to prepare. No cooking or trouble to serve.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes are good any time. A refreshing lunch for business men. An ideal bedtime snack.

Always oven-fresh, flavor-perfect. Winter or summer, the leading food of their kind in the world! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MANY MILLIONS IN FUNDS RULED BY 'DEAD HANDS'

Over Billion Locked Up in Foundations.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(ARTICLE NO. 2.)

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Capital in excess of a billion dollars is estimated to be tied up in foundations in the United States, most of it apparently exempt from taxation. Some of the funds have been set up by wealthy persons now living, but the bulk of the endowments have been established by persons now departed, hence the growing protest against the "dead hand" striving to run mankind from beyond the grave.

An inquiry by the Twentieth Century fund disclosed that as of 1931, 108 foundations had known capital funds totaling $770,863,000. In all 207 foundations were canvassed but almost half of them did not give information sufficient for detailed analysis. The Russell Sage foundation in 1930 compiled a list of 152, not including community trusts, which have been increasing. Some research workers estimate that the total foundations now number 300 or more.

New York Has 55.

New York leads with 55 foundations with aggregate capital of $616,342,000 in the list of the 20th Century club as of 1931. Next is Washington with seven, representing $52,097,000. Chicago had five funds in the list, with capital of $22,013,000.

The grants in 1931 by 102 foundations were $54,604,600. Of this $38,185,000 came out of income and $16,113,000 out of principal. Income had declined, due to the depression, being 24 per cent less than in 1930. Figures for the last two years have not been compiled, but the surmise is they would show still further reduction, due to general financial conditions.

The Carnegie, Rockefeller, and Sage foundations, the most widely known, are exempt from taxes on their capital, according to their officials, and the assumption is expressed by the experts that other foundations presumably are exempt as falling into the philanthropical or educational category.

Twenty Largest Listed.

The huge sums tied up may be seen from the following list of the twenty largest foundations in order of rank, with their capital as of 1931:

Rank.	Capital.	*Pct.
1—Carnegie Corp. of New York	$161,302,363	21.0
2—Rockefeller foundation	142,675,978	18.5
3—Duke endowment	75,091,840	9.7
4—General education board	49,792,285	6.4
5—Commonwealth fund	43,430,252	5.6
6—Carnegie Institution of Washington	35,413,454	4.6
7—Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching	31,824,500	4.1
8—Russell Sage foundation	13,668,200	1.8
9—Buhl foundation	12,823,391	1.7
10—Carnegie Endowment International Peace	11,720,978	1.5
11—Millbank Memorial fund	10,560,100	1.4
12—Julius Rosenwald fund	10,317,759	1.3
13—Falk foundation	10,000,000	1.3
14—Children's Fund of Michigan	9,440,101	1.2
15—New York foundation	8,800,000	1.1
16—New York Community Trust	8,039,798	1.1
17—Guggenheim foundation	8,035,080	1.0
18—Spelman fund of New York	6,188,424	0.8
19—Winifred Masterson Burke foundation	6,000,000	0.8
20—Carnegie Hero fund	5,750,000	0.8
Total 20 largest foundations	$660,874,501	87.5

*Per cent of capital of 108 foundations.

A foundation is defined by the 20th Century Fund, which includes Newton D. Baker, Roscoe Pound, and Owen D. Young among its directors, as an incorporated charitable trust embodying three essential characteristics. It must be a separate body with its own board of directors; it must be set up not to make money, but to disburse it; it must disburse its money not exclusively in operating its own activities, but at least in part through grants to outside beneficiaries.

Seven Largest Grants.

The seven largest grants in 1931 were paid by the following foundations:

1—General Education board [Rockefeller]	$15,876,000
2—Rockefeller Foundation	12,850,313
3—Carnegie Corp. of New York	5,420,893
4—Duke Endowment	3,754,592
5—Julius Rosenwald Fund	2,367,409
6—Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching	1,731,752
7—Carnegie Institution of Washington	1,465,782

Of the foundations anayzed, 55 were in the field of general education, 49 in social welfare, 48 in medicine and public health, 31 in child welfare, 26 in esthetics, 14 in international relations, 2 in birth control, and 1 in prohibition.

As to the amounts disbursed by the groups on the 20th Century Fund's list the ten leading fields were as follows:

Medicine and public health	$17,144,000
General education	13,579,000
Social service	5,842,000
Physical sciences	4,673,000
Social welfare	3,482,000
Individual assistance	1,964,000
International relations	1,851,000
Child welfare	1,206,000
Esthetics	982,000
Government	869,000

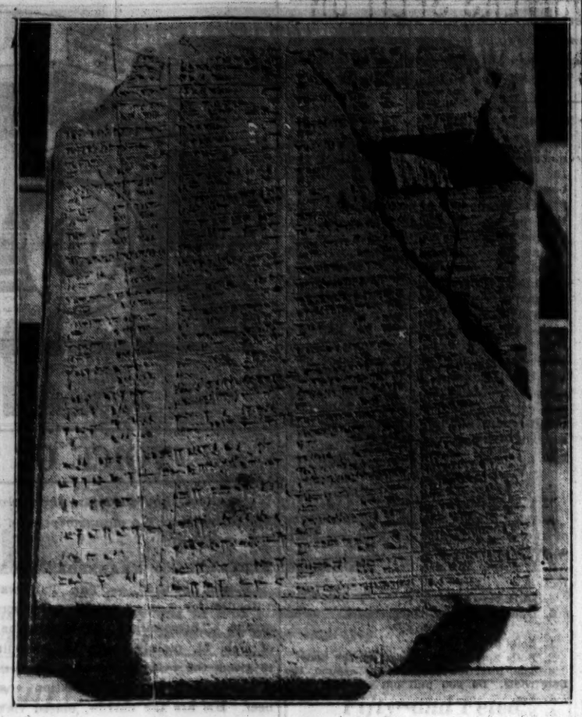
Activities Are Farflung.

The sun, it seems, never sets on the activities of the Rockefeller Foundation, which is separate from the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. Both income and principal of the foundation's general fund are available for appropriation.

In this it is unlike many other funds in which only income is to be expended.

The Julius Rosenwald fund was incorporated in 1917 for the well being of mankind. Mr. Rosenwald made a condition that both principal and interest must be expended within 25 years after his death. For ten years the fund limited its activity almost exclusively to the Negro rural school program in the south, and by 1929 4,371 schools had been built with a pupil capacity of 550,000. The fund has enlarged its work to include support of clinics and other medical service to persons of moderate means and to county library service in the southern states.

Tablet Gives History of Ancient Kings



Tablet giving summary of the reigns of 95 kings of Assyria which has been sent to the Oriental institute by excavators working at Khorsabad. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

BREASTED BRINGS RECORD OF 'LOST' ASSYRIAN KINGS

Sheds a New Light on Antiquity.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Prof. James H. Breasted, director of the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago, returned to Chicago from the east yesterday bringing an ancient Assyrian tablet which orientalists believe to be one of the most important archeological discoveries in recent years.

Previous to the finding of this tablet historians had known little of the succession of Assyrian kings. The newly discovered piece reveals the names and succession of Assyrian rulers from the 27th century to the 8th century B. C.

Found in Ancient Capital.

The discovery was made by the Assyrian expedition of the Oriental institute, under the direction of Dr. Henry Frankfort. While exploring the site of the ancient capital of Assyria, now known as Khorsabad, Iraq, Gordon Loud, a member of the expedition, discovered a number of colophons or tail piece ornaments found at the ends of books.

This discovery led members of the expedition to believe that they had discovered the site of King Sargon's royal library. This library was removed to Nineveh by Sargon's son when the capital was established there.

Record of 95 Kings.

The tablet was discovered in rubbish over the old library site, apparently overlooked by the ancient movers. The tablet is 5½ inches by 7¾ inches in size. It contains in its 350 lines of well preserved cuniform, or wedged shaped, writing the summary of the reigns of 95 kings. Until this discovery the names of only three or four kings prior to 2,000 B. C. were known. Now historians will be able to complete the list from 2,700 B. C. to 746 B. C.

The earliest king noted, Ashur-Nirari V., while known to historians as a name only, is now revealed by the newly found tablet to be the last of a dynasty of nine kings who remain still lost in antiquity. The tablet is the property of the Iraq government, to whom it will be returned after it has been reproduced and studied by Oriental institute scholars. It was sent to Prof. Breasted by special messenger from Khorsabad.

'31 ASSESSMENTS ARE ABOVE COST, BUILDER CHARGES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $218,594, making a total of $107,500,743 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1932.	1930.
Feb. 23	$ 24,487	$ 24,032
Uncollected	15,167,856	40,663,144
	1930.	1931.
Feb. 23	$ 52,195	$ 107,880
Uncollected	61,463,879	61,839,824

The day's collections of 1932 personal property taxes totaled $252,716. Collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $2,638.

Testimony that base rate valuations used by Assessor J. L. Jacobs in determining the 1931 assessments on homes and small flat buildings were 15 per cent higher than the actual cost of reconstructing the buildings was given yesterday before County Judge Jarecki. The witness was G. W. Lampe, an architect with offices at 155 North Clark street, who was called by the Chicago Real Estate board.

The board has petitioned Judge Jarecki to reduce by 15 per cent the assessments on the 438,000 homes and small flat buildings in Cook county, contending that the assessments discriminated against the small property owners.

Lampe testified that he built a number of small buildings in 1931 and that the costs were 15 per cent lower than in similar buildings assessed by Mr. Jacobs. The hearing was continued to Monday.

Assembly Passes Virginia Liquor Monopoly Measure

Richmond, Va., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The general assembly today sent to the governor the state liquor control bill. It repeals the state prohibition law, provides a state liquor monopoly, and permits private sale of beer and wine.

COUNTY ORDERED TO RESTORE 15% JUDGES' PAY CUT

High Court Writ Compels $112,377 Payment.

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday issued a writ of mandamus compelling the Cook county board of commissioners to restore the 15 per cent cut in pay imposed on the judges of the Superior and Circuit courts in 1932 and 1933. The writ also compels the board to return to the judges the two weeks' pay cut effected in September, 1931, and orders the board to appropriate in full for the judges' salaries in 1934.

There are forty-seven judges in the two courts. The amount due each judge under the order is $2,391, or a total of $112,377, which the board must appropriate in the 1934 budget.

Agree on Suspension Only.

All county employés had taken these pay cuts in accordance with the county board's economy program, but the judges contended that as far as they were concerned they had agreed only to suspend the payments on portions of their salary. The judges each receive $15,000 a year, of which $8,000 is paid by the county and $7,000 by the state. The proposed cuts applied only to the portion of the salaries paid by the county.

County officials said that it was doubtful whether a rehearing would be asked in the Supreme court and indicated that provisions for the payments would be made immediately.

"The judges are more interested in maintaining an independent judiciary, free from the influence of the county board, than in the amount of money they receive," said Acting Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Superior court when informed of the Supreme court ruling.

Municipal Judges Adamant.

The judges of the Municipal court in their meeting yesterday ignored declarations by members of the city council finance committee that the aldermen would go to jail rather than include appropriations in the 1934 budget that would give the judges and the court employés full pay this year and return to them reductions made in their salaries during 1932 and 1933.

The sum involved totals $1,311,000. The aldermen supported their stand with a statement that if it becomes necessary to give the court the additional sum the money would have to be taken from essential police, fire, and health appropriations. The aldermen also claim that if they and other city employés take a seventy-eight day pay cut the judges and the court employés should help economize and lower tax bills by taking a fifty-two day salary reduction.

OHIO WOMAN SLATED FOR PLACE ON U. S. COURT OF APPEALS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Senator Bulkley [Dem., O.] said today President Roosevelt intends to shatter another precedent and appoint the first woman member of the federal court of appeals.

She is Judge Florence E. Allen of Ohio, now the country's only Supreme court justice, who will be elevated to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati, comprising Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Senator Bulkley announced her appointment was acceptable after a conference with the President today and her name is expected to be sent to the senate for confirmation early next week.

The senator also announced the chief executive agreed to nominate another woman, Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke of Cleveland, for collector of customs for Ohio at Cleveland.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES PLAN FIGHT FOR LEGISLATIVE AID

Attorneys to Push Assembly Bills.

Plans for ensuing steps in the program designed to strengthen the financial structure of the Chicago school system and provide funds to pay teachers' back salaries were discussed yesterday in the office of James B. McCahey, president of the board of education.

It was decided that Richard S. Folsom, attorney for the board, and Ralph Condee, assistant attorney, would go to Springfield Monday night to lend assistance toward the passage of additional legislation deemed imperative by the school trustees if the Chicago schools are to remain open. The attorneys also will confer with Gov. Horner upon his return from Arizona.

Seek Horner's Signature.

Six bills in the Chicago educational program were passed by the Illinois house this week, and since they had already been approved by the senate they now need only the governor's signature to make them effective. The seventh bill sponsored by the board is the so-called "pegged levy" measure. It is in the final stages of its legislative journey, being on third reading in both houses.

The workings of the "pegged levy" plan were explained at the conference. Under this plan the 1933 levy for the educational fund, now facing a huge prospective deficit, will be pegged at $44,000,000 and the 1934 levy at $43,000,000.

Setting the levies at these fixed amounts will stabilize the school board's borrowing power, according to the school trustees. In addition, it was pointed out, the new plan would provide $8,454,433 more in tax revenues than under the existing tax rates of $1.54 for 1933 and $1.60 for 1934 in respect to the reduction in the assessed valuation on property.

Table Shows Result.

The results of the pegged levies and the tax rates, on the basis of a 9 per cent loss and cost in the collection of taxes, is shown in the table which follows:

Year.	Net taxes from pegged levies.
1933	$40,010,000
1934	39,130,000
Total	$79,170,000
Year.	Net taxes under present rates.
1933	$34,682,353
1934	36,033,614
Total	$70,715,967

Charles B. Stillman, president of the joint conference of teachers and principals, declared that even with the adoption of the pegged levy plan, at least $4,500,000 additional revenue would be needed in order to balance the 1934 school budget. Stillman said he favored an increase in the state distributive school fund from the present figure of $16,500,000 annually to $30,000,000. Chicago receives about one-third of this fund for its schools.

Millionaires Decrease in Britain, Figures Show

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Millionaires are decreasing in the United Kingdom. Figures issued today by the board of inland revenue showed that 897 persons last year had incomes in excess of $150,000, compared with 1,160 in 1932. The number incomes over $500,000 dropped from 109 to 94.

RELIEF DIRECTOR DELAYS ACTION ON ECONOMIES

Report on Staff Cut Plan Unfinished.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of relief for the Illinois emergency relief commission, yesterday postponed a showdown on proposed administrative economies for the commission when he reported at its weekly meeting that he was still working on a report on the economy plans to be submitted. The subject was scheduled to be considered yesterday.

Mr. Reynolds pointed out that 900 employés of the Cook county relief administration have been discharged since the Civil Works administration was created last November, but he did not tell how many of those were clerical employés, and how many professional case workers. It was learned from other sources that a majority of those discharged were clerical workers, and that social workers have been kept on the pay roll wherever possible.

Two Proposed Economies.

The report that Mr. Reynolds is drafting covers two proposed economies: one to discharge 500 additional social workers and clerical employés immediately to bring the ratio of relief cases to workers to 50 to 1, a ratio established by the commission as its policy, and a change in the policy itself which would include administrative officials in the category of "workers."

No protest against Reynolds' delay in making the report was voiced by members of the commission. Each week that the 500 workers remain on the commission's pay roll thousands of dollars are spent in salaries, it was pointed out by relief officials. The report is now long overdue, because the Civil Works administration has been in effect nearly three months.

The question of administrative economies, and the reason for delays in effecting them will be investigated by the relief commission investigating committee, created by the legislature last December, according to State Representative John G. Ryan [Dem., Chicago].

Organization Is Postponed.

This committee met last Wednesday afternoon at Springfield to organize, Mr. Ryan said, but postponed organization until next Wednesday in order to arrange a meeting with Gov. Horner at that time.

The investigating committee is composed of Senators Louis O. Williams [Dem., Clinton], George M. Maypole and Edward P. O'Grady [Dem., Chicago], Clinton L. Ewing [Rep., Douglas], and Adelbert H. Roberts [Rep., Chicago], and Representatives F. W. Lewis [Dem., Robinson], John G. Ryan [Dem., Chicago], David E. Shanahan [Rep., Chicago], W. C. Chynoweth [Rep., Decatur], and John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon].

SECRETARY ICKES TO SPEAK TONIGHT ON THE NEW DEAL

Secretary of the Interior Ickes will speak at Orchestra hall tonight on "The New Deal and Its Future." His address will be given under the auspices of the Illinois League of Women Voters. It was announced that after Mr. Ickes' speech Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, who will preside, will conduct a short question period. This will afford an opportunity for debate which, it was predicted, might prove as interesting as the speech itself.

WINS A DIVORCE AND HUSBAND'S ICE BUSINESS

Mrs. Myrtle Berkin, 2103 South Alport avenue, won a divorce and her husband's ice business yesterday from Superior Judge Joseph Sabath. Mrs. Berkin charged desertion in her cross bill which she filed in answer to the original divorce suit filed by her husband, Oscar. She told the judge that she could never trust her husband to make alimony payments to her. He ruled that Berkin should turn the business over to his wife.

ASKS INJUNCTION TO BAN CONTRACT ON CITY PRINTING

Ex-Congressman James T. Igoe, head of a printing company, filed a petition for injunction in Circuit court yesterday to restrain city officials and the Champlin-Shealy Printing company from carrying out a contract for publishing the 1934 proceedings of the city council.

Mr. Igoe, who was an unsuccessful bidder when the contract was let Feb. 13, charges that the work should go to the Chicago Railway Printing company on a low bid of $5 a page, and that the $8.35 a page contract with the Champlin-Shealy firm will entail an expenditure of nearly $6,000 above the figure of the low bid in a year's time.

Mr. Igoe said yesterday that he is not connected with the Chicago Railway Printing company, but that the firm is a tenant of the building he owns at 328 South Jefferson street.

The contract was let to the Champlin-Shealy firm after aldermen were told that the journal could not be printed as it had been in the past at the price quoted by the two lower bidders.

The James T. Igoe Printing company is at present defendant in a suit brought in 1930 charging that the firm was overpaid when bills for printing the county personal property assessment lists from 1923 to 1928 were settled.

THE DEAD ARMY FLYERS.

Three army flyers were killed in flight before they could reach their air mail stations. Another, Lieut. Durward O. Lowry, formerly attached to the First Pursuit group at Selfridge field, has been killed in the air mail service and two others carrying the night mail have crashed, Lieut. Dietz with injuries which put his recovery in doubt and Lieut. Hollstein with greater good fortune and slighter hurts. These are the army air casualties of less than a week of postoffice service into which the army air force was catapulted by the action of Postmaster General Farley canceling the mail contracts with the commercial companies.

The deaths and injuries are the consequences of the snap judgment which Mr. Farley and Senator Black of the investigating committee precipitated into an administration decision. Lieut. Lowry's mother, learning of her son's death in the most tragic manner—she was on a bus and saw the headline in a newspaper in another passenger's hands—exclaimed: "They shouldn't have had to fly at night through the winter storms over unfamiliar courses that it took months for commercial pilots to learn."

The army will not ask for special consideration. Its air force has been ordered by politicians to fly the mails and the military flyers accept the unfamiliar dangers as part of a new job. The abruptness of the order allowed no time for dependable preparation, the procuring of suitable equipment, for training or study of the courses. The experienced pilots who were carrying the mails were taken off the job and the inexperienced army men thrown into it blind.

The season of the year was the worst in which such a change could have been made. There were bad storms in many sections of the country and exceptional severity of winter weather. The commercial pilots could have met the conditions presented by this weather. The army men did not have the feel of the thing which comes from familiarity. Moreover, it will be important to discover just what sort of equipment they have been given and in what particulars it is inferior to the commercial equipment from which the mails have been taken.

While the army men are crashing with the mails, Senator Black, representing the Democratic politician postmaster general, Mr. Farley, is conducting a political controversy with the former Republican postmaster general, Mr. Brown, over the contracts which Brown signed and Farley canceled. Mr. Farley denounces them as vicious in fraud. Mr. Brown, with at least an equal show of reason, defends them as in accord with sound public policy. Out of the partisan dust the truth has not appeared, but the army flyers are being killed to prove that Mr. Farley has the upper hand, he being now where Mr. Brown was.

Mr. Farley's accomplishment to date is represented in the casualty list and in the setback given American commercial flying when it had won a leading place in the world's aviation. These facts are made evident while the truth of the controversy remains obscured.

CONTROL OF PUBLIC OPINION.

Mark Sullivan, veteran publicist and historian of American politics, writing from Washington in the New York Herald Tribune, calls attention to the interesting fact that while the President, Gen. Johnson and the solicitor of NRA, Mr. Richberg, were asserting with resentful heat that there is no intention to interfere with the freedom of the press, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace was pointing out that the present program of the government about agriculture cannot be fully carried out without "the extraordinarily complete control of all the agencies of public opinion. . . . Complete army-like discipline in peace time."

Mr. Sullivan remarks that "the discrepancy between the statements of the first three and that of Mr. Wallace is easily explainable. When the three spokesmen of the NRA said there was no intention of interfering with freedom of the press they spoke truly. They have no such intention. But the difference is that Secretary Wallace has thought the thing through to its future phases and the final end. He is a thorough student with a clear and exact mind. He has seen what is inevitably ahead and he is warning the country. He knows that compulsion of the farmer through the AAA cannot be completely carried out if there is a perfectly free press to give voice to the minority."

And the principle of the AAA, as Mr. Sullivan remarks, is the same as the fundamental principle of the NRA, the principle of compulsion. "Right now, in the pressing and cleaning industry in several cities, minorities are under criminal accusation" for cleaning suits at a lower price than that fixed by the majority who wrote the code of the industry.

While this does not prove conclusively that the NRA will eventually attempt to interfere with the freedom of the press, Mr. Sullivan points out that it does bear out Secretary Wallace's contention that compulsions, inherent in both the AAA and the NRA, cannot be made effectual except by bringing about what he describes as "a unanimity of opinion and disciplined action even greater than that which we experienced in the years 1917-1919."

The war analogy, so popular among the propagandists of the new laws, has been actively exploited to justify resort to compulsion. In spite of lip service to freedom of the press it is only too apparent in the spirit shown, notably by Gen. Johnson's utterances and in fact by the sarcastic and belittling references to the free press issue of officials in the newspaper code controversy, that the principle of compulsion is as likely to operate upon "agencies of public opinion" as upon other activities. Mr. Sullivan very wisely reminds us that "in a time of personal government such as the present, traits of personality become as important as the laws and principles which they displace." Gen. Johnson, he says, "sounds like a man who could get mad enough to discipline the press if he had the power." And we would add that in present circumstances a government official has a great deal of power in fact if not in law, for he can subject weaker individuals and enterprises to a discipline which may very well be disastrous before any formal process of the laws can be interposed for their protection.

These considerations are the gist of the newspaper's insistence upon a formal declaration on behalf of freedom of utterance. The "extraordinarily complete control of all the agencies of public opinion," the "complete army-like discipline in peace time," which is sought for the effectuation of the new regulations is not compatible with free dissent, and the protagonists of the New Deal have made it very clear that it is not. No régime in Washington, at least since the Federalists of the sedition laws, has shown so much angry resentment of criticism or so much will to bully it into silence.

WHEN THE GATES REOPEN.

The legislature acted with commendable public spirit and in the public interest by promptly passing the legislation necessary to enable the energetic management of the Exposition to proceed with its preparation. The great enterprise will now move rapidly on to its completion for the opening June 1.

It will have smoother sailing than its predecessor, for it will have more favorable conditions and the benefits of experience. We are confident that the Exposition of 1934 will be even more worth while than that of 1933. The best of that memorable accomplishment will be retained and there will be important additions. The distinguished scientists who worked out the remarkable expositions of scientific achievement were greatly encouraged by the intense interest shown by the public in their work and are inspired to make it still more interesting in the coming Exposition. The great industries which under discouraging conditions had the courage and faith to devote millions of dollars to display last year were so well rewarded by the public's response that they are determined to better their exhibits as far as it is possible and there will be entirely new features by concessionaires. All that was good in the Fair of 1933 will be retained and even bettered. The Fair management, highly competent as it was in the first essay in the most disheartening and restrictive circumstances, is now released from its worst embarrassments and will draw upon its practical experience for improvement wherever that is needed. There was no aspect of the Fair of 1933 more remarkable or remarked upon by its visitors than its skilful organization and operation, and if there is anything additional that can be done for the comfort and convenience of visitors they may be sure it will be done.

As for the coöperation of the community and its agencies to make visitors welcome, to meet their wishes and insure them pleasure and profit from their trip, that, too, we know is assured. The spirit of hospitality which was so generously acknowledged by our visitors last year is something to be relied upon, for it was sincere and characteristic of our people.

The Exposition of 1934 cannot be the triumph of courage and faith which made that of 1933 forever memorable, but as an exposition it will be even better.

IT CAN BE DONE.

The state's attorney, his aids and the police deserve the thanks not only of this community but of the nation for their energetic and capable prosecution of the Factor kidnaping case. The influence of this conviction, we believe, will be appreciable throughout the country. The war on kidnaping and upon violent crime in general will be heartened everywhere by this prosecution and verdict. They demonstrate that where there is the will there is a way to crush kidnaping. This atrocious crime, as we have repeatedly said, can be exposed and punished when the authorities are determined to do so. Where it escapes, the explanation almost certainly lies in corrupt politics and the public indifference which breeds it.

WATERWAYS AND RAILROADS.

[South Bend, Ind., Tribune.]

While thousands of railroad freight cars stand idle on sidings and in yards it is argued that development of the St. Lawrence waterway is necessary for the transportation of farm products. The waterway proponents "explain" the railroad idleness by saying that railroad rates are too high. Why should the government spend millions for a waterway with the excuse that railroad rates are too high when the government itself has a great deal of influence on railroad rates through the interstate commerce commission?

Water transportation is notoriously slow. While rapid movement is not indispensable for transportation of grain, it cannot be said that rapid railroad transportation would harm the grain. The trouble is not a shortage of transportation facilities. Why not provide for maximum use of present facilities before millions of dollars are spent for development of a form of transportation that was outmoded in this country when the railroads were built?

The promised St. Lawrence waterway saving for the shippers and consumers of farm products will be a myth when all costs are revealed, according to some competent witnesses. A tremendous factor in railroad rates is taxation. Last year more than one-third of the first class railroads' net operating income was contributed to the various governments in the form of taxes. That cannot be remedied by spending the taxpayers' money for development of tax free competition for the railroads. The railroads pay their own way in the tax field. The taxpayers carry the burden of tax free waterway transportation.

The spectacle of government holding railroad rates at high levels by taxation and then arguing that the people must develop waterways because railroad rates are too high is confusing, to say the least.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT MUST BE a new trade or a profession—this blending thing. Looking in at the rows and rows of pretty whisky bottles in the show windows of the whisky stores, you notice that about every bottle bears the mystic word "BLENDED." Then, of course, somebody must do the blending. How busy the blenders must be and what a swell job! A blender probably comes down to business at ten o'clock in his imported auto with a liveried chauffeur driving him.

He strides into the center of the great blending hall of the blending emporium which retains his services, lays aside his silk hat, his sealskin overcoat and his tan gloves, waves a white hand on which sparkles three ten thousand dollar diamond rings, and says to the waiting lackeys: "Pour half of that there barrel into the big vat. Now sling in a couple of gallons of that imported stuff there. Now five demijohns of that Canadian rye. Now a couppla pails from that there bourbon barrel. Now git the big ladies, stick 'em in! Now, then, all together—BLEND!" Then, drawing five thousand dollars from the cashier, the great blender walks out and gets in his car while the clerks fill the bottles and paste on the labels.

Yessir, some day boys will stop hoping to be the President of the United States, or pitcher for the Cubs, or a policeman and yearn that they may grow up to be a blender. It certainly must be a swell job!

RAIN.

The rain on city street and city wall,
On brick or stone and steel falls futilely;
It seeks in vain, it beats unceasingly,
But finds no rhyme or purpose in its fall.
For one brief hour at dusk some beauty shone,
When moving car lights seemed to wade the street—
To dive and swim in asphalt—hour too fleet!
With dawn the tired gray rain still flays the stone.
Where quiet meadows softly stir in sleep
The questing rain has many trysts to keep.

The rain on city roofs like human hands
That grope and reach and drop in sad defeat,
Like grief that pounds a wall with puny beat,
Falls bleakly where this barren temple stands.
But where the forest rears its latticed beams
It wields no flail, it scarce disturbs a leaf;
It batters no frustration, knows no grief,
But gently glides to wake the earth from dreams.
Where quiet woodlands softly stir in sleep
The questing rain has many trysts to keep.

NO, SIR, I've never said that anything was unconstitutional. Never in my life! No, sir! I never thought of saying anything was unconstitutional. And if I did say it, then I take it back. This all comes because I've just been reading that Gen. Sandino was shot because he said the new Nicaraguan government was doing things that are unconstitutional. The United States is not Nicaragua, but I'm taking no chances. I repeat it! I never said anything about anything being unconstitutional. It must have been two other fellows.

YOUNG MR. HENRY PU-YI, who is the Japanese candidate for emperor of Manchukuo, solemnly announces that when he gets his new job he will have henceforth and forever only one wife. Henry's right. Four or five wives would just mean that many more poodle dogs, automobiles, telephones, and dressmakers' bills. And probably all five of 'em would eat crackers in bed. Perhaps it's the Japs that made up Henry's mind on this point. It isn't so hard for the Japs or anybody else to handle a man; it's handling his wife that is the hard part. And if Henry had five wives to talk back to the Japs and tell 'em where they got off at it wouldn't be so easy for the Japs to get Henry to sign on the dotted line every time they told him to.

"COUSIN of State's Attorney Courtney Charged with Profiteering on CWA Jobs."—Headline. But why drag in the state's attorney? Is a man responsible for what his cousin does? I've got a cousin whose acts I certainly don't indorse. Very privately I think it would have been for the general betterment of the country if he had been hanged a long time ago. And I wrote to him and told him so. And he wired back, "The same to you and many of 'em." Cousins! Bah!

PORTRAIT OF MY DAUGHTER.

My daughter is like a Priestess
From Athens or from Rome;
A little wistful . . . a little shy . . .
A little stay-at home.

She loves anemone and phlox
And pine trees in the west;
The proof of her reality
Is the fact of my unrest.

She takes a hat and ribbon
And changes to an elf;
In her I see all women live—
But most of all myself.

She loves the silly summer—
And a quiet lake in fall,
Upon her breast are hyancinths
And on her lips a call.

And like all of her ancestors
Acquainted with the earth—
She, too, would have prayed to an apple tree . . .
Had she but come to birth.

READ AS YOU RUN.

CONAN DOYLE, whose best known character is Sherlock Holmes, was a physician, and his superior men were often of that profession. His writings became famous because, aside from their literary style and their use of mystery, he portrayed the art of close observation and of deduction based thereon. The author learned this art and this science from one of his professors in a medical school—a man whose fame for observation and deduction was as great among physicians as was that of Sherlock Holmes among lay people a generation later.

This very acute-minded old Scotchman taught his pupils to observe people minutely and to deduce from what was observed. Aside from the sport this offered in other directions, it was often the basis for shrewd diagnosis of their diseases and correct treatment based thereon.

A professor in Guy's hospital, London, recently entertained and instructed his pupils by reciting to them some of his experiences in playing the game of guessing what diseases men suffered from, based on the way they sat in street cars, walked on the street, and ate at table. His deductions were no more than guesses of varying degrees of shrewdness and doubtless many of them were wrong, but the game was interesting and diverting—far more so than trying to read as one rode, or than sitting with a vacant mind, or superficially seeing objects of no interest. Besides, it was excellent training for his professional work.

A certain physician in this city has long indulged in the same sport. He sometimes walks and plays the game with another physician who has considerable "crust." This other not infrequently puts the guesses to the test by engaging the subject in talk and, as an interested physician, asking for the facts. Some of the mistakes have been amusing enough, as when a diagnosis of birth palsy was overturned by the statement: "I had a bad accident and the great Dr. Senn took some of the bones out of one leg."

A man's method of walking may show that he has locomotor ataxia, or that he has had infantile paralysis, lead poisoning, birth palsy, or apoplexy. If he stands overly straight the posture may be due to a weak back. If his hands tremble violently he may have Parkinson's disease. If there is a fine tremor he is apt to have goiter. If he spills soup on his vest or holds his glass of water with both hands he may have paralysis agitans and he may have had sleeping sickness.

A certain type crook in the back may mean spinal arthritis, and another type may mean something else.

INSURANCE BENEFITS.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I have been a member of a sick and accident insurance for four years. 2. Is it legal for them to cancel my policy and [3] not give me the amount I paid in? I am confined to bed. They also owe me five claims from last year. They paid me nine weeks' sick claims and now refuse to pay more. 4. They say they cannot pay for the particular disease in question, but have no such clause in their policy. H. J.

1. In general, your rights depend on the wording of your certificate of membership and the by-laws of the corporation.
2. The wording is probably such as to authorize them to cancel as to future liabilities.
3. Obviously you should not get back what was merely a payment for insurance coverage that you have enjoyed.
4. We cannot advise without knowing the nature of the disease and the wording of the policy on this point.

LIABILITY.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own my home and have recently taken in my brother's wife and family. They are contemplating buying a second hand car, but do not want to carry insurance [which I think should be done]. They have no possessions other than their furniture and I am wondering [1] if in the event of an accident the party injured could make me a party to a suit or get judgment against me if [2] I was an occupant of the car at the time of the accident, or [3] if the car was being used for some purpose in connection with my bungalow. M. S.

1. Of course he could serve process on you. In our opinion, you would not be a proper party to the suit.
2. The mere fact that you were an occupant would not make you liable, but if the circumstances were such as to charge you with responsibility for warning the driver of danger, you might be liable for breach of that duty.
3. You might be held on this theory.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—A deadweight and a dud to this country commercially in a world of free trade, Manchukuo may be Japan's chief source of raw and finished materials in a world that is steadily moving toward economic nationalism.

Authentic reports from Hsinking, capital of the new state of Manchukuo, say that the following important industries have been established during the last few months or will be established during 1934:

Manchukuo Air Service Company, Ltd. Established in September, with head offices in Mukden, for the object of serving Manchukuo, Corea, and Japan with a passenger and mail line. Authorized capital, $20,000,000. Source of capital, Manchukuo government, the South Manchuria railway, owned by Japan, and the Sumitomo interests, one of Japan's "Big Five."

Manchukuo Chemical Industries Company, Ltd., established in November, with head offices in Dairen, for the object of manufacturing ammonium sulphate and chemical products by utilizing the Fushun coal mine. Authorized capital, $10,000,000. Chief sources of capital, South Manchuria railway and other Japanese concerns.

Manchou Telegraph and Telephone company, established in November, with head offices in Hsinking, for the object of making a monopoly of such communication services in Manchukuo, including the Kwantung Leased Territory. Authorized capital, $20,000,000. Chief source of capital, Manchukuo government and South Manchuria railway.

Manchukuo-Japan Aluminum Company, Ltd., established in December, with head offices in Tokio, for the object of producing aluminum by a newly patented process from Manchukuoan and Corean ore. Capitalized at $2,000,000, which, however, will be increased to $15,000,000 later. Chief source of capital, Japanese and Manchukuoan investors.

Manchukuo Oil company, with head offices in Hsinking, to be established during 1934, for the object of refining oil from imported crude oil and developing oil fields. Proposed capitalization, $2,500,000. Leading promoters, Manchukuo government, the South Manchuria railway, and oil enterprises in Japan.

Manchou-Japan Cotton company, with head offices in Tokio, for the object of ginning cotton grown by the Manchurian Cotton association. Proposed site of mills, Liuyang and Tahushan. Proposed capitalization, $500,000.

Industrial Bank of Manchukuo. Object, banking on mortgage basis for industrial and agricultural purposes, which is now included in the business of the Central bank. To be established about June, 1934.

Manchukuo Coal Mining company, with head offices in Hsinking, for the object of developing coal fields in Hsinchiu, Peipiao, Hsinlitun, Holkang, and Hsian. Proposed capitalization, $8,000,000. Leading promoters, Manchukuo government and South Manchuria railway.

Manchukuo Electric company, with head offices in Hsinking, for the object of monopolizing this industry. Proposed capitalization, $50,000,000. Leading promoters, Manchukuoan and Japanese investors.

Manchou Gold company, object, developing of government owned fields of placer gold in Heilungkiang, Hsingan, and Kirin provinces. Proposed capitalization, $5,000,000. Leading promoters, Manchukuo government, South Manchuria railway, and Oriental Development company.

Manchou Alcohol company, for the purpose of controling the alcohol industry. Proposed capitalization, $500,000. Leading promoters, Manchukuoan and Japanese investors.

Manchou Aluminum company, for the object of manufacturing aluminum from a newly patented process. Proposed site of mills, Fushun. Proposed capital, $20,000,000. Leading promoters, Manchukuo government and South Manchuria railway.

The establishment of such industries, mainly with Japanese capital, indicates that Manchukuo is likely to be a closed shop for Japan. It is a signal fact, neutral observers here point out, that although there are a number of representatives of American and European business establishments in Tokio today who are seeking to have Japan live up to its promise of keeping Manchukuo's door open, they have made no headway. In the meantime industries backed by Japanese capital are sprouting like mushrooms, these observers bemoan.

STREAMLINED TRANSPORTATION.

Chicago, Feb. 21. — THE TRIBUNE'S "Reader for Years," in his sophomoric article, "Streamlined Transportation," of Feb. 21, plainly shows his inability to grasp the railroad situation from the standpoint of the transportation engineer. His are the narrow, biased views of the consumer, that in no way consider the problems of a great transportation system.

Passenger service is by no means the only problem of the railroad, as your old time reader would have you believe. Freight must receive due consideration, and the running of passenger trains more frequently would necessitate tying up freight on sidings every few miles. But that would not make any difference to the layman; he is interested solely in having a train that will get him to his office a few minutes before it opens in the morning and another that will leave for home shortly after the office closes in the evening. He does not take into consideration that he is dependent on railroad transportation for a great part of his food, clothing, and fuel. To tie these up in slow freight would lower the turnover ratio, thereby increasing the cost, and, of course, increasing his cost of living.

Your reader gives credit to the automobile industry for its remarkable strides of progress. The new Union Pacific M-10,000 motor is the latest and best motor developed by engineers of the General Motors company and was not to be had before 1933. Previously railroads have tried gas-electric engines, but found that they are lacking in power and efficiency, except for short hauls.

The charge that railroads are continually grinding an ax in every legislature of the land is true, but why? Because they are so large that legislation and taxation have been hurled at them until they are tied hand and foot—unable to move for fear of getting in a jam with the commerce commission or having to sell liens on locomotives and equipment to pay their taxes.

THE NEW JUSTICE.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Now that the honorable postmaster general has both convicted and penalized all of our privately owned mail carrying aviation companies, and done so without the aid of judge or jury, without having accorded the accused the privilege of defense and without the right of appeal, I am wondering if we are to have also a New Deal in justice.

In the future will the small manufacturer, striving to keep from going bankrupt in complying with some code he had no part in formulating, run the risk of being notified by letter or telegram from some government official: "We have been investigating sundry rumors to the effect that you were violating the mandates of your code; and as we have decided these rumors are based on fact you are hereby forbidden to continue in business." PUZZLED.

THE JAPANESE BUILDINGS.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—James O'Donnell Bennett's article on the restoration of the Japanese building on Wooded island in Jackson park interested me a great deal. That is what I have been looking for for many years. He has expressed exact sentiment of what we Japanese residents of Chicago wish to say. I sincerely wish to congratulate Mr. G. T. Donoghue, superintendent of south parks, for his foresight in saving this historic oriental structure from destruction and vandalism. I am sure thousands of Americans and Japanese who are appreciative of this wonderful monument of the 1893 World's Fair are grateful to Mr. Donoghue for his timely project of reconstructing this building and rebuilding a suitable Japanese garden and landscape near the lagoon. For many years it has been my earnest hope that some organization would volunteer and restore the whole structure. Now my dream is realized. I want to express my thanks to Mr. Bennett for his excellent article in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Feb. 18 and wish to congratulate Mr. Donoghue for saving the Japanese building from wreckage and making this treasure of 1893 one of the major attractions of our beautiful Jackson park.

SYMPTOMS OF DECAY.

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 15.—Never before in the writer's memory has any administration temporarily in power at Washington resorted to such a vast display of self-advertisment and ballyhoo. One is confronted with this propaganda everywhere—over the radio, on the stage, at the movies, in the papers and magazines.

This gigantic attempt for continued popularity seems to be based almost entirely upon an appeal to emotional rather than intellectual thinking. Its very apparent success in thus far maintaining the popularity of the bunch at Washington at a high pitch is a clear indication of the decadence of the American people. Formerly a race of predominantly intellectual thinkers, we have evidently become a race of sentimental puppets.

This very marked success of such propaganda with such appeal spells the not far distant doom of the America we have most of us known and loved.

NEW ZEALAND'S DOORS ARE OPEN FOR U. S. EXPORTS

Dominion Ideal Market; Ready to Buy.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Feb. 23.—In the south Pacific, less than three weeks from American shores, Uncle Sam has a new customer which market waits exploring. Its population stands at 1,500,000. Its buying power, in terms of foreign trade, has measured up as high as $250,000,000 a year and its name is New Zealand.

Nowhere else in the world does the market demand so closely follow the American lines. For the dominion of New Zealand has a history which in many ways is allied to that of the United States. The land was peopled by British stock who aimed at creating a newer and brighter commonwealth. It has grown into a sturdy independence of British sources, though still professing close alliance to the motherland. The people are wealthier and more inclined to regard the good things of life as their right and more mechanically minded than the British themselves.

Ideal Market for U. S.

The United States could scarcely ask for a better market. For the development of New Zealand, southernmost civilized country in the world, has been agricultural rather than industrial. Her high standard of living, her conditions of existence and her needs place her right next the counter for the American manufacturer.

But what the country needs is not what she has always got. The beginning of a policy of industrial development, undertaken 60 years ago in the ecort to raise the country out of the morass of a severe depression, has resulted in a national economy based on high tariffs.

Even these would not have been sufficient to prevent the American manufacturer from capturing the market in many commodities, but this tariff policy has been used as a weapon of imperial solidarity. Way back in 1900 New Zealand embarked on a system of giving British made goods preference over those of other countries. That system has been developed up to the point of the Ottawa agreements and is now one of the principal barriers to trade between New Zealand and the United States.

Breaks Through Barrier.

In certain directions the American manufacturer was able to break through in spite of the discrimination against him. He sent in great quantities of oil, he almost dominated the market in movie films, and threatened to drive all competitors out of the automobile industry. In lumber, electrical goods, and machinery and tools he was extremely powerful. But with the coming of the depression his trade began to slide until his exports of automobiles to this country, which in 1929 had stood at $9,300,000, fell in 1932 to $130,000.

Three factors combined to bring about this slide in American exports, a slide which dragged the total of goods supplied by Uncle Sam from the 1929 high of $45,000,000 to the 1932 figure of $6,000,000. This was the lowest figure for over twenty years. These factors were the "Buy British" propaganda, the tariff and the exchange uncertainty.

The "Buy British" movement has been active in this country for many years and has been at its loudest at moments when foreign trade has been moving to its peak.

"Buy British" Argument.

Briefly, its argument is this: Britain is New Zealand's principal market for exports and her principal source of loans. In order to enable Britain to purchase New Zealand products, of which she has never taken less than 72 per cent, it is necessary that the New Zealander "buy British." This achieves the double object of giving the Britisher power to take more New Zealand goods and of making it possible for the New Zealander to pay his interest for loans "on the nail."

Yet this "Buy British" propaganda was in its beginning a sign of defeat. New Zealanders, in the ten years before the New York stock market crash, were not going to Britain for their needs, but were depending more and more on other countries. And in that period the share of the import trade of New Zealand which was held by Uncle Sam steadily mounted.

By 1926 it stood at 20 per cent and Britain's share was steadily dropping. The tariff revision, which took place here in 1927, gave the United States manufacturers a temporary setback by widening the margin of duty preference for British goods. But by 1929 American figures were climbing again and British trade was receding. This tendency was arrested by the depression.

With the coming of the depression, the uncertainty of exchanges and the operations of the tariff, the British firms have been receiving orders which normally would have gone to the United States.

High Price of Dollar.

A second factor in the fall of American trade has been the high price of the dollar. A year ago a New Zealand pound would buy only $2.64, for this country is a member of the sterling group, which finance their trade through British banks and had to follow Britain when she went off the gold standard. In addition the New Zealand pound is off the British standard to the extent of 25 per cent.

But on top of this came the tariff discrimination against foreign countries in favor of Britain. In almost every case the British producer enjoys an advantage of 20 per cent in the duties levied by the New Zealand customs. Sometimes he has an advantage of 25 per cent.

Today the situation is somewhat changed. It has been altered materially by three things. There is a better rate of exchange. The dollar is now quoted at around 5 to the pound sterling and therefore 4 to the New Zealand pound. The second is the fact that the tariff is even now under revision, partly as the outcome of a promise given to Britain by the New Zealand government at Ottawa and partly as the outcome of the recognition that high duties are killing trade. Finally the British market, for the first time in history, threatens to close its doors to New Zealand and thus opens the door to America.

CHILE ENDS BAN ON U. S. EXPORTS OF "LUXURIES"

Opens Electrical and Machinery Market.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 23.—The Chilean government has taken the most important step in favor of United States exporters since August, 1931, when it established foreign exchange control and began the rationing of imports by subjecting them to higher tariffs and a system of licenses.

The new decision was an informal one, intimated through the Central bank, but with the force and majesty of the law behind it. With one stroke it swept away all restrictions on the importation of automobiles, radio sets, refrigerators, every class of electrical and industrial machinery, and other "luxuries" which had been banned since the nation went on a "crisis diet."

See Greatest Benefit to U. S.

Although, naturally, the new facilities are extended to all countries, it is generally recognized that American exporters will reap at least 75 per cent of the orders resulting from the new policy—that is, if they are quick enough to swoop on the business. The United States previously dominated the automobile, radio, and machinery import trade here.

Formerly, in order to import an automobile into Chile, it was necessary, first of all, to obtain permission to place it in the custom house. Licensing was controled by the Central bank, and two years' records revealed that only about 3 per cent of the applications were granted.

Afterwards the manufacturer, or his agent, had to apply for an exchange permit, of which there were three classes—official, commercial, and black—at widely divergent rates. If he was lucky enough to get a license, then an exchange permit and then a custom house clearance, he might be able to import the automobile—provided he spent another three months wandering through government lobbies for the final O. K.

New System Explained.

Today all this opposition is set aside. The manufacturer, or his agent, has merely to cover himself on the free exchange market and pay the regular tariff dues and he can sell as many automobiles as the market will absorb. The tariff dues may be halved, or even reduced to one-third of their present value if trade treaty negotiations with the United States government are successful.

The government admitted that it had given the favorable instructions to the Central bank because of the increasing balance in favor of Chilean exports and the consolidation of internal market conditions. Compensation treaties with France, Germany, Belgium, Spain, Austria, Scandinavia and Czechoslavakia have given an impetus to nitrate shipments, and some of the American copper mines in Chile are working at 100 per cent capacity again to cater for European requirements. The improved price of wool has also helped Patagonia.

Force Government's Hand.

The result is that a large number of export bills have been thrown on the exchange market, and the licensing restrictions caused them to accumulate, improving the peso quotation. Exporters, accustomed to higher peso prices for their bills, forced the government's hand, resulting in the informal decree that the ban on "luxury" imports shall be lifted. There will now be keener bids for the export bills, bringing more pesos to the Chilean shippers and at the same time offering more scope to the import trade.

Local representatives of American automobile and radio manufacturers, who had been warned in advance of the impending cancelation of restrictions, placed numerous advance orders for confirmation by cable. Confirmation was despatched following the Central bank's announcement. There should be a notable increase in these orders, however, when the full significance of the new Chilean policy is realized.

University R.O.T.C. Unit's Mounted Circus Sunday

The second annual mounted circus of the R. O. T. C. unit of the University of Chicago will be held Sunday at 2 o'clock, it was announced yesterday. The event will be held in the 124th Field Artillery armory at 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. Among the attractions will be mounted basketball, mounted wrestling matches, riding and exhibition jumping.

CONFESS STEALING RADIATORS.

Fifty—and Feted

Members of the staff of Attorney General Otto Kerner surprised him yesterday by presenting him with a specially designed pocket cigar lighter in honor of his fiftieth birthday. Members of his family were witnesses at the presentation and Mrs. Kerner ignited the lighter for the first time to show that it worked. It did. The lighter bears the state seal.

3 DIE, 12 HURT IN THEATER BLAST AT YONKERS, N. Y.

Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Three persons died and 12 others were severely burned this morning when explosions ripped out part of the sidewalk in front of Proctor's theater and reared workmen and passers-by with flame. The concussion was felt within three blocks.

Patrolman Patrick Whalen was burned to death when he jumped into the hole in the street in an attempt to save a child who had fallen into it, Michael Gruber, a cab driver, plunged in after Whalen and died with him. James Frazier died of burns.

Ten of the victims were still in Yonkers hospitals tonight, several in serious condition. They were picked up, stunned, with blackened faces, placed in private automobiles and carried to various hospitals.

Two investigations were under way last night to determine the cause of the explosion. Unofficially it seemed to be the general opinion that a short circuit might have ignited gas in the basement of the theater where workmen were installing electrical power transformers.

7,994 DRIVERS BUY STATE AUTO LICENSES IN DAY

Chicago motorists yesterday purchased 7,994 state auto license plates at the local office of Secretary of State Hughes, 120 South Ashland avenue. That figure raised to 47,087 the total number of plate sales since inauguration of the campaign against delinquent automobile owners. On that basis the state has collected $624,864 in fees.

Secretary Hughes has ordered that the South Ashland avenue office be kept open from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. tomorrow. It is estimated there still are approximately 250,000 Chicago motorists who have not yet bought their city and state licenses. More than 7,000 delinquents were arrested by police in a one day drive last week. Mayor Kelly has announced that the city drive will be resumed next Monday.

City vehicle sticker collections dropped off yesterday to $95,647, from the high total of $276,000 on Wednesday.

ITALY PROPOSES ARMS PACT WITH NO DISARMAMENT

ROME, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Italian experts were represented tonight as believing that European nations should sign an agreement on armaments on the basis of present conditions, without much disarmament, in order to prevent a possible armament race.

That opinion will be expressed to Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, when he begins his conversations with Premier Mussolini here tomorrow on the proposed British arms reduction formula.

There was a lack of optimism in official circles over the visit of the English envoy. The Italians feel that Capt. Eden will try to convert them to the idea of specific disarmament, which they think is impossible now.

GERMAN PASTORS REVOLT AGAINST NAZI LEADERSHIP

Accuse Bishop of Setting Up Dictator's Reign.

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Accusing Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller with establishing a "dictatorial reign in the Protestant church," preachers and elders from 30 of the 33 Rhenish districts urged their congregations today to disobey the bishop's orders.

"He is governing in violation of God's word," said their manifesto, issued at a meeting of the so-called free evangelical senate to discuss the months long controversy over leadership and teachings.

Calls Leadership "Destructive."

Representatives of the Lutheran, Reformed, and United churches attended. A resolution unanimously adopted declared:

"The worldly principle of leadership, when transplanted into the church, has proved to be destructive in the church.

"We recognize but one leader—Jesus Christ."

The pronouncement further charged that a national senate held in Wttemberg last September "lacked spiritual authority," as church elections which preceded it were "conducted amid terror and deception." That senate laid the groundwork for the present Protestant church administration.

Two other developments today served to add to the tenseness in the fight.

Demands Nazi Theories.

Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, philosophic dictator of the third reich, declared that Christianity would be respected in Germany, but must submit to Nazi racial theories.

"We respect the faiths of recognized churches, but also strivings toward new religious forms," he said. "We do not know whether these endeavors will meet success or not, but we recognize and respect them."

The congregation of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller—the former submarine captain and parson who has led opposition clergymen in the fight against the reichsbishop's "dictatorial methods"—defied Bishop Mueller's order for Niemoeller's removal.

Ask Pastor to Continue.

Elders of the fashionable Dahlem church adopted a resolution saying that the Rev. Mr. Niemoeller was responsible to his congregation and not to the reichsbishop and asking him to continue in the post. Niemoeller promised to do so.

Bishop Mueller, meanwhile, completed his church cabinet, which has had vacancies since Nov. 30, 1933.

He appointed Dr. Heinrich Forstnoff to represent the United churches and the Rev. Fritz Engelke to represent the Lutherans. Dr. Otto Weber will continue as the representative of the Reformed churches.

Dr. Forstnoff has been professor of theology in various theological schools in the Rhineland. He is 63 years old. Engelke, 56, has been active in home missions.

2 FRENCH CHIEFS IN DISGRACE OVER FIRING ON MOBS

PARIS, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Two of former Premier Edouard Daladier's ministers were expelled from organizations today "because of their attitude" during the recent Paris riots when forces guarding the chamber of deputies fired on the mobs.

Former Air Minister Pierre Cot was expelled from the Old Timers Veterans' association.

Guy La Chambre, who was minister of merchant marine and Daladier's right hand man, was ousted from the fencing club and six municipal councilors at Saint Servean, where La Chambre is mayor, resigned because they refuse to sit on the council with him.

The entire municipal council of Bayonne resigned after a demonstration by a crowd against the city government elected with Deputy Joseph Garat, mayor of the city, who was arrested in connection with the Stavisky pawnshop scandal.

EX-KAISER'S SON WILL BEG FOR COINS TO AID NAZI STORM TROOPERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—A prince of Hohenzollern, one time favorite son of former Kaiser Wilhelm, will beg for coins in the streets of Berlin tomorrow and Sunday. He will not seek alms for himself, but for the needy storm troopers who are his comrades. This was announced officially by authorities organizing the 14th anniversary of the proclamation of the Nazi program which will be celebrated this week-end.

PRINCE AUGUST WILHELM. [Acme Photo.]

The prince is "Auwi" [August Wilhelm], fourth son of the former kaiser. He turned Nazi four years ago. One of the numerous offices conferred on this scion of the Hohenzollerns is the post of commander in the storm troops. The prince, together with all other high leaders of the brown shirted army, will collect donations for needy storm troopers to provide them with joy "on this historical day."

The 47 year old Hohenzollern will do his begging on the swanky Unter den Linden.

GERMANY SEIZES GENERAL MOTORS WORKERS' CENTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—The Opel Motor works, which is controled by General Motors, was informed today that the workers' center which the company helped finance will be confiscated by Nazi authorities because it is "Marxist."

The Frankfurther Zeitung writes that the "Volkshause" was erected as a center for Russelheim workers, all of whom are employed in the Opel works. The building cost $100,000, of this sum $60,000 was loaned by the Opel works.

A Nazi commissar informed General Motors that the property will be seized on the strength of a court decision. Little publicity is given in the German press to confiscation of Marxist or allegedly Marxist property which continues in all parts of Germany.

UPROAR IN IRISH DAIL OVER BILL TO BAN BLUE SHIRTS

De Valera Launches a New War on Foes.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 23.—President Eamon de Valera today launched a new onslaught on the United Ireland party (Blueshirts). He introduced a bill in the dail eireann (lower house) to prohibit the use of uniforms, badges, banners, and military titles—presumably by political parties—with a view to preventing disturbances of the peace.

The text of the bill is not yet available. Consequently, its purport is not fully known. The bill was sprung as a surprise when the dail met today. Former President William T. Cosgrave and other opposition leaders denounced the measure as tyrannical, and during short debate a tense feeling of angry recriminations prevailed.

Epithet "Murderer" Used.

At times the speaker had difficulty in restraining the deputies. The epithet "murderer," frequently was exchanged. Minister of Industry and Commerce Sean F. Lemass asserted that some of the allegations could only be met by a "slap on the teeth."

Deputy Dr. Thomas F. O'Higgins, who founded the Army Comrades association, predecessor of the Blueshirts, described the bill as a Spanish inquisition. Lemass cried that he would prevent O'Higgins from repeating that inside or outside the house. This led to a turmoil, during which the speaker banged his bell for order.

Ultimately the bill was passed on first reading. Debate on second reading was fixed for Wednesday. Many deputies during the reading wanted to know if the bill would apply to the Irish republican army, but no information was vouchsafed.

O'Duffy Denounces Action.

Gen. Owen O'Duffy, leader of the Blueshirts, said after the debate that he was not surprised at the government's action, because the enormous influx into the ranks of the Blueshirts is making De Valera desperate.

"Wearing a blue shirt is consonant with the law of God, as defined in the bishops' Lenten pastorals," he declared. "The government has introduced this heroic measure before the high court could pronounce on the legality of the organization. Undoubtedly the League of Youth has derived part of its appeal to the younger generation from its bright, handsome blue shirt. The bill is a partisan proposal, and I hope the senate will delay its passage. Before many months De Valera will be too manifestly lacking in popular support to continue such coercion or avoid a general election."

DEFENSE RAISES SUICIDE HINT IN DEATH OF RHETA

Dr. Wynekoop's Attorneys Quiz Slain Girl's Father.

Gardner had died in the Central State hospital, Indianapolis.

"Was that a state institution—a hospital for th feeble——" Mr. Smith went on.

"We object," interrupted Mr. Dougherty.

Ask Judge for Ruling.

Milton Smith and his associate, W. W. Smith, who in the defense opening statement had promised to show that Rheta was staging false epileptic fits to annoy her mother-in-law, moved towards the bench, where Judge Harry B. Miller was sitting. In contrast to the previous trial, where Judge Joseph B. David kept lawyers and spectators in a constant turmoil with his observations, it was the first time in the afternoon session that the present judge had been called upon to rule.

"What are you trying to prove?" Judge Miller asked in a whisper that was inaudible to the jury.

"They're trying to show that the mother of the deceased was insane," Mr. Dougherty volunteered. "We object: contend it's not material."

"Not only the mother," pleaded Milton Smith. "The grandmother was insane also. We weren't present at Rheta's murder, but we want to show how this girl could have killed herself. It's absolutely material."

The judge stroked his chin as he pondered. The defendant was watching him through half closed eyes. Rheta's father sat hunched in the witness box, elbows on his knees and eyes staring at the floor.

Allows Defense Questioning.

"It may be material," the judge ruled, taking a different view from that taken by Judge David at the first trial. "You may proceed."

Rubbing his hands at his victory, Milton Smith went back before the witness.

"That hospital your first wife died in—it was an insane asylum, was it not?" he demanded.

"Yes," came the low answer.

"And Rheta's grandmother, do you know where she died?" the lawyer pursued.

"I certainly ought to—it was Dallas, Tex.," Mr. Gardner answered, more firmly.

"Wasn't that an institution for the mentally ill, also?" Smith insisted.

Father Makes a Denial.

"It was not," Gardner replied stoutly, ignoring Mr. Dougherty's objection to the form of the question and the judge's ruling that he need not answer.

The preceding witness, Policeman Kelly, in ten minutes of direct examination by the prosecution, told how Dr. Wynekoop had suggested the theft of her cash or narcotics as a possible explanation of Rheta's death when his squad arrived at the Wynekoop home. The damage to the defense theory of murder by a marauder was done in two questions.

Q.—What did the defendant say to you when she brought you to the operating room? A.—She pointed to an open drawer, where she said she had kept her cash, and mentioned something about earlier burglaries at the house.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I first went and tried the back door. It was locked. Then I tried all the half dozen windows in the basement. They were locked. I had earlier tried the front basement door and couldn't get in that way, so I knew it was locked.

School Teacher Witness.

Further suggestion concerning suicide was advanced by an earlier witness, Miss Enid Hennessey, physics teacher at John Marshall High school for twenty-one years, who lived at the Wynekoop home at 3406 Monroe street. She stood up on the stand and poked a pudgy finger into her own back to show where the fatal bullet entered Rheta's body. The gesture required no contortion, the teacher demonstrated.

The defendant's temperature was a subnormal 98 degrees, her pulse a moderate 88 and her respiration 20 when she left the county jail for the morning's session after spending all the preceding holiday in bed. The jail physician, Dr. Francis W. McNamara, said she was growing weaker all the time.

"I feel as weak as a cat," Dr. Wynekoop told a group of newspaper reporters at the courtroom door, "and I have a perfectly ghastly headache."

She passed a hand over her brow and favored the reporters with one of her sudden, ghostly smiles. Throughout Miss Hennessey's direct examination, she lay passive in her chair, stirring occasionally out of her black caracul coat to whisper to Attorney Milton Smith. The story of the schoolmistress seemed to soothe her, for at noon recess, she announced herself as "much better" and said her headache was gone.

Prosecutor Dougherty questioned Miss Hennessey as follows:

Q.—Directing your attention to the morning of last Nov. 21, what did you do? A.—I arose at my usual hour, had breakfast and left for school about 8 o'clock. I don't remember whether Rheta was at breakfast that morning. She didn't always come down.

Q.—You were at school all day? A.—Yes, until 3:15, when I checked out. Then I went downtown, shopped until a little after 5, and got home about 6 o'clock.

On her return to the Wynekoop house, Miss Hennessey recalled, Dr. Wynekoop was in the kitchen frying pork chops, one of which she placed on a warm plate for Rheta in the dining room. The hour was about 6:15 p. m.

Q.—Did you see Rheta anywhere around? A.—Rheta was not there.

Q.—Did you make any inquiries on hi whereabouts? A.—I don't remember whether I asked or Dr. Wynekoop suggested it.

"Worried About Rheta."

Q.—Suggested what? A.—That Rheta had gone downtown to get some music and wanted to see a certain movie and that she might have stopped to see the movie and would soon be home. O, yes, and Dr. Wynekoop said after we finished eating that she was worried about Rheta. She went to the telephone and called Mrs. Vera Duncan next door.

Dr. Alice bolted out of her reclining posture and whispered swiftly to Attorney Smith during the next series of questions. The prosecutor was bringing out, inferentially, that Dr. Alice had evinced reluctance to allow Miss Hennessey to leave her alone that fatal evening.

Q.—Before the meal, was there any conversation with reference to the drug store? A.—Yes, when I first came in, doctor said she was sorry I hadn't come home earlier, as she wanted me to go to the druggist. I said I could go after supper, but she said she didn't want to have me out after dark.

Doctor Summons Daughter.

In subsequent questions the prosecutor traced her progress to her own room, her preparation for bed, and her return downstairs when she heard the voice of Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, daughter of the defendant, whom Dr. Alice had summoned home from the county hospital with an alarm that "something terrible had happened to Rheta."

Q.—Where did you go after joining Dr. Catherine and her mother? A.—To the operating room.

Q.—When you first looked in, what did you see?

The witness glanced toward the blanketed table standing before the jury box as if to refresh her memory. Dr. Alice leaned forward, her fingers plucking Attorney Smith's sleeve.

"I saw the operating table with a blanket on it and I saw the back of Rheta's head and there was a revolver on the headrest.

Q.—Anything on the revolver? A.—There was—a white cloth covered the handle.

Q.—What else did you see?

"Dr. Catherine took a pencil out of her pocket," the witness volunteered. "She raised the blanket and I saw a bullet wound in the back."

Miss Hennessey stood up, and, without any prompting, turned her back to the jury, pressing her index finger to the approximate point in her own brown dress that she had seen the wound in Rheta's half nude body.

"Indicating a point somewhere near the small of the back?" Dougherty prompted.

"No, it was above the small of the back," averred Miss Hennessey.

TOOTHACHE SEEMS TO BE A JINX IN DR. WYNEKOOP TRIAL

The Wynekoop murder case has seemingly been jinxed by a long series of aching teeth.

First it was a juror at the original trial. Later, Attorney W. W. Smith had to have a temporary filling removed, delaying the start of the retrial.

Yesterday, Attorney Frank J. Tyrrell was absent from court because he was having five teeth removed, but the climax came when Dr. Catharine Wynekoop, daughter of Dr. Alice Wynekoop, the defendant, announced: "O, darn it! Just as soon as the trial is over I've got to go and have a wisdom tooth taken out. It's been hurting terribly."

Fire in Lamp Factory Causes $25,000 Damage.

Fire which caused damage estimated at $25,000 swept through the top floor of the seven story Rembrandt Lamp corporation factory at 257 East Erie street yesterday morning just before 400 employes reported for work. A 3-11 alarm was sounded after an elevator operator and a watchman had tried unsuccessfully to extinguish the fire. William Markoff, vice president of the company, one of the largest of its kind in the country, said the concern was already two weeks behind on orders and that the fire would further delay production.

Gets a $295 Judgment Against Dr. Wynekoop

A judgment for $295.75 was entered by Municipal Judge J. A. Schiller yesterday against Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who now is on trial in the Criminal courts for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta Wynekoop. The judgment was awarded to the Berz undertaking company, 41 North Leavitt street, for the costs of a funeral for Dr. Wynekoop's adopted daughter, Mary Louise, who died two years ago. The case was uncontested.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Arthur Meeker Writes Study of Opera Star

'Vestal Virgin' Is Written in Gentle Satire.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Vestal Virgin," by Arthur Meeker Jr. [Putnams.] Published yesterday.

To take her place with two great American heroines of the opera, Thea Kronberg in Willa Cather's "Song of the Lark" and Helma Seymour in Pitts Sanborn's "Prima Donna," there is now a German prima donna—Marie Lange in Arthur Meeker Jr.'s "Vestal Virgin."

Mr. Meeker, the author of two delightful and amusing tales, "American Beauty" and "Strange Capers," has, in his third novel, achieved a seriousness of purpose and an intensity of character analysis which his first two books implied rather than stated. He has done in "Vestal Virgin" a portrait of a prima donna similar, in her generic characteristics, to all prima donnas, but so individual as to be a character etched indelibly into the reader's mind.

Takes Heroine Through Life.

Marie Lange is a girl of 18 when the book opens, the daughter of an opera manager himself a singer. When the book closes she is a woman almost 75, mother of one and grandmother of another prima donna. In those intervening years Marie Lange has achieved everything that she dreamed of on her 18th birthday. She has sung the most difficult rôles in opera. She has seen her daughter become the toast of the most ardent audiences in Europe. She has trained her granddaughter to heights in the Metropolitan.

She has herself been decorated and fêted by kings, she has been the acknowledged first lady of the opera in Germany, she has sung Brünnehilde and Isolde at the great Wagner festivals, and she has been the queen of the most hallowed inner circle of the Musikalische Assistenz in Bayreuth. She has had everything that any prima donna ever could dream of in her art.

But Marie Lange at almost 75, like Marie Lange at 50, still wears black cotton gloves and takes a street car just as Marie Lange at 19 or 20 walked home from a concert that she had just given at the most impressive house in Munich because, although it had been necessary to arrive in a carriage, as befitted her rôle, there was no sense in spending money foolishly.

Music Her Standard in Life.

Marie Lange is at nearly 75 what she was on her 18th birthday, a hard-working, simply living, passionately dedicated devotee of music whom success, love, adulation, tragedy, the defection of her husband, her dearest friend's betrayal of her, even the greatest tragedy that she could conceive, leave almost unmoved emotionally, but who goes into spasms of rage because her daughter, with the voice of an angel, sings musical trash like Tosti's "Good-Bye." To Marie Lange there is only one standard of life—the standard of perfection in music.

Mr. Meeker has, with a very gentle satire, told the story of Marie Lange. "Vestal Virgin" fired by her deathless passion, sacrificing herself, her husband, her daughter, all about her for that dedication. With tender amusement Mr. Meeker tells her life story, so different from the tinsel-trimmed tales of other prima donnas . . . and probably much nearer the true story of the hard-working queens of opera than the bejeweled adventures which we all imagine to have been their lot.

As Real as Life Itself.

There is something very moving about Marie Lange's dedication . . . and something heroic and something tragic . . . and something irresistibly funny. In a word, she is as real as life itself.

The picture of the little opera troupe of the seventies offering a four weeks' season in Garmisch, its intrigues, its successes, and its near tragedies, is incomparable. Marie, young wife, young mother, fighting like a tigress for her art as other women would fight for the love of husband and child, is unforgettable. Arthur Meeker has created a character and recreated a scene which will give readers delight.

As for the musical background of the book, it is remarkable that a young man (only 31), who has himself never been a part of the operatic scene except through his friendship with famous opera stars, should have been able to do so scholarly a criticism of the music of opera as invariably issues from Marie's lips. She KNOWS what is good and she knows what isn't, and she knows—what is much more difficult—the gradations in the goodnesses and badnesses.

Mr. Meeker's book is rich in erudition, appreciation of and love for music. To some "Vestal Virgin" will be a vivid recreation of a period in one of the major arts, to others the exposition of an unusual and fascinating character, but to every one it will be amusing and valid and memorable entertainment.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

If you want a good, practical murder without any nonsense about it, you will like "Richardson's Second Case" [Doubleday-Doran], by Sir Basil Thompson. Here is straight detecting by one who knows, for Sir Basil was for years and years chief commissioner of Scotland Yard, the incarnation of all those legendary inspectors so dear to the hard hearts and sharp minds of the detective story addict.

It is a fluid and interesting detective story almost too well fitted together to be as realistic as it pretends to be, but when one reads that of the twenty-one murders Scotland Yard set out to investigate in 1933 only one went unsolved, one feels sure that coincidence and chance must play no considerable part in the success of the famous "Yard." A pleasant lot of people are involved and a normal and uncomplicated group of criminals and there is just one murder tending to prove that they don't naturally come wholesale.

Chiefly for its setting you will be interested in "Murder Mansion" [Dutton], by J. H. Wallis, for it tells a story of a fell mansion on Fifth avenue inhabited by a strange hermit family which is finally reduced to one suspicious old maid whose only gleam of joy is her little dog. Then things begin to happen. The story is of the many heirs and claimants, and a fine lot they are. The atmosphere is thick with greed and all uncharitableness, and the queerest sort of murders come off with great regularity.

Phyllis Bentley Tells Why of Modern Novel

Outlines Changes Since Victorian Era.

Phyllis Bentley, author of "Inheritance" and [published last month] "A Modern Tragedy," gave a lecture before the Chicago Woman's club last Tuesday on "The Modern Novel," and it was so thorough an exposition of the difference between the novel of today and the novel of the Victorian era that I wish every one of you might have heard it. I shall try briefly to give you its framework, although it was Miss Bentley's skilful adornment of that framework which added such charm to her scholariness.

The novel of today she said, differs from the Victorian novel in matter, in technique and in "faith" which she defined as "the author's view of the universe."

Features of Victorian Novel.

In matter, the Victorian novel was very long, very full of plot or of many plots; the characters were all sharply defined morally and socially; the scene was almost invariably England and in the upper classes.

Technically, all of the best of the Victorian novelists were extremely skilful in their construction, but they were always concerned with external action, and the solution to everything was always made before the last page. Except for their plots, they were very slipshod, she said, they threw in characters whenever they chose whether relevant to the plot or not and they allowed themselves digressions on any theme that struck their fancy. None of the Victorian novelists, she declared, were really conscious artists.

Meredith and Hardy were the first conscious artists of their generations, she said. Hardy enlarged the scope of English fiction by including Wessex peasants, and he changed the ethics of the novel. To him vice was not so much a failure as virtue was a triumph.

Bennett Influences Every Novel.

Then came Arnold Bennett, who believed that the artist should have a passion for technique and he chose the technique of realism, as opposed to Victorian romanticism. "Arnold Bennett has influenced every novel written since 1902," Miss Bentley declared. He likewise enlarged the scope of the English novel by including the great midland industrial life as material for the novel.

H. G. Wells enlarged it still further by including political, sociological, and economic discussions and John Galsworthy, through characterizing, together and in contrast (in his earlier books), people at both ends of the social scale and by admitting into English fiction the completely down and outer, by treating him not as Dickens saw him, but as he saw himself. Through Galsworthy English fiction retrieved the broader humanity of the 18th century, she said.

Two recent factors which made English fiction what it is today were Dr. Sigismund Freud and the great war, she said. The discoveries of psychoanalysis have profoundly changed the novelist's conception of character and have opened to him a deeper layer of consciousness. D. H. Lawrence, Dorothy Richardson, James Joyce, and Virginia Woolf have made obvious use of the subconscious; other fiction writers have used it less obviously, but surely.

New Faith Cries for Truth.

The actual period of the war was a desert in English fiction, she said, and it was not until 1923 that fiction became again vocative. Completely disillusioned, the novels of that day were short, cynical, sophisticated, polished . . . a revolt against everything that war had been. Then suddenly there emerged a post-war faith which cried for truth at any price and there came the stream of debunking novels—exemplified by Richard Aldington's work, and she quoted Beverley Nichols as saying, "Our generation we've seen THROUGH things."

In 1928 there came a sudden spate of war books, and finally it looked as if English fiction had shaken off the war when in 1929 there appeared "The Good Companions," by J. B. Priestley, a long novel full of people who laughed and were never bored . . . and the English novel had achieved again a hearty, robust, creative attitude toward life.

With a further vivid analysis of the ultra-modern techniques and search for material, Miss Bentley closed her lecture with a quotation from Rabelais, who said, "What God allows to happen, that will I allow to be written about," and as exemplative of the scope of the modern novel she quoted what, strangely enough, is the motto of the club before which she lectured—Vergil's "I think nothing human is alien to me."

History of Graphic Humor in America Is Published

"A History of American Graphic Humor," by William Murrell, is a unique volume, not only because it is published by the Whitney Museum of American Art and has an introduction by Christopher Morley, but because it is the first and only book of its kind. It is a scholarly study of pictorial satire from the time of the earliest known print up through the civil war. It is the only record of the social and political history of America as chronicled by the graphic arts. It is also source material on American humor.

Publish Two Biographies of Sydney Smith

May Bring Revival of Letters by Victorian Wit.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Having waited for ninety years for his first full length biography [written by Hesketh Pearson and published by Hamish Hamilton], Sydney Smith, the Victorian wit, is to be the subject of another book shortly to be produced. This is the sort of thing that often happens, and sympathy will be felt for Osbert Burdett, who is the author of the second book, and who has thus been forestalled. Readers need no sympathy, because they will be able to compare the two books and read in Mr. Burdett's pages a story familiar, indeed, but not therefore of diminished interest.

Mr. Burdett is an experienced biographer. He is the author of books about the Brownings and the Carlyles, Gladstone, William Blake, and Coventry Patmore. He will bring to the study of Sydney Smith a wide knowledge of the Victorian period. It will be interesting to see whether his portrait of Sydney Smith agrees with that of Mr. Pearson; and if the almost simultaneous publication of the two biographies leads to a revival of general interest in the author of the famous pamphlets issued by Smith under the title of "Peter Plymley's Letters," perhaps some enterprising publisher will reprint those letters for the amusement of contemporary readers.

Chapman & Hall are also bringing out the first biography—although we must not forget that Miss Sheila Kaye-Smith wrote some years ago, and published with Nisbet, a short study—of John Galsworthy. This is the work of Hermon Ould, the general secretary of the P. E. N. club. In connection with that world-wide organization of which Galsworthy, as president, was so active a creator, the two men had a great deal of close association during the last ten years of Galsworthy's life, and Mr. Ould, who is a poet and journalist of many years' standing, can speak of his friend with true sympathy.

He is going first of all to analyze the novels and plays, and is then to present the man as he knew him. The result should gratify all who admired Galsworthy the author, and who want to know something more of the reserved and honorable altruist who was Galsworthy the man.

Galsworthy is not the only modern author who is to be made the subject of a biographical study in the near future, for Basil Hogarth is engaged upon a book which is to deal with Somerset Maugham, his life, his books, and his personality.

This, although we all hope that Mr. Maugham will long be spared to us, is as it should be, for even England, though much slower to place "Of Human Bondage" where it belongs, as one of the great modern novels, than was the United States, has at last awakened to the fact that Mr. Maugham, besides being popular, is also rather larger in literary stature than recent idols, and is prepared to acclaim him as he deserves.

Officers Tell Net Proceeds of Benefits

Passavant Free Bed Fund to Get $7,500.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE free bed fund of the Passavant Memorial hospital soon will be $7,500 richer than it is now, for that is the amount that the Woman's Aid society of the hospital will turn over to the fund as a result of the benefit it sponsored last Friday night. The members of the society who worked so long and so efficiently to make the benefit a success are more than pleased at the amount they made, of course, and every one of them is eager to give a large share of the credit to their new president, Mrs. Francis Johnson, for they all say that she worked so tirelessly that she was an inspiration to every one else.

Just hard work, however, won't make a success of a charitable undertaking, as every one who has engaged in one knows, for it takes excellent organization and executive ability on the part of the person in charge, as well as tireless labor, to "put over" a benefit these days.

It is evident that Mrs. Johnson is following in the footsteps of her predecessor, that charming grande dame, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, figuratively as well as literally, for the numerous benefits that were given during the 25 years that she was president of the society were great successes. She led the women in their work of helping to raise the $1,500,000 that was needed for the new building in 1926, for she and Howard Elting were co-chairmen of the campaign for that large amount. She has not been active in charitable or social affairs for several years because of ill health and she retired from the active presidency of the society last October, becoming the honorary president.

Made Benefit of Ballet Opening.

This year's benefit was the premiere of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe which closed its week's engagement here Thursday night, having turned away thousands at the last few performances, so ballet conscious had Chicagoans become since the beauty and charm of the dancing had become known. The ballet is returning to Chicago for another week in April, opening either on the 16th or 23d. Perhaps some charity that needs funds badly will take advantage of the premiere to balance its budget!

As successful financially as the Passavant benefit was, the one for St. Luke's hospital still holds the record for the season, for the woman's board of that hospital, of which Mrs. John W. Gary is president, netted $17,270.82 at the fashion show it gave last October for the benefit of the social service department. The Service club, which gave its annual revue the week before the fashion show, cleared about $5,000 to divide between the forty or fifty charities to which it contributes, so Mrs. John Dern, the president, told us the other day.

About $4,500 was made for the Olivet Institute by the three performances of operas intimes that Mrs. Howard Linn arranged, and almost as much was made for the Girl Scouts, Inc., by the series of Monday night concerts. Mrs. William S. Monroe was chairman of the committee in charge of them and she explained to us the other day that many of their friends were surprised that the proceeds did not amount to more than $4,000 because there was such a large audience at each of the five concerts.

The Girl Scouts, however, only re-

Garden Club Opens Exhibit at Palm Beach

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The sixth annual flower show of the Palm Beach Garden club opened today at the Royal Poinciana conservatories, attended by 185 presidents of units of the Garden Club of America and delegates, who arrived today to attend the president's council.

Mrs. George A. McKinlock of Lake Forest, president of the Palm Beach Garden club and general chairman of the flower show, welcomed the guests. One of the judges was Mrs. John W. Gary of Glencoe, who is the guest while here of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy of Lake Forest, together with Mrs. Charles C. Hoffman, president of the Lake Forest Garden club. Mrs. Gary is a member of the national board of the garden club. Tonight the 185 delegates and all members of the Palm Beach Garden club were guests at a buffet dinner given by Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury at El Mirasol.

On Sunday a reception will be held in the patio and gardens of Casa Alejandro, Mrs. McKinlock's home, attended by the delegates and club members, after which all will be guests at a buffet luncheon of Mrs. Alfred G. Kay. Other visits to famous gardens are scheduled.

Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy received two perfect scores for her Easter dinner table decorated with crystal and calla lilies, and her economy table for children, which cost $7.06.

The flower show is acclaimed as one of the best ever given in the south. Mrs. McKinlock's arduous duties prevented her from making an exhibit this year. The central motif of the show is a reproduction of the Piazzi di Spagna in Rome, Italy, with painted murals as background and the steps of Trinita del Monte converted into a flower market.

Delegates from the Chicago section include, besides Mrs. Gary and Mrs. Hoffman, Mrs. Edwin Sherman, Evanston and Coconut Grove, Fla.; Mrs. A. Clement Wild, Evanston; Mrs. Gilbert W. Kelly, Kenilworth; Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy and Mrs. C. C. Haffner Jr., Lake Forest.

Edith R. McCormick Books Are Sold at Auction in New York

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Part of the library of the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, was sold at auction today at the American Art Association Anderson Galleries, Inc., where much of her furniture, silver, and art collection was sold early in January.

One of the groups in the library was a collection of Doves bindings, said to be the largest collection of bindings designed by and executed under the supervision of T. J. Cobden-Sanderson ever offered at public sale. These 120 bindings, mostly enclosing first and other editions of the writings of John Ruskin, were sold as individual lots for a total of $4,282.

Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, the former Muriel McCormick, daughter of Mrs. McCormick, gave $200 for a set of Balzac's works bound in full black polished morocco. She also paid $280 for a 20 volume set of the Joseph Jefferson edition of "The Dream: Its History, Literature, and Influence on Civilization," edited by Alfred Bates.

Jane McKinney Will Be Bride at Rites Today

A number of Chicagoans will motor to Winnetka this afternoon for the wedding of Miss Jane McKinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clegg McKinney, and Philip Edward Coyle Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Edward Coyle of Brookline, Mass. By candlelight the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard will read the service at 4:30 in the chapel of Christ church in Winnetka.

Miss Alice Tuloss, a cousin of Miss McKinney, is here from her home in Springfield, O., to be the maid of honor. Attending as bridesmaids will be Miss Emily Coyle, a sister of the bridegroom, Miss Helen Bell, and Miss Antoinette Lackner. And preceding Miss McKinney to the altar will be the Robert Shermans' tiny daughter, Alida, and Elizabeth Barber, who is the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Barber, as flower girls.

Charles D. McKinney, a brother of Miss McKinney, is to serve Mr. Coyle as best man. Ushering will be William Graves of Boston, Thomas and Stewart Boal, and Ross Langdon.

About 150 relatives and friends will hear Miss McKinney and Mr. Coyle exchange their wedding vows, but the reception following at the home of the bride's parents at 1215 Tower road, Winnetka, is to be very small. Mr. Coyle's mother and father are here from Boston. Other out of town guests will be Mrs. Emma D. Ervin and Mrs. Earl N. Miller, both of Springfield, O.

Mr. Coyle and his bride will leave on a wedding trip tonight, the destination of which is unannounced. They will make their home until spring in Beverly, Mass., then moving to a new house in Annisquam, another Massachusetts town.

At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Thorndike Hilton Memorial chapel of the University of Chicago, Miss Priscilla Kellogg, daughter of Harry F. Kellogg, will become the bride of Maj. Stuart Randolph Carswell of Washington. The Rev. Alfred Lee Wilson will read the ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends, and a reception will follow at the home of the bride's father on University avenue.

Miss Kellogg's only attendant will be her sister, Mrs. Ross B. Warren, the former Kathryn Kellogg. William Carswell will serve his brother as best man and Mr. Warren will usher. Maj. Carswell and his bride will go to Florida on their wedding trip and will make their home in Washington, where he is on duty with the historical section of the Army War college.

Out of town guests who will be present at the wedding are the bride's aunt, Mrs. Herbert B. Farnum of Rhode Island, and Mrs. William Carswell, who accompanied her husband from their home in Kansas City.

Phi Chi Medical Fraternity to Hold Founders Dinner

The annual Founders day dinner of the Phi Chi medical fraternity will be held at 7:30 tonight in the Hotel La Salle. Dr. Eben J. Carey, dean of Marquette university medical school and director of scientific exhibits at the World's Fair, will be toastmaster.

Mother's Gown

Tradition played an important rôle yesterday afternoon in the wedding of Miss Dorothy Louise Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dale Welch of Evanston, and Minier Sargent, son of the Fred Sargents, also of Evanston. The service was read by Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston before an altar banked with palms and calla lilies.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in her mother's white satin wedding dress, mellowed to ivory by the passing years. With its drop shoulder decolletage and its lace bertha it was suggestive of the Empire period. She also wore the tulle veil ruffled in lace that was used by her mother on her wedding day.

In one hand she carried a lace handkerchief that was her great-great-aunt's. Her bridal bouquet was a shower of valley lilies, white sweet peas, and gardenias.

Miss Adelyn Welch attended her sister as maid of honor, and Mrs. John Meyers Tittle, daughter-in-law of Dr. Tittle, was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Fredericka Sargent, a sister of the bridegroom, who came from Sarah Lawrence college for the wedding; Miss Jane Black, and Miss Barbara Kaye.

The gowns of the bride's five attendants varied only in color. They were stunning dresses of pebble crêpe designed with a dust ruffle, long sleeves, and drop shoulders. The accessories of sable brown matched tiny velvet muffs decorated with clusters of gardenias. Miss Welch wore a shade of pale green, Mrs. Tittle was dressed in dusty pink, and the three bridesmaids were gowned in buttercup yellow.

Haskell Sargent served his brother as best man. Ushering were John Tittle, Gerald Van Doren, Robert Lindsey Scott Jr., and John Harder of Escanaba, Mich.

Mr. Sargent and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Welch, and Mr. and Mrs. Sargent received their friends following the service at the Welch home at 1427 Judson avenue. Postponing their wedding trip until summer, the new Mr. and Mrs. Sargent will move into an apartment at 535 Hinman avenue, Evanston, the beginning of next week.

School Heads to Attend Superintendence Meeting

School officials and department heads will leave during the week-end for Cleveland to attend the annual convention of department of superintendence of the National Education association. Don C. Rogers, director of research and building survey, will take a number of school exhibits to the convention. Among the exhibits is a mural painting termed "A Century of Public School Progress," the work of Jefferson League, an artist employed in the school system under Civil Works administration funds.

"Prize Recipes from Jewish Kitchens," a booklet containing a collection of Jewish recipes, is on sale at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 2 cents; by mail, 3 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Sailed through the mail this morning and the desk fairly wiggles with question marks! One from F. A. B., anent angel foods and sunshine cakes, is too long to answer here, and anyway, we delved into the same subject recently. So, if you'll send us your address and a stamp, Mrs. B., we'll dash you the facts post haste.

And, by the way, friends, are you good at taking hints? Then would you help out a cooking editor by always jotting down your name and address when you write for information? A stamped envelope is a big help, too. You see, we just can't answer every question in these columns, and if we don't know where to ship the answer, qu'y—? So will-ya, pu-leeze?

But here's one which does deserve a spot in the sun. It comes from Mrs. J. K., who laments that her bread dries out the next day after baking, and who wants to know about the causes for staling. That's a matter, Mrs. K., which has worried a lot of scientists for a lot of years. Likely the last answer hasn't arrived yet, but to date this is the consensus of opinion. Staling, to be very scientific, seems to begin with the depositing of solid starch in the crum of the bread, starting some time between six and twenty-four hours after cooling. Bread seems to stale less quickly if we can store it [after cooling] tightly wrapped and in quite a warm, dry place. Again, this business of staling can be made to walk backwards by simply heating stale bread once more to a high temperature. And, as for the ingredients we use in bread, it seems that adding fat to bread delays staleness, that salt may hurry it, and that bread made with milk stales less speedily than does that made with water.

Mrs. S. G. F. likewise has a flock of questions on her mind. As a starter she asks the manner of caramelizing sugar to be sprinkled over desserts. The job is simple. Use a heavy frying pan and put in it the dry, white sugar. Place it over a low heat and stir steadily. The sugar will gradually change color, turning finally to a rich reddish brown. This may be used to add zest and sweetness to puddings and fruits. Don't let it go beyond this point, however, unless you wish to completely melt and caramelize it. The rich browned sugar, by the way, is great on top of a waffle or flap-jack, providing it is assisted by plenty of lazily melting butter.

Again, how about making cream cheese from sour cream? To begin with, unless you are a rather remarkable cheese making person, I fear you may find yourself a bit disappointed with homemade cream cheese. The equipment and the conditions seldom seem to be so ideal in our homes as they are in dairies and factories. But, for your own satisfaction, here, in general, is the way of it. If it's genuine the cream cheese is made either from rich cream thickened by souring, or from sweet cream curdled with rennet. This cream should always be pasteurized. First, the thickened cream is placed in a cloth and drained for about four days, the cloth being changed several times during this period. The mass is then placed on a board covered with a cloth, sprinkled with salt, and then turned occasionally until it's ripe, a matter of 5 to 10 days.

"What is tarragon vinegar?" asks another writer-in. And our response is that it's vinegar which has been flavored with tarragon, an evergreen, aromatic herb. It's often used to vary the flavor of French dressing, to give a pique to the tastiness of cabbage and similar strong flavored soups, and to lend zest to such dishes as beef a la mode, fish sauces, and sweet-sour beef tongue.

THE other day Mayor Kelly went to look at a Civil Works administration job and a little old man came up to speak to him.

"You are Eddie Kelly, aren't you?" he asked in a soft Irish voice.

The mayor said he was and greeted him.

"And you're mayor of this city now," continued the old man. "You were just a little fellow when I first saw you. I bet you'll niver remember me."

"Certainly. You're Casey," said the mayor; "and, to prove that I remember you very well, I'll ask about your old friend Moriarty. How is he?"

"You haven't heard what happened to Moriarty!" exclaimed the old fellow, shaking his head sadly. "Well, he's married to a divorced woman. He's not completely lost yet, though, because he still votes the straight Dimocratic ticket."

THAT Chicago still has characteristics of the prairie village from which it grew is indicated by the note from J. R. Burton. He writes that after the recent snowfall he saw animal tracks on Wacker drive, lower level, that his years in the country helped him to identify as those of the cottontail rabbit.

THE coin machine manufacturers of America—and they resent it if you say slot machine—have been in session at the Hotel Sherman this week. They've got their samples there, too—the familiar gum and candy machines and the gambling machines—but there are some new kinds, too. Newest of all are the ball-and-pin games that have a device for keeping the score of the player. We were pretty intrigued by the salted peanut machine that heats your peanuts for you while you wait. There also is a coin machine that gives you your lunch that is in use in New York apartment houses, but the sample is not being shown here. It is a device similar to the automat, and when you drop in your coin a sandwich and a piece of pie miraculously appear.

Good Morning!

Well—you never can tell from where you sit just how you'd act if you got lost in a jungle. Do you?

Yon great big two-fisted male probably thinks he'd be some shakes in such a predicament. He'd quell a lion with one eye the while taking the fight out of a cobra with the other. [Benturpinning in the wilds!] He'd lead his party to wells of pure water without a compass, and natives would just instinctively fall down and call him "Master!"

That's what maybe he thinks.

As for Pretty Lady to the right—she has dreams of being the sunshine of a safari; taming monkeys, teaching black bebbies kindergarten tricks and not being one—bit—scared when the wilde beestes yodle in the forests o' nights. [Her bravery inciting great admiration in the white explorer—who, up till that time, has scorned all females.] You see she knows her movies.

BUT—just suppose the bubonic plague broke out among the crew of the ship on which they were sailing, AND, after an awful night in a lifeboat in which they'd escaped, the two of them really and truly found themselves en-jungled with nobody who was in the least familiar with native country, customs, or conversation to help them out! What then, Brave Bucko and Pretty Lady . . . ?

"Four Frightened People," while dctailing the adventures of its characters goes in for a bit of psychology. You see how four different minds react to hardship, peril, and terror. The quartet spotlighted are a prim little school teacher, Miss Jones, an energetic clubwoman — Mrs. Marsdick, whose slogan at the time is "No More Babies!", a high pressure newspaper man with radio connections and a timid chemist, who, to quote a title, "never had the courage to shake the heel of Life off his neck."

This strangely assorted aggregation—with a guide, who wears a necktie, claims to be white and doesn't know the way, get lost together . . .

The picture is interesting, though neither story nor analyses went very deep with me. All of the players do more than justice to their rôles—with laurels to Mary Boland. During a time spent as hostage with a Malay tribe, she, as Mrs. Marsdick, organizes the women against the men, carrying on her "no more babies" campaign so successfully that her male captors would gladly give her even unto the half of all their beads and war paint to have her go 'way back where she started from. Amusing, Miss Boland!

There's nothing specially unusual about the love affairs—and affrays—that occupy much time and attention on the parts of Miss Colbert, Mr. Marshall, and Mr. Gargan.

The film, adapted from the novel by E. Arnot-Robertson, is ably directed and may prove highly exciting to you. Most of it, I understand, was made in Hawaii and adjacent island jungles.

[How fast can you say the last phrase?]

See you tomorrow.

New Costume Clips Solve Old Problem

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Discovered! An alternate for the eternal white accents that make otherwise patient sisters cuss with fervor because of the daily wash-out stunt to keep such frills and white wisps speckless!

New dead white or shiny white costume jewelry . . . every piece will dramatize your blackest or bluest frock or suit. Stunning, startling big blobs of whiteness in composition stuff that will handsomely decorate the best chests in town.

Bar pins are revivals of quaint old fashioned huge breast plate pins of grandmother's time. One oblong affair is made with fat, comfortable roses and fatter leaves and some funny scrolls all carved out of the white . . . rather complicated and heavy as to description but tremendously smart and swanky on the front of your severest one-piece black or blue frock.

Big over-sized bracelets to match are carved in the generous proportions of a past decade when jewelry was still related to the barbaric clanking affairs of the time when jewelry had to be literally seen for miles to be effective.

You can buy all kinds of smart clips . . . from smallish half circles in a modern manner to great gobs of white that look like nothing at all when in the case, but swanky as a new spring hat when clipped to the lapels of a street dress of black or dark colored thin wool.

And here is a new trick for the gals who insist upon a bit of white at the wrist . . . instead of the aggravating struggle to keep these poetical looking white organdy cuffs clean and crisp, try a clip attached at the center of your dress cuff, try the lighter ones first and if this doesn't start a new clip season nothing ever will . . . look over this white display and rejoice that some understanding soap-suds shrinking soul has invented a white that will stay white through the trials of the dingiest day!

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring, though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce and uses this as an excuse to oppose their marriage. When Barbara determines to marry Rance regardless, her father has a stroke. Barbara fears he'll kill himself deliberately. She promises him she won't marry Rance without his consent. Gregory goes away and Barbara strives futilely to put him out of her mind. Disbrough, her father's partner, is a frequent visitor at Lynwood. Barbara appeals to her father to help her readjust her life.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

A HUSBAND SELECTED.

Barbara thought a moment, carefully considering her words. "But I can't forget Gregory—that's a different matter. How am I going to face realities—make my life over? I've got to. I just can't go on like this, week after week, month after month. Don't you see I'm desperate?"

He relaxed and his glance went down to the desk.

"So you want to leave me?"

He reached over and shifted the limp left hand along the top, a gesture of silent accusation to which he always resorted in their differences. She drew a quick breath.

"I am never going to leave you," she said hurriedly. "Only from time to time, for a little while, I must have a moment. Just now I want to get away from myself; I need to rub up against new people. I'm doing my best, but I'm tired out. I can't control my thoughts here, where there is nothing to distract me, where there is nothing but memories. Surely you understand."

"Yes." His voice softened as his fear vanished. "I understand better than you think. It's not only selfishness——"

"I have never made any reproaches."

"That's true." He nodded gravely. "My dear, time does everything. You've been hurt and you think life is ended. But it isn't. Some day you'll look back and wonder at this episode as something incredible."

"There's one thing I never want to do again—fall in love. It hurts too much." Despite herself, she felt the tears rising to her eyes. She brushed her hand hastily across them, looked at her father. "It's because I am tired that I am weak."

"Any way I can help you, Miss Barbara."

He himself was moved at this rare exhibition.

"You did right to come to me," he said unsteadily. "You must always come to me. You can trust me to understand."

She put out her hand and took his.

"A few weeks by myself, you know. At the sea shore. I thought of Cousin Roberta."

"All right!" Go off and don't be too serious. Play a bit. I should have noticed before——"

"Disbrough has been talking to him," she thought, amazed at his docility.

"I feel better already." She rose smiling. "And don't worry about me, father—you know what I mean."

He hesitated a moment, drawing his eyebrows together.

"My dear, everything that happens to us is for the best. You've had an unfortunate experience but it has taught you something. Marriage is a serious undertaking. The next time you will face it seriously."

"The next time?" she said amazed.

"Certainly. Under the proper circumstances I see no reason now why you shouldn't be looking to your future. You've had a hard lesson. You won't make that mistake again."

She stiffened, was on the verge of a quick retort, thought better of it, and left the room. Disbrough was in the parlor. She went up to him.

"Thank you."

He bowed, heels together, formal and correct.

"Any way I can help you, Miss Barbara," he said, dropping his glance. She went to her room and stood staring out of the window.

"I am right. Because it could never be a question of love, he is the man father wants me to marry."

The next day, with a feeling of escape, she went to visit her cousin, Miss Roberta Brawne, an old lady who lived in Locust Valley. Disbrough met her at the station, took her to lunch, came down at the week-end; always solicitous and sympathetic, but always detached and correct.

Though Martin Brawne had yielded reluctantly to Disbrough's suggestion, no sooner was Barbara gone than he was in a panic. What if she were deceiving him? She had never promised not to see that scribbling fellow. Mistake. He should have insisted on a complete renunciation. At the time, he could have forced anything from her. Why hadn't he thought of it?

Supposing Rance was in New York? No sense of decency would hold back a fellow like that. What a fool he had been to risk a chance meeting. If Barbara were on the verge of a breakdown it was because she had never forgotten him. She had told him as much. She loved him still. Mad, infatuated! Would he ever be rid of the fellow? Never until he made up his mind to see her married to some one else. If he married her to Disbrough? The thought had been in his mind already, but as a project in the not too immediate future. Supposing he delayed too long? Supposing he should be carried off suddenly? The man would get her. Not a doubt of that. The idea tortured him.

Never before had Barbara been away from him more than a few days. All his routine was upset, and at the end of life routine is a refuge from disturbing realizations. How suddenly everything in Lynwood had aged, now that she was gone! Despite all his opposition to the younger generation, he clung to youth and shrank from the realization of his own age. She had carried away the light and left him to the darkness of his realities. Heavens, how funereal the dinners had become, with Mattie excavating for bones and Abbie with her ear trumpet. Two old women, dying day by day, and old Thomas creaking in his joints, stumbling about the table. No walks in the morning, arm in arm through the gardens. No youth in the library or at his side in the landau. A dreary, unlovely, talkative, Miss Goff from the village, taking her place at the whist table.

A dozen times he was on the point of telegraphing Barbara to return. His irritability increased. Every one glanced at him apprehensively when he entered the room. He quarreled with the water company and started a suit. He quarreled with the farm hands, and threatened to dismiss Peter, the coachman. His recurring rages upset his digestion. He took to his bed. If he were ill Barbara would have to come back.

When Dr. Richards arrived for his semi-annual examination he found his patient in a high state of agitation with an alarming increase of blood pressure. Dr. Richards was not a man to mince words.

"Mr. Brawne, I'm going to tell you the truth in plain words."

"Sit down."

"You are on the verge of having another stroke. You were warned by me a year ago to give up all forms of alcohol. You didn't do it. I repeated the warning and supposed that you were obeying my orders——"

"Does the damn fool think that's what's upsetting me?" thought Brawne, with a look that was so expressive that the doctor continued:

"In plain terms, Mr. Brawne, if you continue to indulge in the heavy wines you are accustomed to drink, and at the same time allow yourself to be worked up into emotional paroxysms, you'll have a stroke—and there's very chance that that next stroke will carry you off!"

"You mean that?"

"Every damn word, sir! It's a wonder you're sitting here today!"

"Well," said Martin Brawne in sullen anger, "then I've got to obey."

"To disappear suddenly in a stroke of apoplexy," he was thinking, that's just what he would like. That would make everything easy. I mustn't be such a fool—not now. I've got to get her married first."

Travel Prod to Creativeness in Youngsters

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I don't believe in too much jaunting for young children—or in too much sightseeing for the middling ones. But sights and sounds outside the four walls of home are stimulating and enriching to them.

How can the child who has never been on a railroad train play that fascinating game of being engineer or conductor with chairs lined up, and the family of dolls or toy animals for passengers, and perhaps a uniform and a bell and tickets and a punch? One journey by rail will provide a mine for imaginative play—for pictures—and for block building for a long time to come.

A trip to the zoo furnishes another sort of stimulating experience. It makes pictures of animals come alive, it provides topics of conversation, subjects to draw or paint or model, and ideas for building with blocks.

A walk through the streets with leisure for stopping may give a child his first acquaintance with derricks and mixers or with the process of laying a new pavement.

A boat trip for the average child is a rare adventure. It gives reality to the stories he reads and the pictures he sees and will, like all his other experiences, be incorporated in his play.

Officers Tell Net Proceeds of Benefits

Passavant Free Bed Fund to Get $7,500.

ceive the proceeds of the tickets sold directly by the committee and since many of each audience bought their tickets at the box office the last day or two, the Girls Scouts did not benefit by those.

Vocational Society to Clear About $3,500.

The Vocational Society for Shut-Ins will clear about $3,500 from the Town Hall lectures and the dance recital by Nini Theilade sponsored by the society this winter. Mrs. Dewes Burgweger just recently has turned over the duties of president of this society to Mrs. Earle J. Zimmerman.

The Red, White and Blue club was unfortunate in having its benefit, a concert by George Gershwin, on a Sunday afternoon on which one of the series of Emerson house benefit performances was being given, and in starting to sell its boxes just after the Passavant had disposed of all of theirs, so the proceeds were not as large as the quality of the entertainment and the hard work of the women on the committee warranted. They raised enough, about $1,200, however, to carry the club along until next fall. Mrs. Thomas R. Gowenlock is the club's attractive and lovely young president.

The series of benefits for Emerson house will not be completed until spring, so Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, the president, has no idea of how much will be cleared for the settlement house.

Boxes in Demand for Ickes Lecture.

The officers of the League of Women Voters have proved their broad-mindedness during the last 24 hours sacrificing as they have their boxes for Harold L. Ickes' lecture this evening in Orchestra hall.

The situation is this: The demand for boxes has so far exceeded the supply that the league heads have very graciously given up their "preferred" places to their friends and guests.

All of the "serious minded" of society are planning to be present, for they are interested in hearing Secretary of the Interior Ickes' discussion of "The New Deal and Its Future." Mrs. Ickes, after a dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy, will sit with them and Mrs. Alfred Tyler for her husband's lecture.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Winston, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. William Gold Hibbard, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Canahy Jr. are among others who will be present with parties of their friends.

Fancy Riding Will Precede Dinner Dance.

Excitement in Lake Forest tonight will concentrate around the Deerpath inn and the Onwentsia riding stables at the novel dinner dance the S. Bayard Colgates are giving. The novelty of the dinner dance lies in the fact that the party starts out with a bit of plain and fancy riding for those of the guests who desire a bit of sport before dining at the inn.

Every one will come dressed in blue jeans or overalls, and the party will be very informal and gay, with a popular crooner present to sing cowboy ballads. Mr. and Mrs. Colgate are living at the inn this winter.

Hubert C. Herring, the executive director of the committee on cultural relations with Latin America, is to discuss "Our Latin American Policy" at the luncheon meeting of the council at 12:30 today at the Palmer house.

Mr. Herring, a student of Latin America, has just returned from a Caribbean and South American trip, during which he attended the Montevideo conference. Walter Lichtenstein, the council president, will make the introduction.

M. Louis Chapard, professor at the University of Michigan, is lecturing on "Paul Gauguin, peintre et écrivain d'art," at noon today in the library of the Alliance Francaise.

Edward and Leander McCormick Sail.

Edward and Leander McCormick, who paid a fleeting visit to Chicago early in the week, sailed last night at midnight on the Majestic for their English homes. They came to this country several weeks ago because of the death in Miami of their father, L. Hamilton McCormick.

A gay group of young people who will spend the week-end riding, skating, and relaxing in the pleasant country atmosphere of the Dunham Woods inn. These week-end vacationers include the Raymond Otis Mitchells, the John I. Shaws, Miss Jane Rowe, the Bruce Thornes, and Mrs. Thorne's brother, Malcolm Stevenson.

The Valentine C. Bartletts are leaving for Florida today. They are going to spend a week or so touring the state to find just the community in which to rent a house for the rest of the season. They will be settled in one by the Easter holidays, for at that time their two sons, Valentine Jr. and Charles, will join them for their spring vacation. The young Bartletts are attending the Bell school in Lake Forest.

Mrs. James Gillies and Mrs. John Hansel left Thursday for New Orleans and Mexico.

Angus Hibbards Going to Arizona.

The Angus Hibbards are leaving tomorrow for their cottage at Rancho Linda Vista in Tucson, Ariz., where they will spend a month. Mr. Hibbard's niece, Miss Lauretta Seaman of Fox Point, Milwaukee, will be their guest.

The Henry Selzes have joined the migration south. They left yesterday for Miami Beach with their younger son, Henry Jr., to be gone until the middle of April.

William A. Cremin has recovered so well from his long siege of pneumonia that he is leaving for Princeton today, returning to college instead of taking it easy for the rest of the winter as it was thought at first he would have to do.

A Chicago student at Connecticut college who has been distinguishing herself in the field of sport is Miss Betty Archer, daughter of Mrs. J. De Wolf Archer of Evanston. In addition to being a member of the varsity basketball team, Miss Archer, who is a senior, is the only one of her class to be made a member of the honorary varsity tennis team.

Marriage

MRS. RICHARD R. TAYLOR

[Lindquist Photo.]

Mrs. Gladys Beckett of Decatur announces the marriage on Feb. 6 of her daughter, Leanore, to Richard R. Taylor of East St. Louis. Mrs. Taylor was chosen by THE TRIBUNE last summer to serve as a member of the court of honor of the queen of A Century of Progress. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will make their home in East St. Louis.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Bargains, bargains! These are increasingly good days to shop for beauty aids, we find, because so many of the big houses are offering little "teaser" packages of this and that at invitingly reduced prices to tempt women to become acquainted with products they might hitherto have found too expensive to experiment with.

There is, for example, one little combination package of a full size box of powder with a full size container of rouge, both offered, at the moment, for the price of one. There is one combination for brunettes, a subtle rachel powder wed, beneath its cellophane wrapping, to a tin of raspberry rouge.

For women who're fair there is a deliciously scented, delicately pale powder matched with a geranium rouge. This powder is a fairly new blend in this line and a most successful one.

A beauty specialist offering these inviting little combination packs in our Chicago stores was, if we remember corectly, the first to individualize powders to the different types of skin. She creates two kinds in all her shades, one for the oily and normal skin, one for the dry. As women who have used her powders can testify, it's an excellent division to make since, after all, the plentitude or the lack of oil in one's own skin has a greatly deal to do with the ultimate effect of powder on one's face.

We have used the powders for dry skin with considerable success. Since they're the least bit heavy they will, on a medium dry skin, adhere pretty well even without a foundation—which isn't a good idea in practice but illustrates this specialist's theory rather successfully. The powders recommended for oily skins are naturally a bit lighter in weight.

You'll find these combination packages practically all over the place, and if your rouge and powder supply is dwindling you might tie a string around your finger to remind you to look for it next time you go shopping.

First Duty of Spring Is That of Scalp Care

Brushing, Kneading, Oiling Aid Hair Condition.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

This is the time of year when what ails your beauty becomes apparent to more than your own eye, and as skins that have suffered or are suffering blemish; figures that have been feasting too well, hair that has lost its pristine light and glory.

It is of the latter we would talk today.

Reconditioning dry, brittle, and lifeless looking hair, of which there seems to be plenty about, is the duty ahead. The overdry, parched scalp leads in scalp and hair disorders, perhaps due to overmuch waving under hot dryers and, again, to overheated rooms and general spring dehabilitation.

But here is one feature the correction of which carries no discouraging phases at all. About all you need for the correction is the will to have better hair. The incidentals required to effect the change are simple. But that intention to do better by your locks is the thing. I repeat, if you're determined, nothing under heaven will keep you from imparting new life and gloss to the dry locks.

The secret lies entirely in the scalp. No use putting things on the hair until that scalp of yours has been put on a rejuvenating program. It's an overdry, parched scalp to begin with, or the hair wouldn't be as it is. Whether, as claimed, the high nervous tempo of the day affects the hair, whether it is the overheated apartments, or the wearing, overlong, of tight, little hats, inferior waving lotions, poor permanents and home applied bleaches, it is the scalp you have to invest with new life before the hair will register any noticable change. If you can afford a course of six weekly treatments from a hair expert, by all means go in for it. This professional care is extremely satisfying when done expertly. Economize on something else, but get the hair in shape for the hat, for a lot of hair is going to flow under the rolled brim this season, and be seen plainly.

Massage your scalp yourself if you can't afford professional work. Knead and knead that scalp of yours until you feel a healthy glow. Rub it with your finger tips. Give five minutes a day, or evening, to this care. Brush vigorously with a hairbrush that gets right down into the scalp, and knead some more. Then, even if your hair does look a little greasy for a brief spell, rub a little oil into it nights. Saturday night simply soak the scalp and hair with hot oil, and Sunday morning shampoo it.

George Brent Asks Court to Hold Contract Is Void

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—George Brent, actor, asked the Superior court today to rule that his contract with Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., terminated Dec. 18, 1933. The company suspended Brent for his refusal to play a rôle he considered unsuitable for him and stopped his salary for the time the photoplay was under production. Warner Brothers contended Brent's contract still is in force.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

THE FOURTH HAND OPENING BID.

IT is my contention that the bidding may be opened after three passes on a relatively weak holding. Certainly the fourth hand need not be as powerful as for a first-hand opening, for two reasons:

1. A pass by the first three hands indicates a fairly even distribution of the high cards.

2. You are no longer concerned with the defensive factor. If you pass, no loss can be incurred. The point is, can you obtain a plus instead of a zero?

P. HAL SIMS.

I generally prefer to play for the plus score, for the encouragement derived from the failure of the two opponents to bid outweighs any pessimism induced by my partner's pass.

The following considerations influence my judgment to bid or pass:

1. Does my hand contain safe rebid values if the opponents enter the bidding? If so, I will bid.

2. Does my hand contain reliable defensive values if my opponents play the hand? If so, I will bid.

Should the hand contain neither of these requirements, I will pass, unless,

3. My hand contains enough strength in the major suits so that an overcall of one can be made only in no trumps or in one, not in both, of the major suits. If it lacks the major suit strength, I will pass unless I have enough defensive elements to defeat a game declaration in the majors or such distribution as to bid high enough against the opponents for a small penalty, if my partner is unable to assist me.

"SIGNING OFF" AS A SAFETY MEASURE.

When using our method of bidding, the response of one no trump to an opening bid is a negative, discouraging sign and is known as "sign off."

Likewise the rebid of the original suit is also considered as a minimum rebid. With this understanding a vital safety factor is established. Penalties are thus avoided when opening with hands that are in first or second positions a pass.

I propose to furnish a few examples from which it will be seen that we open, in fact, advise openings in the fourth-hand position with as low as one and a half primary tricks, such as the aggressive type of hand with its strength in the majors.

Spades—A J x x x x Diamonds—x
Hearts—K 10 x x x Clubs—x

One spade should be bid, the longer suit. Over an adverse bid, the hearts can be bid with safety at two, and a small risk taken in showing them at three. With this hand the spade K and heart Q J alone in your partner's hand would probably produce a game.

2. It is essential that when the minimum type of hand has its strength in a minor suit, adequate protection should be held in both majors.

Spades—K 10 x x Diamonds—A Q 10 x x
Hearts—J x x Clubs—x

One diamond should be bid. Suppose your partner passed.

Spades—A J x x Diamonds—K x
Hearts—Q x x Clubs—x x x x

He would respond with one spade and a game can be made if the diamonds break and the spade finesse is taken correctly.

3. Another two-tricker. Only made because the strength is in spades, and with strength in your partner's hand, the opponents would have to bid too high in hearts or in the minor suits to make their contract.

Spades—K Q 10 x x x Diamonds—Q x x
Hearts—A x Clubs—J x x

Should be bid one spade.

4. This hand contains three primary tricks, but is generally considered a pass fourth hand.

Spades—K x x Diamonds—A x x
Hearts—A Q x x x Clubs—x x

Should be bid one heart.

With the following hand, which your partner would have passed, five odd can be made in spades or hearts, providing these two suits are distributed evenly in your opponents' hands:

Spades—A Q x x x Diamonds—x x x
Hearts—K x Clubs—x x x

J. Jeffrey Grant Awarded Gold Medal for Painting

J. Jeffrey Grant was awarded the gold medal of the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors for his painting, "Street Scene in Gloucester," is was announced yesterday at the Art institute. The painting, showing a busy street scene in the fishing village of Gloucester, is on display in the first main gallery of the Chicago Artists' show in the institute.

Boys Object to Parents Around When They Call

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Several boys sent a joint letter containing objections to the kind of treatment accorded them when they spend an evening at the girl's home.

The first one reads: "We wish the old folks would retire and leave us alone."

Second: "It seems as if you have to see the entire family when you go to see the girl."

Third: "We wish there would be less fuss over us, that they would be more informal."

Fourth: "We wish the old folks wouldn't put us in a witness box about our business, our ambitions, and so on."

There were some other objections—but the above are the main ones directed at the family of the girl, or "the old folk," as the young men call them.

We gather that it is just the type of young man caller who'd better have the "old folk" peeking in once in a while on the scene or somehow making their presence in the household known. We're all for parents in the home with a chaperonish eye and this they cannot keep without an occasional look-in.

But perhaps there is some criticism justified if there is fuss made over boys by the "old folk." Better let them slide in without too much welcoming the first time or two until they get used to the atmosphere. This goes for the questioning, too, unless one has reason to suspect the company is not desirable. Then the questions rightly should be fired on the first visit by way of definitly discouraging return engagements. After all, it is the parents' business to know what kind of company their daughters keep. If daughter can't bring in a clean bill of health with her guests she deserves to suffer a little discomfiture in the questioning.

Also there should be an established hour for leave-taking. But this before the guest arrives. The smart young miss can tactfully get the boy and his hat and overcoat together before Pa is forced to set the alarm clock ringing or stomp down the stairs inquiring who is keeping the light on.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Loeb of 1136 Hyde Park boulevard announce the engagement of their daughter, Arlyne Hanchen, to Milton L. Aaron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Aaron.

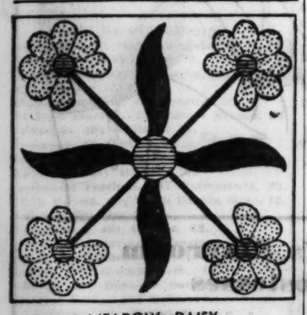
Early Americans' Outdoor Interests Are Quilt's Motif



MEADOW DAISY.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Since our early American ancestors reflected characteristics of the age in their quilt names, the titles give evidence that they were great outdoorsmen. Farming was one of the principal industries, and meadow daisies were abundant, hence a quilt block of that name. It is pieced in orange, brown, and grass green.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Chicago Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn, and Tribune Tower.

Ricardo Cortez Backs Play for New York Stage

Former Chicago Pharmacist Helps Write It.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Ricardo Cortez, spelling his name backward as Zeirroc, Inc., has become financial angel for a New York stage production, a play called "Shoe String." Kubec Glasmon, the Chicago pharmacist who learned to author and made a success of it, is in New York together with Sidney Salkow, another writer, to whip the production into shape.

Leo H. Kalem, sergeant, Battery B, 13th United States Field artillery, stationed at Honolulu, is going to take a photograph of himself and Irene Dunn back to Honolulu to square things with his commanding officer. Kalem has been one of Irene's most diligent fan public for years, writing her frequently, and when he got a recent leave he came to the mainland and Hollywood and hung around the doors of the Radio studio, hoping to see the lady of his adoration go by.

He didn't succeed in catching a glimpse of her, and finally went to the studio front office and asked for a photograph of Miss Dunne. Some one hearing his story told Irene, who sent word to have Sergeant Kalem come back and be her guest at dinner. The news, when conveyed to Kalem last Wednesday, made him gloomier than ever because his leave expired that night. So he cabled to Honolulu to his commanding officer asking one day more because he had a date for dinner with Irene Dunne.

He received this return cable collect: "Think you a liar. However, make it a dinner for one more. Thirty-six hours granted." The only way the soldier could prove it back in barracks was by a photograph, and Miss Dunne, being a good sport, suggested that he pose with her.

John Eldredge, straight from the New York stage run in "Joyous Season," is cast as lead with Kay Francis in Warner's "Dr. Monica." Asked what the film was about the informent at Warner studio was frank: "I don't know. It's a Polish play and the author's name is more than one line of type in length so nobody could pronounce that nor read any further." Verree Teasdale, waiting to become Adolphe Menjou's third bride, and Jean Muir are both in "Dr. Monica."

Asked how she and Johnny Weismueller were getting along, Lupe Velez said, "We are fighting our way to happiness." The latest disagreement took place when Johnny got a wire from a circus in the east offering him some incredible weekly salary for the next twenty weeks. Johnny wanted to go, but about three weeks ago Johnny had insisted that Lupe reject an offer to go east at a big stage salary.

Wallace Beery and Jack Cooper are to be teamed again in a Metro special picture, "Treasure Island."

Two Churches on West Side Complete Plans to Merge Tomorrow

Two well known west side churches have completed details for their merger and beginning tomorrow morning they will hold services as a single congregation. The churches involved are the Monroe Street Federated church, California avenue and Monroe street, and the Warren Avenue Congregational, 3101 Warren boulevard.

The two congregations will worship as a unit in the Warren Avenue church with the Rev. Howard Stone Anderson continuing as pastor. The Monroe Street church, which will pass out of existence, was formed 16 years ago when a Disciples church merged with a neighboring Congregational group. Since last November the congregation has been without a regular pastor. It has been served, in the meantime, by Dr. Frank Dyer, whose ministrations will cease with the new merger. Dr. H. A. Hadley and Philip Vivian have been leaders of the two merger committees. The merger will create a church with a congregation numbering 650 persons.

Paris Borders Chiffon Scarves with Regal Ermine

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—There are going to be lots of evening frocks of chiffon, tulle, and lace when spring comes around, if one can count on the edicts of Paris being obeyed. Paris revives the filmy frock with scarf drapery at the top, and the way of the chiffon scarf is intricate and attractive.

The chiffon scarf that Augustabernard features is shown at the top. It is made of darkest green chiffon with the ends sewed together so the arms may be slipped through. Five bands of ermine, dyed dark green to match the chiffon, trim this scarf, which is twisted around the neck and worn as sleeves along the arms.

A Molyneux evening scarf that is worn like a cape is shown at the bottom. This scarf is made of pastel blue chiffon cut like a bertha across the front. The long pointed ends hang below the hipline in back and are held together by a knot of chiffon. On the chest Molyneux sews three huge velvet orchids that give a bib effect. This scarf is worn with a black mermaid line evening dress.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt attended the memorial service this morning for the late King Albert of Belgium at the Catholic university. She was accompanied by the secretary of state and Mrs. Cordell Hull, and Col. Edwin M. Watson and Capt. Walter N. Vernou, military and naval aids of the President.

This afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt received a group of the leading members of the League of Democratic Women Voters of Virginia. Mrs. Adele Clark, who presented Mrs. Roosevelt with a scarf, a product of Virginia workers, headed the delegation.

A small company of guests were entertained at dinner tonight by President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the Vice President, was entertained at luncheon today at the Mayflower by Mrs. Walter F. George, wife of the senator from Georgia.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, wife of the senator from Illinois, gave an at-home yesterday afternoon, complimenting the speaker of the house and Mrs. Rainey and a number of Illinois friends who have recently come to Washington. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Peek, M. S. Szymczak, member of the federal reserve board, and Mrs. Szymczak; Mr. and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Granger.

The Polish ambassador, Stanislaw Patek, entertained at dinner tonight and had the speaker of the house of representatives and Mrs. Henry T. Rainey. The company included also Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis.

St. James' Catholic Church Has Reunion; Throngs Are Present

Several hundred former parishioners of the historic St. James' Catholic church mingled with present parishioners at a festive reunion at the Metropole hotel, 2300 South Michigan avenue, last night. Proceeds will be used to buy books, coal, equipment and repairs needed in the parish school. The pastor is the Rev. James P. O'Donoghue. Mrs. Harold C. Hayes, wife of the hotel owner, was in charge.

The present church at 29th street and Wabash avenue was built in 1880. Before that a wooden building at 27th street and Prairie avenue served as St. James' church.

Mrs. M. J. Feeney, 73 years old, of 6353 Kimbark avenue, who as Maria Gavin, 3 years old, attended the old church with her parents and eight sisters and brothers, was at the reunion last night.

Lawrence Leindecker, 79 years old, of 6541 Sangamon street, attended the church as a boy in 1865. His wife, Mary, was a member of the parish after their marriage in 1877. Both were present at the reunion, with their son, Charles, who had his first communion at St. James'.

Others were Mrs. William Meyer, 69 years old, 7949 Jeffery avenue, who was born in the parish; Mrs. Mary McBride, 8138 Harper avenue, a member in 1878; J. E. Murphy and his sister, Josephine, of 1316 East 54th street, parisioners since 1882.

COMPLETE GOLDEN GLOVES FIELD: 39 TEAMS

LAYTON WHIPS COCHRAN, 50-23, FOR CUE TITLE

11th Championship for Veteran Player.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., regained the world's three cushion billiard championship tonight by overwhelming the defending title holder, Welker Cochran, 50 to 23.

In forty-two innings that required an hour and forty-five minutes to play, the 47 year old Layton captured the crown for the eleventh time in a game that proved to be a walk away.

Not once during the game did Layton, former carpenter and ex-professional wrestler, who is also a noted fisherman, lose the advantage. His use of the system play calling for mathematical exactness accounted for an astonishing triumph that left the defending champion almost helpless as he tried in vain to bridge the ever widening gap between his own score and that of his rival.

Layton's Best Game.

From the standpoint of the least number of innings, it was also Layton's best of the tourney that had been in progress since Feb. 5, and brought him his ninth triumph. Until tonight he and Cochran were tied at eight victories and two defeats each.

While tonight's game actually became a scoring landslide as Layton proceeded to bag his points early and often, leading by 24 to 4 in the fifteenth, it also stirred the capacity crowd by an exciting incident in the sixteenth inning.

Layton had just come from the table after having clicked his twenty-fifth point and he was in front, therefore, 25 to 4. Cochran then asked the referee, Charles McElligott of Chicago, to change the ivories. McElligott sent for a new set, but Layton said he was content with the cue ball he had been using. So the referee set down new ones to replace the other two.

Cochran Looks in Rules.

The game then was delayed as Cochran went into a huddle with the referee and C. A. Storer, president of the National Billiard association, concerning the rules. But as the referee had not declared Layton's ball unfit for play Cochran was obliged to continue with the Missourian using the same cue ball with which he had begun the game.

Cochran appeared upset for a while, and neither player counted in the next two frames. Layton broke through to secure one in the nineteenth and Cochran also tallied in the same inning.

Layton, however, playing slowly and with meticulous care, then proceeded to roll up a prodigious margin. By the twenty-eighth he was in the van by 35 points, 37 to 12, and he made the match more one sided by a high run of 7, which came in the thirty-third. A tremendous cheer greeted Layton's fine string, which sent his total to 46, thirty points ahead.

Task Becomes Colossal.

Facing these tremendous odds, Cochran endeavored to get his game working. He managed to score in four successive innings from the thirty-second through the thirty-fifth to collect six points, but his task of overtaking Layton became colossal. Layton tallied his forty-seventh point in the thirty-fifth, went scoreless in the subsequent two, and ran two in the thirty-eighth to approach the victory.

Cochran added one point in the thirty-eighth and two in the forty-first, before the Missourian carried off the game by capturing the remaining point in the forty-second.

When the game was over, Layton, who won his last title in 1930, received a gold medal from President Storer and his share of the prize money, $1,500, as well as a slice of the gate receipts.

Cochran will play off for second place tomorrow afternoon, as he is tied at eight victories and three defeats with Allen Hall. Fourth place will also be decided in the playoff between Willie Hoppe, of New York and Jay Bozeman Jr. of Vallejo, Cal.

EVERYTHING O. K. WITH HERMAN; WILL JOIN CUBS

Babe Declares He's Not a Holdout.

Bush, Malone Arrive

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Guy Bush and Pat Malone, two veteran members of the Chicago Cubs' pitching staff, arrived today and will start conditioning Monday with the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league. They plan to work out with the Angels until March 1, when they will join the first contingent of the Cubs at Catalina island.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Floyd [Babe] Herman, Chicago Cubs outfielder who has been silent since he sent his unsigned contract back to the club, said today everything was "all right" and he will meet the team at Catalina island March 1 for spring training.

"I'm not a holdout at all," said Herman. "I just sent my contract back to President William Walker with a nice letter saying the salary wasn't right.

It Was O. K. in 1933.

"I'll meet him either here or at the island. We'll get it all fixed up in a minute. It's just like last year. I met Bill Veeck here and told him what I thought I ought to get and said O. K.

It was the Glendale slugger's day off and he was visiting the billiard room of Tom Sheehan, veteran Hollywood pitcher.

Herman has no fear of being traded or anything like that.

"I still say we're going to win the pennant," continued Babe by way of showing he is still a member of the Cubs even though his name isn't on the dotted line.

"We'd have won last year except that the New York Giants got some phenomenal pitching. That Hubbell was plenty tough."

Sees Cub Pitchers Strong.

This turned the conversation to pitchers. Herman believes the Chicago hurling staff has been strengthened over last season and added that this is another point in his contention they will win the National league title.

"Those three young fellows should do a lot. I saw Bill Lee work with Columbus and he had a nice curve and plenty of stuff. They tell me Dick Ward and this left hander, Roy Joiner, are just as good as Lee."

Herman put in a good word for his neighbor in Glendale, Casey Stengel, who was named manager of Brooklyn today.

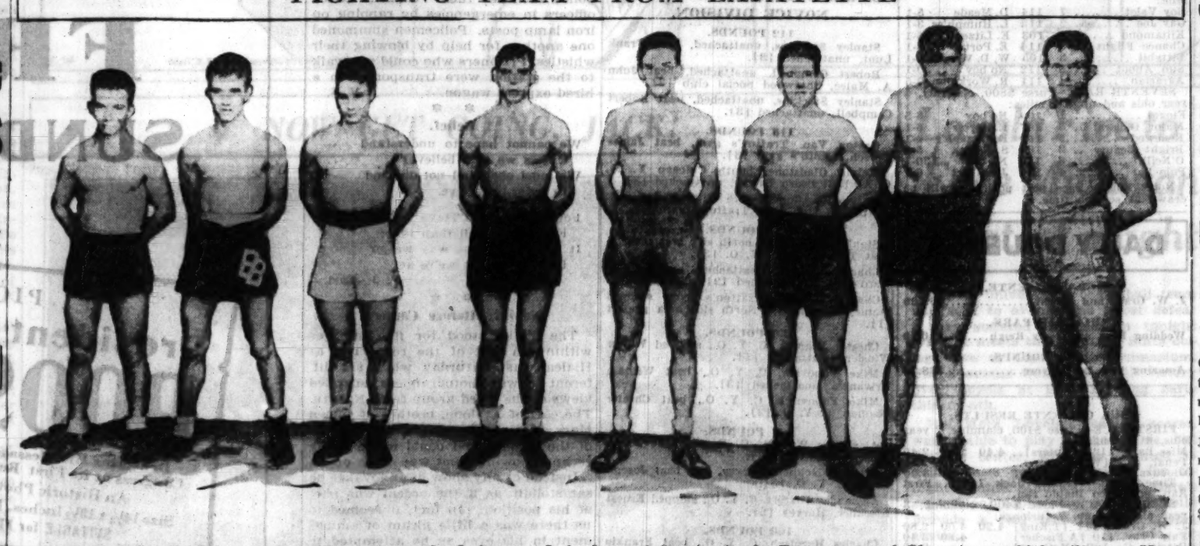
Gives Casey a Hand.

"He's a great fellow," said Herman. "The players will all have confidence in him and like him. That's important in a ball club—good morale. Casey will give the Dodgers that."

Herman said he was in great shape and ready to hammer the ball at a considerably higher average than last season.

"I'm going up to the desert for a week and shoot a few jackrabbits and cottontails before the spring season starts. Then I'll be ready to go to work."

FIGHTING TEAM FROM LAFAYETTE



Golden Gloves fighters who will represent the Lafayette, Ind., Journal-Courier in the Tournament of Champions, which will open Monday at Chicago Stadium. Left to right: Clayton Wilkinson, Oxford, flyweight; Bobby Blake, Delphi, bantamweight; Richard Noonan, Crawfordsville, featherweight; Earl Douglas, Crawfordsville, lightweight; Claude Moore, Purdue, welterweight; Bob Whitlow, Monon, middleweight; Everett Haley, Lafayette, light heavyweight; Roland (Sock) Kurtz, Purdue, heavyweight.

Michigan and Purdue Fives Meet Tonight

Games Tonight

Michigan at Purdue.
Wisconsin at Ohio State.
Minnesota at Iowa.
Illinois at Indiana.
Carbondale Teachers at Chicago.

The Big Ten conference basketball spotlight will be trained on Lafayette tonight, where Purdue's Boilermakers, the title almost within their grasp, meet Michigan in the outstanding contest of a four game schedule. Victory over the Wolverines tonight and over Wisconsin Monday night will assure the Boilermakers of their fourth undisputed championship.

Purdue's smooth working quintet, which has piled up 334 points, will be seeking its eighth victory. It defeated Minnesota last Monday night at Minneapolis before a record crowd of 13,600. The Boilermakers suffered their only defeat at the hands of Iowa.

Badgers to Play Buckeyes.

Wisconsin, in second place with five victories and three defeats, will oppose Ohio State at Columbus. The Badgers will be the favorites in the contest, which will end the Buckeyes' conference schedule for the season. The Buckeyes have been victorious in only four of their eleven games.

A crowd of 10,000 is expected to watch Iowa in its final home game against Minnesota. The Hawkeyes will be seeking to avenge the 39 to 38 defeat administered by the Gophers in their first game. The Hawkeyes are tied with Illinois for third place with five victories and four defeats.

The Hawkeyes have been drilling all week to stop Gordon Norman, Minnesota's giant center, who has scored 87 points in conference competition. It was Norman who led the attack against the Hawkeyes in the first encounter and tonight Ben Selzer and John Barko, Iowa's guards, will attempt to check Norman.

Illini to Meet Hoosiers.

Illinois, which dropped into the tie with the Hawkeyes when it lost to Northwestern last Monday, plays the seventh place Indiana squad at Bloomington. The Illini starting lineup probably will include Froschauer and Guttschow, forwards; Beynon and Fencl, guards, and Hellmich at center.

Chicago engages a nonconference opponent, Southern Illinois Teachers college of Carbondale, at the Midway fieldhouse. The Maroons, who are in last place with two victories in ten games, will meet Indiana and Northwestern in their last conference contests.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

MISERY, it seems, loves golf winners. . . . Wiffy Cox, winner of the Agua Caliente and Texas open tournaments, suffers from stomach ulcers. . . . Tommy Armour, who placed second in the Miami open, played through the tournament while ailing from the effects of a severe attack of ptomaine poisoning. . . . Willie Macfarlane, who won the Miami-Biltmore open, richest meet of the season, is a victim of chronic neuritis. . . . Stories reach this department with increasing frequency that since the federal narcotic agents are so hot on the trail of people who dope race horses the electric battery which stirs horses on to unnatural deeds is coming into quite general use at some of the winter tracks. . . . Barney Ross made two speeches from the ring at the Hollywood fights the other night—one in English and one for the movie directors. . . . Ed Krause, Notre Dame tackle, will play pro football with the Cardinals next year, it is reported. . . .

Dick Hanley, Northwestern football coach, played in the first Rose bowl game in 1915 between Washington State and Brown. . . . He was quarterback on the Washington State team, which won the game, 14 to 0. . . . Jack Chevigny of Texas and Elmer Layden of Notre Dame sat side by side at the Notre Dame-Pittsburgh basketball game. . . . Their football teams meet at South Bend next October. . . . More than the usual number of southern California adjectives are being spilled about the proposed Santa Anita horse track to be built on the Lucky Baldwin estate near Los Angeles. . . . One of the new wrinkles is a movie device which will take pictures of each race and develop same instantly. . . . Undetected fouls or pulling will be impossible under the pictorial plan, it is claimed. . . .

The Indiana Daily Student, campus newspaper, is promoting a program of intramural athletics which is expected to attract nearly 100 per cent of the students. . . . Beans Reardon, National league umpire, who for years has worked in the Cubs' exhibition games on the coast, runs down to the mail box six times a day looking for a letter from President William Walker engaging him for this spring at $15 a game. . . . JOHN M'GRAW PASSES CRISIS IN SERIOUS ILLNESS

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—John J. McGraw is recovering so rapidly from a serious attack of uremic poisoning today that his physicians have announced that no further bulletins as to his condition will be issued.

Dr. L. B. Chapman said McGraw had passed the crisis and, for the time being, at least, was no longer in danger. The veteran baseball leader was taken to the New Rochelle hospital last Friday and remained in a critical condition for several days.

Illness to Keep Shea, Sox Catcher, from Camp

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Lew Fonseca, manager of the Chicago White Sox received word today Mervyn Shea, a catcher, had been taken ill with the flu and would not be able to report to the Pasadena spring training camp next Monday. Shea is at his home in Sacramento.

Gus Tebell Named Head Football Coach at Virginia

University, Va., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Gus K. Tebell, for the last three years assistant coach of football and head coach of basketball and baseball at the University of Virginia, was tonight elected head coach of football for 1934 to succeed Fred Dawson, who had requested that he be relieved of his contract for one more year. Tebell came to the university in the fall of 1930 as assistant to Earl Abell, who preceded Dawson as head coach of football.

BABE RUTH LOSES IN FLORIDA GOLF TOURNEY, 4 AND 3

Bellcair, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Babe Ruth was eliminated 4 and 3, today in the semi-finals of the Washington's birthday golf tournament here. His opponent, R. A. Stranahan, Toledo, gained the right to meet Keenan Morrow, Malba, L. I., for the title. Morrow was off his game today, but was not extended to defeat J. L. Lewis, New York, 5 and 4.

Ruth's tremendous drives were going wild and he could not get his second shots within hailing distance of the green. At the turn Stranahan was three up.

Former Manager of Georges Carpentier Dies

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, France, Feb. 23.—Francois Deschamps, manager of Georges Carpentier during the latter's boxing career, died last night, the eve of his 59th birthday. He suffered a stroke last Sunday.

STENGEL TO PILOT BROOKLYN CLUB FOR TWO YEARS

Promises First Division for Dodgers.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Casey Stengel, former coach of the team, signed today for two years as manager of the Brooklyn National league baseball club, taking over the job from which Max Carey was dismissed three days ago. Carey was paid $12,500 a year. Stengel's contract is believed to call for at least $10,000.

Stengel, who believes his team a first division prospect, promises to reach that goal or send several players on their way. "They gotta show a lot of spirit or else they will be catching trains outbound," he said.

Stengel met camera men and reporters at the Hotel New Yorker, where Bob Quinn, business manager of the club, is ill with pleurisy. He was in good health himself, weighing 170 pounds. Casey predicted that he would go up to 190 if the Dodgers rose to an important place, but he feared he would sag to 150 if the Dodgers disappointed him with another lowly second division finish.

He's a Worrier.

"But they don't dare," he said. "We gotta be important people, if nothing else, just to annoy the Giants. They won't beat us the way they did last year. It isn't in the cards. I'll worry the Dodgers into annoying the Giants.

"Max Carey was right about the job being bad for my health—if we don't win. I'm a worrier, sure. All managers worry, and I've managed before—in the minors—and I know what such a job can take out of you. But I'm seriously counting on gaining weight in this new connection. I think the Dodgers have possibilities as a team. They should be a first division proposition.

Chick Frasier, a scout with the Dodgers last year will become coach, Stengel announced. He was a former Pittsburgh scout, an ex-Pirate and Chicago pitcher. "He dug up some of our new pitchers, and he will be of service around a new staff," said Stengel.

No Strict Rules.

In reply to questions about club rules and regulations, Stengel said:

"There won't be a lot of rules. The players will have to get back to the hotel by midnight, that's about all. I'll be reasonable. I just ask the boys to show the right fighting spirit and be in shape to play."

Pick Leo Shea as Referee of Carnera Bout

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Miami boxing commission today chose Leo Shea to referee Primo Carnera's fifteen round heavyweight title defense against Tommy Loughran next Wednesday night, as the boxers coasted toward the end of their training routine. Shea was named unanimously by the commission after the managers of Carnera and Loughran failed to agree upon a choice themselves.

The two judges who will act in conjunction with the referee will be chosen by the commission tomorrow. A list of eligible men has been turned over to each camp. From those suitable both to the champion and challenger, two will be chosen. Their names will not be known, however, until the fighters step into the ring Wednesday night.

Tunney Visits Loughran.

The fight camp excitement of the day shifted to West Palm Beach where Loughran entertained the former heavyweight king, Gene Tunney. Loughran and Tunney boxed an eight round no decision bout in 1922.

"If I didn't think Tommy had a chance, I wouldn't go to the fight," Tunney said after he had watched Loughran punch his big mates all over the training ring, befuddling them with his sharp left jab, his feinting and footwork. "And I'll be there at the ring side. Tommy is not only a fit opponent for the Italian, but he will make the going very rough for him. I never before have seen Loughran look so well. He appears to be ready for the fight of his life."

Loughran stepped on the scales after the workout and weighed in at 186 pounds, his best fighting weight. He will come to Miami Sunday for his final heavy workout in the Garden stadium.

Carnera Boxes Seven Rounds.

Carnera boxed seven rounds, two with Bucket Everett, three with Johnny Miler, and two more with Popper Stopper, a clowning Negro, and he specialized in dropping short right hands over to the head after brushing aside his sparring partners' left jabs. He landed a few heavy right uppercuts on Stopper.

The Italian appears to have rounded into splendid condition though the caliber of his sparring partners is such that there is little opportunity to measure his performances against any medium. As fast as his helpers did any landing themselves during the conditioning campaign, Carnera promptly fired them. Arthur Huttick, Harold Mayes, and George Manley, from Denver, the latter a clever left hand puncher, all left the camp after stepping out of their punch catching roles.

Carnera still rules a 3 to 1 favorite although the sentiment in favor of Loughran is rising.

Virginia House Passes Horse Racing, Pari-Mutuel Bills

Richmond, Va., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Two bills, which would legalize horse racing and pari-mutuel betting in Virginia, were passed by the house of delegates today. The first passed, 54 to 43, and the second, 63 to 28.

Chicago's army of Golden Gloves fighters is ready for the Tournament of Champions. Sixteen open division boxers and eight novices last night fought their way through the south side trials at White City and on Monday will join the qualifiers from the west, north, and near south side sections in the great three-day competition at Chicago Stadium on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The south side bouts last night completed the 39 teams which will compete in the Tournament of Champions. In addition to the 96 boys chosen in the four Chicago sectionals, the Catholic Youth organization's team and champions from thirty out of town centers in eight states will compete.

The boys who came through the four Chicago preliminary meets are the survivors of an original field of 2,772.

South Side Likes 'Em.

Last night's contests at White City packed the arena for the third time in a row. If you can measure boxing enthusiasm by attendance at the Golden Gloves trials, the south side leads the city. Standing room was at a premium every night.

Among the qualifiers from the White City meet was an old Golden Glove favorite, Freddy Caserio, co-captain of the 1933 team, which whipped New York, 10 bouts to 6, and defeated the champions of Ireland, 6 to 2. Caserio has done little or no boxing since the night he beat Paddy Hennelly of Dublin at Soldiers' field and his timing and judgment of distance was not up to standard in the first two rounds of his match with Russell Hagstrom of the Allerton hotel gymnasium. But he hit his stride in the third and all but finished his man. Freddy is fighting at the same weight as last year, 160 pounds.

There were other favorites with the fans last night. They included Al Soukup, 1932 Golden Gloves flyweight champion; Ed Garvey, George Nelson, Joseph Sulka and Patrick Kenneally.

Soukup Wins by Knockout.

Soukup, who is representing the C. Y. O., won applause by the manner in which he knocked out Edward Messmer of the Rolewicz Athletic club in a featherweight qualifying contest. Messmer was holding his own until a half minute before the first round ended. Then Soukup found the range and landed his right on his opponent's chin and Messmer went down and out.

Garvey, a 126 pound entrant, survived a knockdown for the count of nine in the first round to come back and win a three round decision over Jerry Mulcahy of Heniff's gymnasium.

Nelson, Belle Plaine Athletic club, made a hit when he scored a three

VINES AND TILDEN BEAT COCHET AND PLAA IN SINGLES

Boston, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, young Californian, defeated his French rival, Henri Cochet, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 8-6, and Bill Tilden beat Martin Plaa, French professional, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3, in professional tennis matches at the Boston Gardens tonight. The result of the matches gave the American forces a clean sweep in the singles played in the present tour which began in New York.

Vines had six aces in the three sets. Cochet won three love games on his own service. Vines dominated the first set. After Cochet had taken the first game of the second set the lanky California star came back to take five straight. There Cochet rallied to win three games, and then faltered to give the set to Vines.

The French player showed a spark of his old genius in the final set and his best bet, an overhead smash, had Vines worried for a time. The Californian was strong enough, however, to take the set and match in extra games.

Tilden teamed with Vines to defeat Cochet and Plaa, 12-14, 6-3, 6-4, in the doubles.

LEO DIEGEL WEDS VIOLET BIRD OF MOTION PICTURES

Los Angeles, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Leo Diegel, one of golf's best known professionals, married Miss Violet Bird, motion picture actress, today.

They left immediately for Palm Springs, where they will spend their honeymoon. Next week they will go to Philmont, Pa., to make their home.

Diegel is professional at the Philmont Country club.

CLEM REED MEETS TONELLI MONDAY IN MIDWAY RING

Quincy Boxer Substituted for Chuck Reed.

Clem Reed, Quincy, Ill., welterweight, last night was substituted for Chuck Reed of Chicago in an eight round match against Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., Monday at Midway arena. Chuck was removed from the card because of a cold. Clem will be making his Chicago debut.

John Pacek, international Golden Gloves heavyweight champion last year, is matched with Vincent Kowal in a four round preliminary. Another preliminary may pair Scotty Sylvano against Bill Reardon.

Jimmy Christy, former amateur champion, will be after his second pro triumph in as many appearances in a four rounder against Joey Bozak on the Gene Higgins-George Engel card Monday at Marigold Gardens.

Johnny Meyers, former middleweight wrestling champion, will rely on a double wrist lock in an attempt to beat Fred Kohler at Rainbo Fronton next Wednesday. Other bouts:

Jack Meadames vs. Al Williams.
Frank Hart vs. Alex Kasaboski.
Rudy Kay vs. Mephisto.
Lou Talabes vs. Gorilla Parker.

Entries will close March 14 for the amateur wrestling tournament which will be presented at the Jewish People's Institute on March 24 and 25.

The boxing committee of the Central A. A. U. yesterday suspended Frank Taylor and Ray Hanson, both of Decatur, Ill., for 90 days. . . . Karl Ogren, local middleweight, sparred three rounds yesterday with Frank Misko of Saginaw, Mich., for his bout against Tait Littman at Milwaukee next Friday. Misko faces Billy Miller on the card.

ILLINOIS BEATS NORTHWESTERN MATMEN, 24 TO 8

Illinois won six out of eight events, one of them by forfeit, to defeat Northwestern, 24 to 8, in a wrestling meet at Patten gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

The Wildcat victories came in the 145 and 155 weight divisions. In the former Handley won a time decision over Pakatunsky in 6:17 and in the latter, Horstings threw Carek in 8:11.

Dan Kaufman of the Wildcats went out of his weight to meet Andrews in the 165 pound class, losing a close decision in 1:02. It was Kaufman's first defeat of the year.

The summaries:

126 POUNDS—Carpenter [Illinois] threw Berley [Northwestern]. Time, 6:09.

135 POUNDS—Houghton [Illinois] defeated Moore [Northwestern]. Time advantage, 7 minutes.

145 POUNDS—Handley [Northwestern] defeated Pakatunsky [Illinois]. Time advantage, 6:17.

155 POUNDS—Horstings [Northwestern] threw Carek [Illinois]. Time, 8:11.

165 POUNDS—Andrews [Illinois] defeated Kaufman [Northwestern]. Time advantage, 1:02.

175 POUNDS—Dahl [Illinois] defeated O'Reilly [Northwestern]. Time advantage, 7:40.

HEAVYWEIGHT—Cosnech [Illinois] threw Sutton [Northwestern]. 3:37.

GIRLS COMPETE IN NOVICE TRACK EVENTS TODAY

The Lincoln park commissioners will sponor a novice track and field meet for girls today at the 121st infantry armory. The events will be open only to girls who never previously won a place in any competition.

The sponsors of the meet expect the competition to bring out one or more girls to take the places of such stars as Betty Robinson, Evelyn Hall, Annette Rogers, Helen Filkey, and others who were developed in previous meets. There will be events for girls under 16 years, girls from 16 to 18, and girls over 18.

The winner of each event will be entered in the Central A. A. U. indoor championship meet next Saturday at the 132d regiment armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. Today's meet will start at 10 a. m. and admission will be free.

SAM BREADON SAYS HOLDOUTS MAY STAY OUT

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, is not worrying about holdouts.

"We have more players on the squad than we can use," he explained, "and if any of the men stay away from the spring training camp that merely will give us a chance to look over the younger players who are eager for a chance to remain in the league. All essential players will be on hand when training starts."

Opal A. A. to Celebrate 26th Anniversary Tonight

The Opal Athletic association will celebrate its 26th anniversary tonight at its clubhouse, 2628 Cermak road. All members, including several of the leading ice skaters in the Chicago district, will attend.

GOLDEN GLOVES CHAMPIONSHIP FIELD COMPLETE

South Section 39th Team Named.

round triumph over Harold Sampson, a highly regarded Negro boxer from the C. Y. O. They fought in the welterweight class.

Sulka Pleases Crowd.

Sulka, Polish youth organization, welterweight, beat Jean Janovisky, Coulon's gymnasium, in three rounds. He is a wild swinging southpaw and kept the crowd cheering throughout the bout.

Patrick Kennealy Jr., novice light heavyweight, who started boxing a few weeks ago just because his younger brothers, Phil and Tom, were making progress, scored a knockout over John Smith of the Savoy Athletic club. He jabbed an' then unleashed a hard right below the heart that gradually weakened his Negro foe.

Followers of John Lamby, representative of the Chicago fire department were disappointed when Lamby didn't fight. He was paired with Art Oliver of Trafton's gymnasium. Oliver sustained an injury while at work during the day and he was rejected. This automatically qualified Lamby for the Tournament of Champions.

Washington Quintet Wins Northern Indiana Title

Washington High school of East Chicago won the Northern Indiana High school conference basketball championship by defeating Napanee, 30 to 24, at East Chicago last night. Washington led, 10 to 9, at the end of the first half.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Feb. 23.—Dear Wake: Return of liquor and taverns reminds of the nice big mugs of Tom and Jerry which in the pre-prohibition days we bought for 10 cents. At home mother called them eggnog.

Nearly every saloon had a hot water tank in the stove with a little brass faucet attached. When you asked for a hot toddy the barkeep put a spoon in the glass, half filled it with hot water, cut a slice of lemon, then started pouring from the rum bottle, saying, "Tell me WHEN."

When we came into the saloon from work for our noon refreshment we ordered a tall stein of beer and helped ourselves liberally to the free lunch, all for a nickel, but usually ate so much we felt honor bound to order at least one more stein. A poor man's two bits went a long way in those days.

Friend Bat.

In the winter of 1876-77 I was bookkeeper for a produce firm on South Water street. After working very late trying to balance the books at the end of the month I started for my room on West Madison street when I was hailed at the east approach of the bridge with "Hey, there!" I continued, then came the command, "Stop or I'll stop you," and I was gazing into the bull's-eye light from the oil lantern policemen carried at that time.

The policeman was leading a man with a blood-stained face, no coat or hat in the zero weather. John Law said to me, "Here, take this man to the Union street police station or he'll freeze. He's been robbed and beaten, but I can't leave my beat."

The incident illustrated the poor police facilities then. Citizens called officers in emergencies by rapping on iron lamp posts. Policemen summoned one another for help by blowing their whistles. Prisoners who could not walk to the station were transported in a hired express wagon.

Belief.

We cannot hope to understand
Unless we first believe;
We must obey and not demand
In order to receive.

For life is not in "Have" or "Know";
Far deeper still than that:
It lies in just the way we go
Believing what we're at.

Nobility Before Camera.

The Wake stood for five minutes within ten feet of the royal box at Hialeah last Saturday while six different news photographers snapped views of the titled group from Nassau. The earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary of England, was in direct line of the camera and could not possibly escape knowing what was going on.

Instead of any show of annoyance he sat stolidly as if the ordeal was part of his position. In fact, it seemed to us there was a little gleam of amusement in his eyes as he attempted to look natural and unconscious of the view taking.

Princess Alice, his wife; Sir Bede Clifford, governor general of the Bahamas, and Lady Clifford conversed together, actually or assuming to be oblivious of the cameramen.

When Col. Abe Haflow, confidential man of Mr. Widener at the feast offered to present us to the duke's party we spared them the annoyance fearful we would yield to our impulse to ask whether they had marmalade with their toast at breakfast at the Deering estate home of the Chauncey McCormicks.

BOWEN CAPTURES SECTIONAL TITLE; DEFEATS PARKER

City League Ready for Championship Play.

Eleven games yesterday ended sectional play in the heavyweight division of the Chicago Public High School league. Winners and runners-up were determined in all four sections and they will compete in the quarter-final round next week. The dates and sites of the title playoffs probably will be selected Monday.

Bowen and Parker, the south division's representatives in the quarter-finals, played at Parker's gymnasium for the sectional championship. Bowen triumphed, 25 to 18, to hand Parker its first league defeat.

The teams which will participate in the quarter-finals follow:

Central section—Englewood and Tilden.
West section—Marshall and Tuley.
North section—Lane Tech and Senn.
South section—Bowen and Parker.

Lane Tech finished its sectional schedule without a defeat. It routed Roosevelt, 41 to 23, for its seventh consecutive victory on Roosevelt's court. Senn, the runner-up in the north section, scored its fifth victory by defeating Waller, 32 to 28, at Senn.

HINSDALE WINS

Hinsdale High school's heavyweight basketball team went into a tie for first place in the West Suburban conference by defeating Glenbard, 28 to 27, at Glen Ellyn last night. Ostrum, Meyer, and Newman led the Hinsdale attack against Glenbard, which was leading the race by one game.

Maine and Riverside were victors in other conference heavyweight contests. Maine scored a 29 to 25 overtime victory over West Chicago at Des Plaines and Riverside triumphed over Downers Grove, 33 to 32, on the latter's court.

The lightweight winners were Riverside, Glenbard, and Maine. Riverside handed Downers Grove a 29 to 18 setback; Maine routed West Chicago, 28 to 15, and Glenbard whipped Hinsdale, 18 to 13.

LEO LIGHTS WIN

Leo's lightweights took undisputed possession of first place in the east section race of the Chicago Catholic High School league last night by defeating St. Rita, 37 to 18, at Leo's gymnasium, while Mount Carmel was losing an overtime battle to De La Salle, 26 to 22, at De La Salle.

St. Mel's lightweight team defeated St. Ignatius, 37 to 17, for its tenth consecutive victory in the west division on the St. Ignatius court. In the heavyweight game St. Mel won from St. Ignatius, 34 to 18.

St. Philip won two games from Fenwick at Oak Park. The heavyweights triumphed, 29 to 18, and the lightweights, 27 to 24.

4 BIG TEN TRACK TEAMS BATTLE AT N. U. TONIGHT

Four Big Ten track teams will compete in the eleventh annual quadrangular track meet at Patten gymnasium tonight. The contending forces will be Chicago, Northwestern, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

Chicago, winner of last year's meet, is conceded a good chance of running off with first place honors again, although Ohio State is expected to push the Maroons. Northwestern and Wisconsin both have improved teams, but do not seem to possess sufficient all round power to displace the other two entries.

Changes Aid Buckeyes.

The fact that the quarter and half mile runs will be replaced by the one mile and two mile relays is expected to aid the Buckeyes considerably. Their mile team of Smith, Madison, Willey, and Stapf set a new fieldhouse record of 3:24.8 in a dual meet at Indiana two weeks ago. The two mile team is also a talented one. This quartet, consisting of Bloor, Arnold, Smith, and Renda, has visions of breaking the quadrangular record of 8:07.7 now held by Northwestern.

Chicago's hopes of repeating last year's victory rest largely in a group of veterans, including John Roberts, a 6 foot 2 inch high jumper and 13 foot pole vaulter; Bob Milow, a miler; Sam Perlis and Ed Cullin, quarter milers, and Gene Ovson, a 45 foot shot putter.

Jay Berwanger, the fleet footed halfback, will compete in the sprints and hurdles. He has done :06.5 in the 60 yard dash this winter and ran the 70 yard low hurdles in :07.7 recently.

Northwestern's squad is better balanced than at any time during the last several years. Coach Frank Hill has a number of veterans available, including Ollie Duggins, all around star whose specialties are the quarter, hurdles and high jump; Ollie Olson and Mal Read, high jumpers; Art Jens, hurdles and George Farley, distance runs.

Fleming N. U. Star.

Jack Fleming, sophomore quarter and half miler, heads the list of newcomers. Fleming hails from Fort Wayne, Ind., where he won the state quarter mile championship. Walter Cruice, half back on the football team, will compete in the sprints. Bob Stevens of Joliet, who puts the shot around 46 feet, is another sophomore who is counted on to win points for the Wildcats.

The Badgers, victors over Marquette last Saturday, will show most of their strength in the distance runs, where they have leading performers in Krueger and Schwalbach. Clark and Stuewe in the hurdles and Smith in the high jump are other prospective Wisconsin scorers.

INDIANA BEATS CHICAGO SWIM TEAM, 45 TO 39

Indiana's swimming team defeated the University of Chicago, 45 to 39, in a dual meet at Bartlett gymnasium last night. The Maroon water polo team won a 12 to 9 victory over the Hoosiers.

Indiana's strength in the free style events accounted for its swim victory, Strack winning the 60, and Sparkes the 100, with Curry and Coon placing one-two in the 220 and 440. It was Indiana's first defeat of Chicago in many years. Summaries:

400 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Indiana [Hammer, Shemaitis, Mathers, Strack]. Time, 3:56.9.

200 YARD BREAST STROKE — Won by Dwyer, Chicago; Glomset, Chicago, second; Backer, Indiana, third. Time, 2:39.9.

150 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Nicoli, Chicago; Bellstrom, Chicago, second; Higley, Indiana, third. Time, 1:50.8.

60 YARD SWIM—Won by Strack, Indiana; Barden, Chicago, second; Levi, Chicago, third. Time, :32.4.

440 YARD SWIM—Won by Curry, Indiana; Coon, Indiana, second; Hebenstreit, Chicago, third. Time, 5:38.3.

100 YARD SWIM—Won by Sparkes, Indiana; Bush, Chicago, second; Sachs, Chicago, third. Time, :59.5.

FANCY DIVING—Won by Beidinger, Indiana, 125.4; Roberts, Chicago, second; Hamerman, Indiana, third.

220 YARD SWIM—Won by Curry, Indiana; Coon, Indiana, second; Barden, Chicago, third. Time, 2:32.

300 YARD MEDLEY RELAY — Won by Chicago [Nicholl, Stolar, Stein]. Time, 3:52.2.

YOUNG TERRY IS STOPPED IN 4TH BY FRANK SIGILIO

Frank Sigilio stopped Young Terry, Davenport, Ia., lightweight, in the fourth of a scheduled six round bout at the Cicero stadium last night. Terry was floored in the third round, and was declared technically knocked out after the next frame had started. Other results:

Harold Dunnington defeated Robin Shrosbree [4].
Lou Terry defeated Lou Vine [6].
Joey Beask and Hugh Allen drew [4].
Jack O'Connell defeated George Shrosbree [4].
George Williams defeated Tom Byers [4].

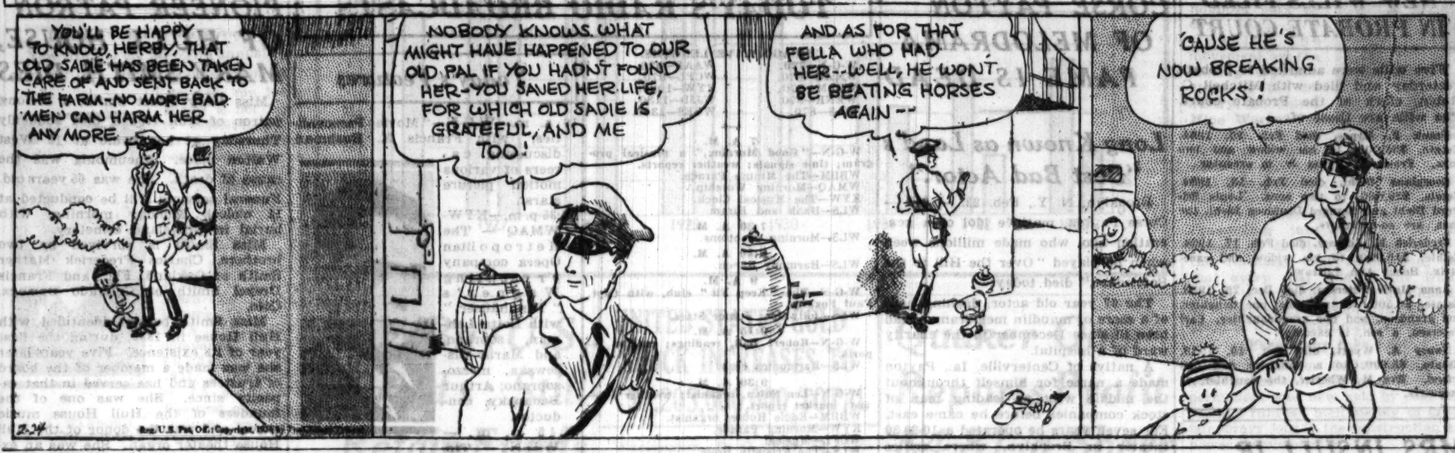
Oak Park Team Hands Froebel Another Defeat

The Oak Park High track and field team defeated the Froebel High school of Froebel, Ind., for the second successive year in a track and field meet at the Oak Park High school last night, 37 to 28. Froebel runners took only two first places and were tied for a third first place with Oak Park.

MOON MULLINS—MORNING SUNBEAMS

WELL WOT TH' SAY I SAID HELLO, TUMMY!
WAS THAT LORD PLUSHBOTTOM OR WAS IT HIS TWIN BROTHER?
THAT WAS SIR TUMMENDEN. HOW WAS HE LOOKING THIS MORNING, MOON?
RIGHT PAST ME. I CAN'T FIGURE THAT GUY. YESTERDAY I AND HIM WAS GREAT PALS—AND THIS MORNIN' HE WOULDN'T SPEAK TO ME IF I JUMPED ON HIS FEET.
OH, SIR TUMMENDEN AINT MAD, MOON HE'S JUST DAZED—MAMIE MISTOOK HIM FOR ME IN THE DARK WHEN HE COME IN LAST NIGHT AND PATTED HIM ON TH' HEAD WITH A DUMBBELL.

SMITTY—ON THE TOP OF THE HEAP



YOU'LL BE HAPPY TO KNOW, HERBY, THAT OLD SADIE HAS BEEN TAKEN CARE OF AND SENT BACK TO THE FARM—NO MORE BAD MEN CAN HARM HER ANY MORE.
NOBODY KNOWS WHAT MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED TO OUR OLD PAL IF YOU HADN'T FOUND HER—YOU SAVED HER LIFE, FOR WHICH OLD SADIE IS GRATEFUL, AND ME TOO!
AND AS FOR THAT FELLA WHO HAD HER—WELL, HE WON'T BE BEATING HORSES AGAIN—
'CAUSE HE'S NOW BREAKING ROCKS!

NOW GET GOING, JACK!

Ollie Duggins (left) of the Northwestern university track team hands the baton to Jack Fleming in a mile relay workout for the quadrangular meet tonight at Patten gym. Chicago, Wisconsin and Ohio State will compete against the Wildcats.

Scientist Finds New Baseball 1.97 Pct. Faster

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A Johns Hopkins university scientist, after long experiments, today announced that the new standard major league baseball was exactly 1.97 per cent "faster" than that used in the National league last year.

In other words, if Chuck Klein of the Cubs leans on a 1934 ball with the exact power that got him a 294 foot hit in 1933, he'll get 300 feet—just two yards more.

Berlin Bodie, graduate of the university school of engineering, was the experimenter. He took a new ball, a National "dead" ball, a concrete foundation, and some scientific instruments to measure a bounce.

Then he began to drop. Each ball was dropped 30 times from each of several heights. Sheets of paper were covered with thousands of figures. Into this Bodie dived with his pencil and came up with the answer—1.97 per cent.

WESTERN SQUASH RACQUETS MEET TO START TODAY

Squash racquets players of the central states will gather at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club this morning for the opening of the western championship tournament. Entries will be drawn from Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, and Detroit as well as Chicago.

A Chicago trio composed of Ed Hartney, Joe Jannotta, and Jimmy Robinson is expected to make a strong bid for the team title. Jimmy Anderson, ranked No. 1 among the local players, is conceded a good chance of capturing the individual championship.

Matches will start this morning at 10 o'clock and will continue throughout the afternoon. Semi-finals and finals will be held tomorrow.

GOPHERS DEFEAT WOLVERINES, 3-1; WIN HOCKY TITLE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Minnesota clinched the Big Ten hocky title tonight, scoring two goals in the first three minutes of play. The final score was 3 to 1, the Gophers counting again in the closing minutes of the game, when Michigan was using five forwards.

MICHIGAN BEATS MAROON MATMEN IN FINAL EVENT

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—John Spoden, Michigan heavyweight, defeated Frank Pesek, Chicago, in the last and deciding match to give the Wolverines a 13½ to 10½ victory over the Maroon wrestlers here this afternoon. The defeat was Chicago's first of the season. Michigan scored wins by time advantages in four matches and Chicago in three. One match went to a draw.

Armour Tech Defeats Augustana Five, 41 to 31

Armour Tech's basketball team defeated Augustana, 41 to 31, at Armour's gymnasium yesterday. It was Armour's last game of the season. Capt. Pflum and Lauchiskis starred for the winners, the former scoring five field goals and Lauchiskis contributing five baskets and two free throws.

Hawks Seek to Improve Place at Montreal Tonight

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The last scheduled 1933-'34 game at Montreal between the Blackhawks and Canadiens will be played here tomorrow night. The Canadiens, tied with the New York Americans for third place in the Canadian division, a position they must retain in order to qalify for the Stanley cup, are expected to try to advance a full game in the standings while the Americans are idle.

On the other hand, the Blackhawks are more than anxious to win the game, as it not only will put them definitly in the runninfi so far as the Stanley cup trials are concerned but it will relieve the strain which has kept the Hawks at high tension by reason of the three cornered race which they have been waging with the New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings for the better part of the last three months.

MICHIGAN BEATS IOWA, 61-23, IN SWIMMING MEET

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Michigan's swimming team defeated Iowa tonight, 61 to 23. The Wolverines won all nine events, took second place in three.

Taylor Drysdale swam the 150 yard backstroke in 1:38.7, just seven seconds more than the work mark of George Kojac. Capt. Jim Cristy was the individual star, however, winning both the 220 yard and 440 yard free style events. Derland Johnston, Michigan sophomore, beat out Bill Busby of Iowa, for second place in the diving, scoring 119.6 point to Busby's 117.45. Degener of Michigan was first.

Miss Van Wie, Mrs. Hill Meet for Atlantic Title

Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, holder of the national women's golf championship, will meet Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, in the finals of the South Atlantic golf championship tournament tomorrow. In the semi-finals this afternoon Miss Van Wie defeated Lucille Robinson, Des Moines, 2 and 1, and Mrs. Hill eliminated Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., 1 up.

Loyola Five to Face Michigan State Tonight

Loyola university's basketball team will seek to avenge the worst defeat it has suffered this season tonight when it meets the Michigan State college five at the Loyola gymnasium. The Spartans won a 36 to 15 victory over Loyola at East Lansing early this month.

Hal Motz, Loyola's leading scorer, was unable to play in that game, but the big center, who has counted 35 points in 8 games, is ready for tonight's game. Maurice Buysse, State's sensational sophomore center, should provide a real test for the Loyola center.

Angsten Makes Team.

Eddie Angsten, 5 foot 4 inch forward who became eligible two weeks ago, will make his debut on the Loyola court as a regular. He won a starting position because of his fine work in Loyola's last three road games.

Michigan State has won 11 of its 15 games this season. Notre Dame, Marquette, and Syracuse are the only teams that have defeated the Spartans.

It's Dad's Day.

Tonight's game will be the feature event of Loyola's first annual Dad's day. More than 200 dads are expected to attend a dinner at the Rogers Park hotel before the game. After the game Loyola's swimming team will meet the Northwestern B team in the gym pool.

Probable lineups:

MICHIGAN STATE.		LOYOLA.
Van Fassen	F	Schuessler
Patchett	F	Angsten
Buysse	C	Motz
Herrick	G	Frisch
Rouse	G	Horan

Officials—Lyle Clarno and E. C. Curtiss.

DE PAUL SEEKS 14TH

One of two winning streaks will end tonight at Kalamazoo, Mich., when De Paul university and Western State Teachers clash in a return contest.

De Paul's Blue Demons will be fighting to extend their string of consecutive victories to 14, while the Western State team will try to add to its record of 48 straight basketball triumphs at home.

Coach Jim Kelly of De Paul has found it increasingly difficult to keep his team keyed up and a sudden letdown, added to an injury to Francis Linskey, star guard, almost wrecked the winning streak at Armour Tech Wednesday. Only a desperate struggle in an overtime period enabled the Demons to overcome the fighting Techs, 43 to 41.

IOHNNY LISTON IS DEFEATED BY YOUNG STUHLEY

Young Stuhley, Kewanee middleweight, after being down for counts in the fourth and fifth rounds, rallied in the closing rounds to win the decision over Johnny Liston, south side fighter, in the feature bout of Johnny Coulon's card at the Rainbo Fronton last night. The bout went eight rounds. Other results:

Jimmy Richards defeated Artie Mitchell [5].
Ace Kristoff knocked out Gene Savlick [2].
George Trapp defeated Tom Habel [4].
Fred Ledebuhr, John Holda wrestled 15 minutes to a draw.

WESLEYAN KEEPS LEAD; DEFEATS BRADLEY, 49-32

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Illinois Wesleyan tonight kept undisputed possession of first place in the Little Nineteen conference basketball race by defeating Bradley, 49-32. It was the Titans' tenth victory in 11 league games.

The game was a rough and tumble one, with three Bradley men and two Wesleyan players leaving on personals. Thirty-eight personals were called by the officials on the two teams.

Englewood Swim Team Is 39-36 Victor Over Rockford

Englewood High school, city champions, defeated Rockford, state swimming titleholders, in a dual meet at Englewood pool yesterday. The score was 39 to 36. Grecas starred for Englewood, winning the 40 and 100 yard free style events.

Baby Ruths to Meet Canadian Team Tomorrow

The Baby Ruth Hocky club will meet its next international foe tomorrow afternoon at the Coliseum rink when it plays the Woodstock team from Canada in the first of a two game series. The game is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock.

The Woodstock team will arrive this afternoon in time for a workout. Fourteen players, in charge of Harry King, coach and former star player, who played a number of years ago with Howie Morenz, Dunc Munroe, and Bill Carson, will make up the party.

The local amateur hocky association has been granted the Central A. A. U. junior midwest hocky tournament, which will be held here March 3, 4, and 11, with four of the leading local city league tems competing against the best amateur teams in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana, Iowa, and Michigan.

Sixth Corps to Play Artillery Team Tonight

The Sixth Corps Area and the 124th Field Artillery polo teams will meet at the Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, tonight. As a curtain raiser the Chicago Shamrocks will engage the Chicago Riding club in a game that will place the winner in a tie for first with Fort Sheridan and the 122d Field Artillery in the Metropolitan Polo league junior division.

Rating 9 goals strength, Capt. C. E. [Stub] Davis and his Sixth Corps Area mates will award a two goal handicap to Maj. Richard G. Hunter's 124th Field Artillery team, which carries a 7 goal rating.

The one defeat of the season administered to Sixth Corps Area was at the mallets of the Cleveland Riding club, when the Fort Sheridan officers were without the services of Lieut. Smith. Tonight's lineups:

CHICAGO RIDING CLUB.		CHICAGO SHAMROCKS.
W. Collins Jr.	No. 1	Capt. Ireland
Dave Silberman	No. 2	Capt. Callahan [C.]
J. Bowers [C.]	Back	Lieut. McAnulty
124TH FIELD ARTILLERY.		SIXTH CORPS AREA.
Maj. Hunter [C.]	No. 1	Lieut. J. Hines Jr.
Capt. Everett	No. 2	Capt. Davis [C]
Lieut. Reed	Back	Lieut. Smith

Referee—Lieut. Romeo Mura.

BLACK HORSE VS. MILWAUKEE.

The Milwaukee Shamrocks polo team will play the Chicago Black Horse Troop and the 122d Field Artillery will meet a Chicago Riding club team at the riding club, Erie and McClurg streets, tonight. The Black Horse Troop won by one goal in the last game, but the Shamrocks have strengthened their team by adding Fritz Lange. The Black Horse Troop has added Steve Hammond.

The lineups:

MILWAUKEE SHAMROCKS.		BLACK HORSE TROOP.
Fritz Lange	No. 1	Lieut. Kirby
Clyde Brumble	No. 2	Steve Hammond
Arnold Fischer	No. 3	Lieut. Keahn
122D FIELD ARTILLERY.		CHICAGO RIDING CLUB.
Lieut. Harrison	No. 1	P. Porter
Lieut. Johnson	No. 2	M. Corpering
Lieut. Zimm'man	No. 3	Capt. Stockton

IOWA DEFEATS MINNESOTA ON TRACK, 73 1-3 - 30 2-3

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa track and field team took nine of twelve first places to defeat Minnesota, 73 1-3 to 30 2-3, in a dual meet tonight.

Francis Cretzmeyer, a sophomore, was the individual star of the meet with 17 points. Cretzmeyer won the low hurdles and broad jump, tied for first in the high jump, and finished second in the high hurdles.

Minnesota scored a slam in the 60 yard dash and won two other events. Burris was first in the sprint, Slocum won the two miles, and Freimuth took the shot put.

Capt. Sidney Dean of the Hawkeyes shaked the university record in the quarter mile in :50.1, and his race as anchor man won the mile relay. Dean took the baton with a two yard handicap on the last lap, sped ahead in the back stretch, and won with a yard to spare.

THREE LEADING MILERS TO MEET AGAIN TONIGHT

Cunningham, Bonthron, Venzke Race in East.

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham, Gene Venzke and Bill Bonthron will have their last chance to see which is the best man tomorrow night in the 1,500 meters of the national indoor track and field meet in Madison Square Garden.

Their paths will not cross again if Bonthron holds to his intention of competing only in dual track meets and the intercollegiates, to which Cunningham is not eligible as a Kansas student.

Bonthron won the first test last Saturday in the Baxter mile of the N. Y. A. C. games in the garden.

Doubt Is Still There.

His margin was so narrow, however, that there still remains a question of his superiority.

There are some, among them Daniel J. Ferris, A. A. U. secretary-treasurer, who has been looking at races long enough to know, who believe it will be Venzke's turn to win with Cunningham or Bonthron in the runner-up rôle. The Pennsylvania sophomore ran his best race in two years last Saturday and appears to be back near the form of 1932, when he set the indoor mile record of 4:10 and the 1,500 meter mark of 3:53.4. They believe the shorter distance is more suited to the long legged youngster from Pottstown.

Glenn Stays in East.

Cunningham remained in the east this week, foregoing the long train trip to and from Lawrence, Kan., and has been training carefully at Washington, D. C., under the watchful eye of Roland Logan of George Washington university.

College and club stars from all over the country are gathered for the climax event of the winter season and the running events competed in meters for only the second time.

Michigan State Loses, 40 to 16, at Marquette

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 23.—Marquette university basketball team showed its best form of the year in whipping Michigan State tonight, 40 to 16. It was the twelfth victory of the year for the Hilltoppers.

Michigan State was held to four baskets, all of which were scored in the first half.

The first half was anybody's game, with first one team in the lead and then the other. Marquette was ahead at the intermission, 14 to 12. Center Ernie Kukla and Cy Rubade were the Hilltop big guns in the first half, while hook shots by Maurice Buysse, center, kept the Spartans in the battle.

Ray Morstadt, Marquette's high scoring forward, made six field goals and as many free throws to set a new high for the year here with 18 points. In the meantime Michigan State was unable to work the ball in for a single closeup.

WILDCAT SWIM TEAM DEFEATS BADGERS, 58-26

Northwestern easily defeated Wisconsin, 58 to 26, in a dual swimming meet at Patten gymnasium last night and at the same time created two new intercollegiate records.

The first new mark came in the 200 yard breast stroke when Don Horn clipped one-tenth of a second from the record recently set by Salvell of Yale. Horn's time was 2:29.2.

Capt. Art Highland set another record when he won the 60 yard free style event in :28.3. This bettered the former mark set by his teammate, Rollinger, by one second. Rollinger finished second to Highland.

The lone first place won by the Badgers came in the 100 yard free style. Trachell pulled in first in the slow time of :59.

Northwestern won the water polo game, 8 to 1. Summaries:

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Trachell [W]; Kohlmeyer [N], second; Marlowe [N], third. Time, :59.

FANCY DIVING—Won by Wilkie [N]; Simonsen [W], second; Loughborough [N], third.

220 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Highland [N]; Hickman [W], second; Ockerhauser [W], third. Time, 2:29.8.

120 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Hahn, Lennox, and Rollinger]. Time, 1:09.

100 YARD RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Highland, Rollinger, Kohlmeyer, Marlowe]. Time, 1:19.

200 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Horn [N]; Taylor [N], second; Dieroff [W], third. Time, 2:29.2. [New intercollegiate record.]

FREDERICK LANE, SCHOOL OFFICIAL MANY YEARS, DIES

Funeral for Assistant to Bogan Monday.

Frederick J. Lane, special assistant to Superintendent of Schools Bogan, died yesterday in the Evangelical hospital of a heart ailment with which he had suffered for more than a year. He was 63 years old. He entered the public school system in 1895, a few years after his graduation from Amherst college.

FREDERICK J. LANE

Mr. Lane was born of pioneer stock in Chicago, April 28, 1870. In 1905, after teaching for ten years, he was appointed principal of the Jenner elementary school at Milton and Oak streets. He held this post until 1928 when Mr. Bogan became superintendent and appointed him a special assistant. Mr. Lane was known as a "key man" in the school system.

Earned Boys' Respect.

As a school principal in what was termed a "tough" neighborhood, Mr. Lane earned the nickname of "Bulldog." However, he was instrumental in turning countless prospective hoodlums into ways of useful citizenship, and inspired lasting friendships with even more of his young charges. Many continued to call upon him for advice after he became special assistant.

He was personally acquainted with a majority of the 14,000 principals and teachers in the Chicago schools and enjoyed an unusual degree of confidence from them as a result of his sympathetic nature. Mr. Bogan and a number of principals and school executives who were to leave today for Cleveland to attend a convention of educators immediately decided to postpone the trip so that they may attend the funeral which will be held Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

Masonic Funeral.

Masonic rites will be held at the undertaking chapel at 5203 Lake Park avenue. Burial will be at Clarendon Hills cemetery near Downers Grove. Surviving are a son, Francis B. Lane, a substitute teacher, and aunt with whom he lived, Miss Lucy C. Johnstone, 5323 Dorchester avenue.

Mr. Lane was one of the fifty-four founders of the Izaak Walton league and was treasurer of the National Association for Scientific Angling. He was an expert fisherman and it was his main avocation. He was also a member of the City club.

Letters of administration appointing the son administrator of the estate were granted yesterday by Judge Oscar S. Caplan in the Probate court.

According to Attorney Charles F. Baker the estate consists principally of unpaid salary due from the city. This amounts to approximately $5,400, according to Attorney Baker. Mr. Lane left no will.

Husband and Wife Die Same Day; Wed 65 Years

Noblesville, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Double funeral services were held today for Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bartholomew, each 90 years old, when Mrs. Bartholomew died yesterday and the husband last night. They were married sixty-five years and became the parents of ten children, eight of whom are living.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The New Home

NEW WILLS FILED IN PROBATE COURT

Five wills were admitted to probate yesterday and filed with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The wills are those of:

Frank F. Hynes, died Feb. 10, 1934. Estate, $35,000, to his widow and two sons. Frank F. Hynes Jr. is executor.

Georgiana Diehl, died Feb. 13, 1934. Estate, $29,000, to two sons. Louis Edward Diehl and Bernard Davidson Diehl, the sons, are co-executors.

Frederick H. Lutzaw, died Feb. 17, 1934. Estate, $18,000, to his widow and executrix. Helen Ann Lutzaw.

Anna Marie Petersen, died Dec. 26, 1933. Estate, $8,500, to two sons, one daughter, one grandson, and one granddaughter. Carl Petersen, a son, is executor.

Nancy A. Wyatt, died Oct. 10, 1933. Estate, $5,000, to a daughter and one friend. Eva M. Wheeler, the daughter, is executrix.

MRS. INSULL JR. LEAVES ESTATE WORTH $60,000

Mrs. Adelaide P. Insull, wife of Samuel Insull Jr., son of the former utilities magnate, left an estate of $60,000, most of it comprising insurance policies, it was revealed yesterday when her will was filed with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. A major portion of her property was bequeathed in a trust fund to her son, Samuel III., and the residue to her husband.

Mrs. Insull died last Feb. 11, a few days after undergoing an operation at St. Luke's hospital. Her will, executed on Sept. 16, directed that $2,000 in cash and her personal effects be given her husband. The remainder of her property, according to the terms of the will, shall be placed in a trust fund from which her son will receive the income for 21 years. At the end of that time he will receive the principal.

Executors of the estate are Mr. Insull Jr., Waldo F. Tobey, and Edward O. Ketting. The value of Mrs. Insull's estate was made known by Attorney Karl Gibbon, who filed the will. Mrs. Insull was the daughter of the late Charles Ingalls Pierce, president of the Saline County Coal company.

Albert E. Spalding, 66, Champaign Druggist, Dies

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Funeral services for Albert E. [Bert] Spalding, 66, druggist, known to thousands of University of Illinois graduates, who died at his home here this morning as a result of a heart attack, will be held tomorrow.

Prof. Kes Dies; Amsterdam Concert Orchestra Founder

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Prof. Willem Kes, founder of the Amsterdam Concertgebouw orchestra, died at his home here today at the age of 79. He had directed orchestras in Moscow, Glasgow, and Coblenz.

CORSE PAYTON OF MELODRAMA FAME IS DEAD

Long Known as Land's "Best Bad Actor."

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 23. — (AP) — Corse Payton, matinée idol of a generation ago, who made millions weep when he played "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse," died today.

The 67 year old actor, dashing hero of a score of maudlin melodramas, had been ill since December in the charity ward of a hospital.

A native of Centerville, Ia., Payton made a name for himself throughout the middle west as leading man of stock companies before he came east. For seven years he operated a 10-20-30 theater in Brooklyn, where critics dubbed him America's "best bad actor."

Payton went on the stage at the age of 16 as Luke Bloomfield in "Dora," taking part in a company composed entirely of members of his own family. The organization made a hit for several years.

Forms Own Company.

Then, in 1891, Payton decided to form his own stock company. From town to town throughout the middle west he took his shows.

Night after night he played the gallant lover who walked through snow to lift the mortgage from the old homestead, who rescued the heroine after the villain with his waxed mustache slunk away.

Four years of touring in the middle west gave him a desire to come to New York, and he arranged to lease a theater here, which he named after himself. His company played to crowded houses and he was financially successful.

Then the movies came along and the old time melodramas were relegated to the showboats. Gradually Payton dropped from sight, and in 1921 he was bankrupt.

Fails to Make Comeback.

Six years later he tried a comeback in a tiny neighborhood theater, but he was getting old. He and his wife, Henrietta Brown, an actress, lived in a furnished room.

With the return of beer he attempted another comeback in a combination beer garden and stock company theater. Then he became ill and was taken to the hospital.

CHARITY FUND TOTAL RAISED TO $2,941,809

Contributions and pledges to the community fund now total $2,941,809, and large pledges are still coming in from concerns whose employés have just completed their organizations. This was announced yesterday at the fund headquarters at 111 West Washington street. The fund is to be used to assist in the work of Chicago charitable organizations.

Among the larger pledges of the last week were Reliance Manufacturing company, $1,400; New York Central Lines employés, $1,200; Millers National Insurance company and employés, $1,116; Grand Trunk Western employés, $998; Equitable Life Assurance society employés, $1,100.

The Woman's City club sent a pledge of $497. Additional subscriptions came from two other women's organizations; $500 from the Chicago Woman's club, making a total of $1,250 given by that group, and $211 from the Junior league, raising this organization's total to $729.

Two Friends, Both 88, Die Within Five Hours

Morris, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—George Wallace and Harry Leon, both 88 years old and "buddies" for many years, died at the county farm today within five hours of each other. Leon was an inmate 27 years and Wallace ten. They both came from the same township and will be buried tomorrow in paupers' graves.

2 ROCKFORD GROUPS GIRD FOR BATTLE ON "WIDE OPEN TOWN"

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Churches and liberal business men today were preparing for a drawn fight for control of this city, dry for twenty years until the repeal of national prohibition last December. Technically dry by local option for years before the 18th amendment was adopted, the city would become a wide open town if the liberal merchants win. Rigid ordinances governing amusement centers, taverns, and dance halls would be retained and new restrictions probably added if the church faction proves successful.

Licensing of amusement devices, dancing until 2 a. m. Sunday morning authorization of dancing in taverns are the chief goals of the liberals. Maintenance of the city's midnight limit on dancing, maintenance of the present ordinance forbidding dancing at all times in taverns and the inclusion of beer taverns in the present Sunday closing ban are the aims of the church group.

Petitions to secure at least 5,000 names supporting their stand will be circulated by the conservative business men. Petitions bearing 2,500 names have already been submitted to the city council by the liberals in support of their stand.

John S. Butler, Veteran Insurance Man, 56, Dies

John S. Butler, veteran Chicago insurance man, died Friday at his home, 224 Scott street, Wheaton. He was 56 years old. For the last thirty-five years Mr. Butler had been associated with the Chicago branch of the Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection and Insurance company, 175 West Jackson boulevard. He was a past master of Wheaton lodge, A. F. & A. M. He is survived by his wife. Funeral services will be held at 120 North Hale street, Wheaton, at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Sol C. Moss, Silk, Woolen Wholesaler, Dies at 57

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Sol C. Moss, 57, president of Moss & Still, Inc., silk and woolen wholesalers, and a member of the silk textile code authority, died of heart disease today after an illness of several weeks. Moss was prominent in Chicago Masonic circles and was a member of the B'nai Brith, the Elks, and Royal Arcanum lodges of that city.

PIONEER PATRON OF HULL HOUSE, MARY SMITH, DIES

Miss Mary Rozet Smith, a lifelong patron of Hull House, died suddenly Thursday at her home at 12 West Walton place. Pneumonia was the cause of death. She was 65 years old. Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock Monday morning, with burial in Graceland cemetery.

Miss Smith is survived by two brothers, Charles Frederick Mather Smith of Oakland, Fla., and Francis Drexel Smith of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Miss Smith became identified with Hull House in 1889, during the first year of its existence. Five years later she was made a member of the board of trustees and has served in that capacity since. She was one of the founders of the Hull House music school and was the donor of the Hull House theater organ. She was an extensive traveler. With Miss Jane Addams, head of Hull House, she made a trip to Russia and visited Tolstoy in 1896. In 1923 she and Miss Addams made a trip around the world in the interest of better social conditions. Miss Smith was a member of the Friday club, Chicago Women's club, and the Women's City club. She also was a trustee of the Juvenile Protective association.

HARRY L. HAMLIN, THEATER MAN, IS DEAD IN THE EAST

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Harry L. Hamlin, former owner of the Grand Opera house in Chicago, died here today at his home of a heart attack after a year of failing health at the age of 71.

His widow, the former Miss Mary Elkins Paxton, who is a member of the Colony club and the National Society of Colonial Dames; a daughter, Miss Judith Hamlin; a brother, Herbert W. Hamlin of Greenwich, Conn., and a sister, Mrs. Mancel T. Clark of Winnetka, Ill., survive him.

Mr. Hamlin retired from business thirty years ago when he left Chicago and moved to this city. His father, the late John Austin Hamlin, owned the opera house in Chicago before him. A Yale graduate, class of '87, he belonged to the Yale club of New York. He had a summer home at East Hampton, L. I.

BUSCH, BREWER, LEAVES ESTATE TO HIS WIDOW

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The will of August A. Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and internationally known brewer, was filed today in Probate court and leaves virtually the entire estate to the widow, Mrs. Alice Busch.

No estimate of the value of the estate was made. Busch shot and killed himself Feb. 13, after suffering for six weeks from a severe illness.

Provision was made for the distribution of certain hunting equipment, mounted specimens, paintings and furniture between five children. It also was recommended, but not ordered, that Mrs. Busch retain an annual income of $60,000 and distribute the remainder between the children.

Jefferson Davis' Kin Dies in West; Son in Chicago

Colorado Spring, Colo., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Varina Howell Davis Hayes Webb, granddaughter of Jefferson Davis, president of the confederacy, died tonight of an infection following a scratch from a hatpin. She was the wife of Dr. Gerald E. Webb, president of the Colorado State Medical society. Mrs. Gerald Bennett, Washington, D. C., is a daughter and Gerald Webb, Chicago, a son.

Robber Shoots Grocer Who Pursues Him from Store

Benjamin Miller, 60 years old, 122 South St. Louis avenue, was shot in the leg last night when he tried to follow a bandit out of his grocery at 3503 Madison street. The gunman took $4 from Miller, then started away. Miller ran after him. The bandit turned and fired one shot, hitting the grocer.

WHEATON YOUTHS GET 15-30 YEARS FOR BANK HOLDUP

Sentenced for Robbery at Burlington.

Racine, Wis., Feb 23.—[Special.]—Three youths from Wheaton, Ill., today received sentences of from 15 to 30 years on their pleas of guilty to bank robbery while a group of friends and neighbors looked on with varied emotions. The defendants were Frank Barton, 20 years old, Sanford Alexander, 19 years old, and Frank Brundage, 19 years old, a former captain of the Wheaton college football team.

Barton, who tossed a $250 tip to a cab driver in Chicago, thereby providing the motive for the driver's murder later, appeared unmoved as he was sentenced to the state prison at Waupun. He has a previous record. Alexander and Brundage, without former experience in crime, broke down as the court meted out equally long terms for them in the state reformatory at Green Bay. The coterie of 40 Wheaton residents, some of whom had appeared as character witnesses in their behalf, also displayed emotion.

The trio robbed the Burlington bank of $6,000 a week ago. After arresting them by tracing the car they abandoned at Powers Lake, Wis., police recovered $3,824 of the loot. Barton had spent or was robbed of $1,000 in a tour of Chicago night clubs, in which the munificent tip to Cab Driver John Moskowitz was an incident. Moskowitz was killed by another cab driver to whom he had boastingly shown the money. Authorities here said the youths would begin serving their terms today.

REV. JAMES CARR, RETIRED PASTOR, DIES IN WINNETKA

The Rev. James Scott Carr, 79 years old, retired Congregational minister, died yesterday in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Luella Newton, 1073 Gage street, Winnetka. He had been ill for two years.

A clergyman for 44 years, the Rev. Mr. Carr retired six years ago, his last pastorate being at Avon, Ill. He had served in various churches in the state, among them the Congregational church in Mundelein, Lake county.

The Rev. Mr. Carr and his wife, Harriet, who survives, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Feb. 12. In addition to the widow and the daughter, Mrs. Newton, two other daughters survive. They are Mrs. Eleanor Wetmore of Oneida, Ill., and Mrs. Harriet Surber of Des Moines, Ia. Funeral services, preceded by Masonic rites, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Rev. Mr. Carr's old church in Mundelein. Burial will be in Ivanhoe cemetery.

HUNDREDS VIEW NEW STREAMLINE PASSENGER TRAIN

The Union Pacific railroad's streamlined "Train of Tomorrow" was placed on exhibition yesterday at the North Western station, where it will remain until tonight. Hundreds visited it and more are expected before 10 o'clock tonight when the modernistic three-car creation of transportation engineers will leave for Omaha.

Newspaper men and railroad executives were given a preview of the train several days ago when it left the Pullman works for Washington, where President Roosevelt inspected it. Yesterday was its first public appearance here. Also on display was a "railplane," a single, bullet-shaped car train built by the Pullman company. The concern also has a six-car and a nine-car train of modernistic lines under construction.

CHARGES 17 BIG COMPANIES FED '29 SPECULATOR

20 Billions Total of Bootleg Loans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Speculators seeking funds with which to speculate further, and corporations, not cold to the appeal of high interest rates, met during the 1929 boom, in the transaction known as the brokers' loan.

In fact, they met so frequently that when the year was ended some 17 large corporations had poured more than 20 billions of dollars in call loans into the speculative market. And by this transaction, Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the senate banking and currency committee, which revealed today the figures, charged they sustained that speculative market.

As reportorial pencils raced along recording details of the 20 billion dollar transactions Pecora shrugged his shoulders; intimated that this was but the beginning.

"Bootleg Loans" Stir Pecora.

And Senator Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], chairman of the committee which is considering his bill for stock exchange regulation, inquired, jurt as if he didn't already know:

"Don't they call these brokers' loans bootleg loans?"

Pecora took his cue.

"Indeed they do. Not only in the parlance of the street but even in textbooks they are called bootleg loans," and he read from a textbook which called the process "throwing fuel on a speculative fire."

The fuel thus tossed on the 1929 fire came, according to today's statistics, from 17 companies and varied from the large log aggregating $17,672,520,000, which the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey threw on, to the little log aggregating $1,600,000 plumped in by the Auburn Automobile company.

Standard's Operations.

Mr. R. P. Resor, assistant treasurer for Standard Oil and the gentleman who negotiated the brokers' loans, admitted that the Pecora committee had figured out the year's total was about 17 billion; but added, "But it didn't mean anything to us. For if I loan a million a day for a year I wouldn't be loaning 365 million a year, but only 1 million. I wouldn't get the interest on 365 million, but on 1 million."

Standard Oil's interest for the year's transactions was $4,945,217.65. Its average daily loan was about 69 millions and the peak for a day came Sept. 9, 1929, with a high of about 97 millions outstanding in call loans.

Mr. Resor was definite about two things; his company had loaned from a surplus that had come from income, reduction of inventory and other factors, but had not come from a sale of stock; and the demand for the loan had antedated the offering of the money.

Other Sources of Money.

To Mr. Pecora's persistent suggestion that these and other brokers' loans kept the stock market speculation going, Mr. Resor was resistant. He was sure the money would have been got some other way.

Senator Kean [Rep., N. J.] wondered if the money wouldn't have come, then, from the foreign money market, and Mr. Resor was certain it would have.

Arguing that the attractive interest rate [5 to 15 per cent and more] was not the only inducement to making call loans, Mr. Resor pointed out that today his company is making them, even with the interest only 1 per cent; but did admit they had dropped from a daily average of 69 million to 11 million.

Harry F. Sinclair, speaking for the former Sinclair Consolidated corporation of 1929, reported an aggregate of 211 millions in brokers' loans in that year, with a daily average of something over 12 million, and a total interest for the year of $833,593.

How Exchange "Propagandizes."

Then Mr. Pecora called to the stand George U. Harris, member of the publicity committee of the New York Stock exchange. What he wanted to find out was whether the exchange had launched expansive and expensive propaganda against the Fletcher-Rayburn bill for federal control of the exchange.

But all he found out today was that the publicity committee had spent a little over a million dollars in the last five years in selling itself to the public through pamphlets, speeches, and two motion pictures.

The committee distributed J. E. Meeker's book on "Short Selling" to 583 public officials, "including a large number of members of congress."

What Companies Loaned.

The committee released a table showing the companies, number of loans made in the year, the total of these loans, and the highest amount each company had outstanding in any one day. The table follows (last three ciphers omitted in last two columns):

Companies—	No. of loans.	Total amount.	Peak amount.

Stock Control Bill Fought by 20 Exchanges

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—The Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange control bill will drive all small businesses to Wall street for capital and will force many local exchanges out of business with consequent loss to brokers and local investors, representatives of the American Association of Stock Exchanges told the house committee on interstate commerce today.

At the same hearing, counsel for the New York Stock exchange attacked the constitutionality of the bill, and Richard Whitney, president of the New York exchange, continued his attack on its provisions.

"If this bill is passed, many local stock exchanges will cease to function," said Eugene E. Thompson of Washington, president of the Association of Stock exchanges, speaking for nineteen markets outside New York.

Reports Many Dangers.

"It will seriously impair if not destroy the value of securities markets, will reduce state and other taxes, throw thousands out of employment and end the essential function of stock exchanges.

"Instead of being a measure for the protection of the investor in corporate capital it may prove to be the most dangerous legislation of its character that congress has ever enacted. There is anxiety and unrest on the part of security owners as to the next move, and should the bill be passed, there is certain to follow an avalanche of selling—or efforts to sell—such as we have never before witnessed."

Mr. Thompson's chief objection, however, which will also be the chief objection of the members of the local exchanges who appeared, was to the provisions segregating the functions of dealer, underwriter, and specialist, and limiting the activities of the latter.

Would Destroy Business.

Mr. Thompson and his colleagues declared that there was not enough volume of business in the average local exchange to allow brokers to continue in business if they were forced to confine their activities to dealing for customers alone.

Furthermore, they stated that the effect of these provisions would be to drive all small local concerns to Wall street when they issued new stock or attempted to expand by floating new issues.

Thomas B. Gay of Richmond, of counsel for the New York Stock exchange, declared that the bill was founded on the principle of a national government, whereas the federal government had only such powers as were expressly delegated to it by the constitution.

CHICAGO ENTERS FIGHT.

Warren A. Lamson, a governor of the Chicago Stock exchange, left yesterday for Washington to join M. J. O'Brien, president, and Jess Halsted, secretary, who are preparing a brief on the stock exchange regulation bill. Mr. O'Brien will present it to the house committee next week.

Exchange officials were silent on the contents of the brief although it was indicated it will deal primarily with effects on the Chicago market which have not been touched by President Whitney of the New York exchange and others testifying before the body.

SWIFT TO PAY 12½C DIVIDEND; OTHERS VOTED

Swift and company yesterday authorized the payment of a 12½ cent dividend for the first quarter of 1934. The company resumed payments in the final quarter of 1933 with a similar distribution.

The National-Standard company declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents. Previous regular payments were made at the rate of 30 cents quarterly.

Industrial Rayon corporation voted a payment of $1.25, against $1 paid in the two preceding quarters.

Commercial Credit company, whose last payment in June, 1932, was 12½ cents, voted a quarterly dividend of 25 cents.

Foundation Company of Canada, which paid 12½ cents in May, 1932, voted a dividend of 25 cents.

Pratt & Lambert voted a quarterly payment of 25 cents, against 12½ cents in previous quarters. A special dividend of 12½ cents was paid three months ago.

The following voted dividends to apply against accumulations on cumulative preferred stocks: Curtiss Publishing, 75 cents; International Silver, $1; Crown Cork International, 50 cents.

COURT MAY RULE TODAY ON PLAN FOR PEORIA LIFE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 23.—Circuit Judge John Neihaus is expected to rule tomorrow morning on the proposed contract for the mutualization of the business of the Peoria Life Insurance company, which was placed in receivership late last year.

The court has already approved the plan, but the hearing today was set in order that Insurance Director Ernest Palmer and others who have opposed the plan might voice their objections. Those voicing protests were instructed to show cause why the court should not direct the receivers to put the plan into effect.

LOSS IS HALVED BY RADIO CORP. AS TRADE GAINS

Last Quarter of 1933 Shows Profit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—The annual report of the Radio Corporation of America for 1933 shows a net loss of $582,094 after all deductions, compared with a net loss of $1,133,586 in 1932. Surplus at the end of 1933 was $9,269,091, against $9,851,184 the year before and $11,327,789 two years ago. Gross income for 1933 was $62,333,496, compared with $67,361,143 in 1932, a decrease of 7.5 per cent. The cost of doing business was reduced 8.1 per cent, however, and net earnings were $3,655,285, against $5,075,901.

J. G. HARBORD. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

During the final quarter of the year the corporation's business improved materially, James G. Harbord, chairman, and David Sarnoff, president, say in their report. This resulted in a net profit from operations of $1,211,277 for the fourth quarter, compared with a net loss of $540,863 for the same period of 1932 and with a loss of $1,793,371 for the first nine months of 1933.

First Profit in 18 Months.

It was the first quarterly profit earned since the first quarter of 1932. The profit accruing to the company from the conversion of foreign assets held in foreign countries at the current rate of exchange at Dec. 31, 1933, has been credited to a reserve for possible fluctuations in foreign exchange and not to income account.

"Radio Corporation of America operated for the first time in 1933 under its new status, divorced from the General Electric and Westinghouse companies, which formerly held a controlling stock interest in the corporation," the report says. "This new status permitted the entry by the corporation, late in the year, into the additional field of manufacture of radio transmitting equipment, a field in which it was not previously licensed to manufacture."

Report Scientific Progress.

The report refers to scientific progress made during the years, particularly with reference to the "iconoscope," through which outdoor and indoor scenes have been satisfactorily received and transmitted by television on an experimental and laboratory basis, but states the policy of refraining from definite prediction as to the time when television may be offered to the public on a commercial basis.

Current assets at the end of 1933 were $35,383,031, including $12,149,483 cash and $7,396,274 United States government and other marketable securities, at market value, comparing with $38,316,654 current assets, including $25,555,483 cash and $274,679 marketable securities at market, a year ago.

Inventories Show Increase.

Inventories, at the lower of cost or market, were $6,603,336, against $4,514,901 at the end of 1932, the increase being due to the requirements of increased current business. The reduction in current assets is principally accounted for by the final payment of $2,925,329, which was due on the subscription for Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation debentures, in January, 1933.

In addition to the foregoing items of cash outlay, the report says, the corporation made capital outlays during 1933 in the various branches of its business and that of its wholly owned subsidiaries, increasing the corporation's fixed assets by $3,964,000.

Current liabilities were $6,765,763, compared with $4,651,898 a year before. The corporation has no bank debt and financed all its activities during 1933 without borrowing.

SOUTH SHORE REPORTS $358,755 LOSS FOR YEAR

Increased passenger business resulting from Chicago's World Fair failed to lift the Chicago, South Shore and South Bend railroad out of the red last year. Net loss totaled $358,755, stockholders were told at their annual meeting yesterday in Michigan City, Ind.

The company has been undergoing a reorganization under the federal bankruptcy act since Sept. 30 last. In the nine months prior to October net loss was $333,947 while deficit during the three months following was only $24,808. In 1932 loss totaled $629,311.

Passenger revenues showed small increases from June to December over 1932, but income for the full year from this source was $20,188 lower. Directors were reelected for the year.

Banks Buy U.S. Bonds; Still Retain Funds

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The "ring-around-a-rosy" arrangement by which the federal government sells its bonds to the banks and lets the banks keep the funds which are paid for the bonds is the story told by the weekly reserve figures issued last night. The benefits are mutual. The banks pay no interest on the government deposits but collect a fair interest on the government securities, while the treasury shows the world that it can find a market for its bonds and that its credit is good.

The reserve member banks in New York last week purchased another 105 millions of government securities, their report disclosed. Not a dime went out of the banks, however, because the government left the 105 millions on deposit, bearing no interest, and in addition put in another 111 millions on deposit. The operation lifted the total of government deposits in New York member banks to nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars.

Commercial Loans Reduced.

The 105 million figure does not necessarily represent the total government purchases of the New York banks. Proceeds of maturing government issues are constantly being turned back into new issues.

While extending the government additional credit the banks cut down 29 millions on their advances to commercial borrowers. Collateral loans, however, jumped 82 millions. As loans to brokers and dealers expanded 97 millions there was an indicated shrinkage of 15 millions in other type of collateral loans. Indicated gross deposits were up 216 millions, all of which was accounted for by the increased government balances.

In Chicago the banks also purchased "governments." Portfolios of the reserve member institutions here received another 53 millions of government paper but government deposits expanded only 7 millions while other deposits showed an indicated drop of 11 millions.

Treasury Seek Easy Market.

The piling up of huge balances in New York while putting only a moderate amount on deposit here would indicate a policy on the part of the treasury to insure an "easy" money condition in both money markets, which are the two most important credit reservoirs of the country. The stronger excess reserve position of the Chicago banks makes additional deposits unnecessary here.

In New York, however, the excess reserve margin is narrow. A sudden drawing down of government balances might produce a tight money condition. There appears to be little likelihood of such a development, however, because the government is anxious to keep credit easy not only as a means of stimulating recovery but to aid in its own financing problems.

Currency circulation throughout the country expanded about 16 millions, the report of the 12 reserve banks showed. On the other hand, the system reduced its holdings of discounts and purchases of bills in the open market.

Brokers' loans increased $97,000,000 to $950,000,000.

UNITED STATES GOLD STOCK INCREASES TO $7,203,000,000 TOTAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The United States gold stock has climbed 185 million dollars since dollar devaluation to $7,203,000,000.

Of the entire increase 114 million dollars was added during the last week as shipments from abroad poured into the New York assay office and Federal Reserve bank.

Treasury commitment to considerably more gold was indicated in a statement of Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint, who said the assay office already has made advance payments of more than 226 million dollars on foreign shipments received between Feb. 10 and Feb. 21. Treasury officials explained the gold was not finally covered in the treasury's assets until payment has been completed.

The large rise in gold stock during the last week was accompanied by another increase in gold certificate assets of the federal reserve banks. They went up 130 million dollars in the week to $3,712,311,000 as the government made new deposits and advances for gold buying. Every reserve bank except Minneapolis shared in the gold certificate increase. New York led with $59,200,000.

CIGARET OUTPUT, 11½ BILLION, SETS JANUARY RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—Cigaret production last month established a new high record for January with a total output of 11,483,341,893. This was the sixth largest output in one month in the history of the industry and it was a 33 per cent increase over the $7,799,623,723 total reported in December. It also represented a 43 per cent increase in production over January, 1932.

The figures, which come from the internal revenue department, show that last month's cigaret production has been exceeded only as follows: May, 1933, when the total was 12,822,000,000; June, 1933, 12,462,000,000; June, 1931, 11,700,000,000; May, 1930, 11,800,000,000, and June, 1930, 11,700,000,000.

An interesting feature of the production figures last month was the relatively spectacular growth in large cigarets. There were 8,000,050 large cigarets manufactured, compared with only 253,050 in same month last year.

NATL. LEATHER SHOWS PROFIT; FIRST SINCE '28

Last year the National Leather company earned a profit for the first time since 1928, the company's annual report reveals. Net totaled $1,337,672, against a deficit of $1,653,672 a year earlier. An operating profit of $1,416,074 compared with an operating deficit of $1,509,554 in 1932.

The consolidated balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1933, shows current assets of $8,464,374 and current liabilities of $1,202,305, against $6,391,911 and $642,329, respectively, at the close of the previous year. Inventories were valued at $6,314,302, compared with $4,592,729.

Tribune Foreign Trade Drive Called Boon to Middle West

Opportunity for manufacturers in the Chicago district to improve their sales abroad should result from THE TRIBUNE'S campaign to extend this country's foreign business, according to H. M. Salisbury, export sales manager for the Nash Motors company, Kenosha, Wis. Mr. Salisbury, who recently returned from a 19,000 mile journey abroad which took him through the British Isles, Europe, and the Near East, was enthusiastic over THE TRIBUNE'S campaign.

"In my 23 years of service in the export field this is the first time that I ever heard of a newspaper tackling a problem of such vital importance to the economic welfare of the people in its community," Mr. Salisbury said.

Trade Necessary to Recovery.

"The problem of expanding our foreign markets is of such importance in the scheme of national recovery that even the die-hard isolationists now admit we can have no real prosperity until the rest of the world is buying from America again.

"THE TRIBUNE is achieving a valuable service to Chicagoland by doing more than pointing out the opportunities abroad for Chicago manufacturers. In gathering specific information about definite foreign markets through its foreign staff it is actually showing the manufacturers in the Chicago area ways to merchandise abroad."

Small Manufacturer Aided.

Mr. Salisbury explained the value of THE TRIBUNE service to the small Chicago manufacturer, pointing out the great expense which the large companies are under in maintaining adequate foreign staffs.

"The hundreds of small manufacturers in the Chicago area will gain a great deal by taking advantage of THE TRIBUNE'S market service," he continued. "With the information supplied to them by trained observers throughout the world, small Chicago manufacturers have at their command data that costs large exporters thousands of dollars a year to gather.

Mr. Salisbury said the Chicago district has a great possibility in the foreign field which up to the present has been only partly developed.

"There is no reason why Chicago, one of the outstanding manufacturing centers of the country, should not occupy an equally important place in the foreign field," he added.

Quaker Oats Reports Profit $4.81 a Share

Net income of the Quaker Oats company for 1933 amounted to $4,444,104, according to the company's annual report, issued yesterday by John Stuart, president.

This is equal to $4.81 a share on 702,000 common shares outstanding and compares with $4,297,131, or $4.59 a share, in the corresponding period a year earlier. Last year's profit was exclusive of adjustments to market value of securities and foreign net current assets, which resulted in a credit of $691,500. In 1932 the net was exclusive of a credit of $914,539 from the same source.

Declares Extra Dividend.

Directors declared an extra dividend of $1 on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1, and also the usual quarterly disbursement of $1.50 on the preferred, all payable April 16 to stock of record April 2. A similar extra was paid last April.

Earnings from operations increased $636,000, while interest and dividends received dropped $217,000, largely due to a transfer of funds from securities to inventories and a greater concentration of investments in short term governments, which pay a lower rate of interest, the report said.

Current assets are carried as of Dec. 31, 1933, at $32,995,799, including more than $18,400,000 in cash and government, state, and municipal securities, against current liabilities of $4,557,142. Inventories show a gain of approximately $5,800,000 over 1932, totaling $11,649,653, due to higher prices of all commodities.

President Optimistic.

Commenting on the year's results Mr. Stuart said:

"Considering general business conditions we feel the volume of our advertised products in the United States was satisfactory. On some items we show gains and on others losses. The outlook for the current year is encouraging.

"Volume of advertised products in foreign fields showed losses ranging from 2 to 9 per cent in Canada, the United Kingdom, and continental Europe, and an improvement of 7 per cent in other foreign countries. In view of the increasing tariffs, unfavorable conditions, quota restrictions, and exchange difficulties we feel results have been highly satisfactory."

WESTERN UNION, RAIL EXPRESS JOIN SERVICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—A unification of services by the Western Union Telegraph company and the Railway Express agency, each the largest organization of its kind, was announced today. Under the agreement each company will accept business for the other.

Initially, 3,600 Western Union offices will be equipped to transfer express consignments, but the service will go beyond that by extending it to every home equipped with a telephone. By summoning a telegraph messenger, who will respond without making a charge, householders may send packages by express without leaving their homes.

The system was devised by R. B. White, president of Western Union, who was formerly president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and L. O. Head, president of the Railway Express agency.

Coal Industry to Fight U. S. Power Grants

Creation of the National Job Saving and Investment Protective bureau, a national organization of coal mine operators and union miners, to fight government financing of hydroelectric developments that threaten the coal industry, was announced here today.

ARTHUR MULLEN.

Behind the movement are the leading organizations of the industry, the United Mine Workers of America, the National Coal association, and the coal code authorities in each of the country's geographical districts. In announcing the formation of the bureau C. B. Huntress, secretary of the National Coal association, said that every coal field in the United States is threatened with annihilation by unnecessary development of hydro projects with government funds.

Fear Many Jobs Lost.

The association declared that the government will destroy thousands of permanent jobs now held by coal miners and railroad men merely to create temporary jobs in the construction and power developments.

The group is making a particularly vigorous fight on the Loup river project at Columbus, Neb., which already has been allotted $7,300,000 by the Public Works administration. It is estimated the project will supplant nearly a million tons of coal.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Public Works administrator, has denied the coal men a public hearing on the project, and it is believed that the fight against the development will be carried up to President Roosevelt.

Regard Project as Uneconomic.

The water power possibilities of the Loup river have been surveyed on several occasions by private utility companies, including the Electric Bond and Share group, and each time it has been decided that the development would be uneconomic, the coal men declare. It was found that it was cheaper to manufacture electric power by coal steam plants when the price of coal was twice is present figure.

The arguments presented to Ickes have been unavailing, and it was largely because of the failure to get a hearing on the project that the new liaison bureau between the various groups in the coal industry was organized. The coal people declare that all they want is a hearing to show that the Loup river development is uneconomic.

Link Mullen with Project.

Arthur Mullen, Democratic national committeeman from Nebraska, is said to have represented the project in Washington, but he denies the charge. Gov. Bryan of Nebraska, a political foe of Mullen, has sent requests to federal officials demanding that any fat fees in connection with the granting of funds for power developments be eliminated.

The association is also planning a fight on the bill introduced in the United States senate proposing the creation of the Missouri Valley authority similar in purpose to the Tennessee Valley authority. Creation of surplus electric power capacity in the middle west and the forced electrification of the railroads will throw 75,000 persons out of employment, the bureau declares.

George J. Leahy of Chicago has been selected by the various code authorities to represent the producers on the new committee. Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, represents the union. William Greene, president of the American Federation of Labor, and A. F. Whitney, president of the Railway Executives' association, have promised their coöperation.

DOLLAR VALUE STEADY; MORE GOLD ON WAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—There was hardly a ripple to mar the placid surface of the foreign exchange markets today. Trading was dull, and overnight quotations were largely undisturbed.

Against the nongold currencies, of which the British pound is the chief, the American dollar edged up a bit, but not enough to make much difference. The pound was worth $5.07½ at the close, down a cent from yesterday's London quotation. The French franc moved up one one-hundredth of a cent to close at 6.56 cents, indicating a gold value for the dollar of 59.72 cents, against the preceding 59.81 close.

American purchases of gold in the London market were comparatively small, amounting to about $2,080,000 at the equivalent to approximately $34.72 a fine ounce, compared with the official United States treasury price of $35. Two shipments of gold aggregating $23,000,000, purchased last week, left London yesterday for New York.

J. L. Marks & Co. Creditors Offered 50 Pct. of Claims

Creditors of J. L. Marks & Co., security firm, were offered 50 per cent of their claims in full settlement at a hearing yesterday before Referee in Bankruptcy Garfield Charles. Ten per cent of the payment would be in cash, under the plan.

NOTICE OF RENT BOOSTS MAY 1 SENT TENANTS

$2.50 to $5 Increase Most Common.

BY AL CHASE.

For the first time in several years apartment rentals in Chicago are to be increased. Improvement in general business, increase in factory pay rolls, resulting in the unscrambling of doubled up families, and a steady taking up of slack apartment occupancy at last have had the long talked of result—a boost in rents. On May 1 several thousand tenants throughout the city and in Oak Park and Evanston will have to pay a small increase for their flats.

Real estate brokers point out, however, that the advance affects only part of the leases expiring on May 1—those which owners and realty men feel were abnormally low for the accommodations given. For example, one of the city's largest managers of apartment properties, McKey & Poague, has notified only 500 tenants out of 3,000 whose leases expire May 1 that they face a raise in rents.

$2.50 to $5 Increases Suggested.

It was learned yesterday that a general executive committee representing the three big renting bodies of the city—the North Side Renting Managers' association, the South Side Renting Men's association, and the West Side Real Estate board, at a meeting held the night before, agreed to make small increases in rents here and there. From $2.50 to $5 were suggested as fair increases.

It also was decided to grant no concessions whatever on May 1. This, it was pointed out, would amount to approximately an 8 per cent increase in the rental of a tenant who last year had been given a month's rent free for signing a twelve months' lease. No broker could be found who would sign a lease for a longer period than one year. Several said they would gladly make six month leases.

Bigger Boost in Oak Park.

In Oak Park, where apartment occupancy actually has climbed higher than in pre-depression days, one large firm, the George R. Hemingway organization, reports 97 per cent of their flats rented and 90 per cent is considered normal. Most leases which expire on May 1 will be renewed only at a 10 per cent increase.

In certain exclusive sections of Chicago a few apartment dwellers face increases as high as 15 per cent. A survey discloses, however, a general tendency to stick to the $2.50 to $5 boost in rents.

Every tenant in the seven story Cranston apartments at 6929-39 Cranston avenue, this morning will receive a notice from Attorney Leo V. Cleary, a tenant owner in this big coöperative building and also its receiver, appointed by Judge Denis Sullivan, that his rent on May 1 will be raised.

Cranston Rents Up $5.

Most of the Cranston rent increases are $5. In a few instances some of the five room suites on lower floors will be advanced from $65 to $75.

"This slight increase will be the means of assisting in a number of ways, especially in paying off more back real estate taxes," said Mr. Cleary in his letter to the tenants.

Frederick P. Kirschner of Schoenlank & Kirschner, president of the North Side Rental Managers' association, said that rents are to be brought up to a legitimate level, but there will be no wholesale increase in rents."

According to Frank J. O'Brien, vice president of McKey & Poague, who handle approximately 10,000 apartment units on the south side, and who have only a small percentage of vacancies—3 per cent in some areas and none in certain buildings—only a few of the tenants protested against the prospective rent increase.

Predict Boost in Fall.

All real estate men interviewed were agreed that in addition to a boost in rents May 1 tenants face another and larger one next fall. They emphatically assert that the long period of tobogganing rentals is over and that from now on rents will increase.

As evidence of how the slack in vacancies has been taken up, the South Side Renting Men's association reports that in the 40,000 apartment units it represents there were 7,200 vacancies on Jan. 1, 1933, or 18½ per cent. On Jan. 1, 1934, there were only 2,200 vacant flats, or 5½ per cent.

Auburn Auto Gives Orders for $250,000 in Illinois

Illinois manufacturers in the last week have been awarded more than $250,000 in orders from the Auburn Automobile company for materials in building new 1934 models, W. H. Beal, president, said yesterday. Chicago's portion was $200,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—Domestic corporation bonds were under pressure on the stock exchange today in moderately active trading, while United States government bonds were firm and leading foreign loans pointed higher. Total dealings in the listed bond market amounted to $15,151,000, compared with $15,692,000 on Wednesday.

The principal setbacks in the corporation bonds ranged from 1 to 6 points. On the average the utility, industrial and railroad bonds were lower in that order.

Active Issues Lower.

Virtually all of the most active corporation issues closed lower on the day. In some instances, less active bonds gained a point or two, scoring new highs for the year thus far.

Long term United States government bonds were very dull, finishing the day generally higher, up 2-32ds point to down the same fraction. Word from Washington over the holiday that the treasury might consider a long term bond issue in connection with its March 15 financing did not serve to ruffle the market for government bonds.

Foreign Group Is Strong.

The best strength in the foreign bond group was displayed by Dutch East Indies loans, up 2 to 5½ points; French government and municipal loans, up fractionally to 1½; Swiss government 5½s up ⅜ to a new record high, and Austrian government 7s due 1957. Bonds of the Australian group continued strong and fractionally higher on the news of the success of the commonwealth's new conversion loan.

Domestic bond prices were weaker on the curb exchange with the principal losses ranging up to more than six points. Foreign loans were irregularly higher.

HOLC BONDS.

Bonds of the Home Owners' Loan corporation were quoted yesterday at 94½ bid, 95½ asked.

Wilcox-Rich.

Investors' Guide: You have been very prompt and kind in giving information requested in reply to my inquiries, for which I thank you most sincerely. May I now ask for such data as you may have available on Wilcox-Rich A stock? What line do they market? I have been advised to make an investment in this stock, but before doing so would like to have your comments.—H. J. E.

Answer: Wilcox-Rich corporation is a subsidiary of Eaton Manufacturing company. It is one of the leading manufacturers of automotive valves, tappets and piston rings.

About 80 per cent of sales are made directly to manufacturers for use as original equipment. The remainder is sold through jobbers for replacement purposes.

The spurt in automobile production in the second quarter of 1933 enabled the company to wipe out the first quarter's loss of $23,000 and report profit of $134,000, after class A dividends, for the first half. For the first nine months net income, after class A dividends, was $249,000, more than twice as much as full 1932 earnings before class A dividends.

Net income in 1932 was $113,000, or $2.37 per share of class A stock, against net of $394,000, or $7.92 per class A stock, for 1931. Earnings in 1932 were adversely affected by curtailment of automobile production and lower prices. Net in 1930 was $775,000, or $12.58 per class A share, against peak earnings of $1,407,000, or $21.97 per class A share, for 1929.

At the close of 1932 cash assets of about $1,400,000 compared with total current liabilities of $162,000.

Capitalization consists of 47,600 shares of no par $2.50 cumulative class A stock and 330,621 shares of no par class B, 99 per cent of which is owned by Eaton Manufacturing company. The class A is entitled to cumulative, preferred dividends of $2.50 a year and is convertible into class B on the basis of 1.05 B shares for 1 class A share. It is redeemable at $35 a share.

Dividends have been paid regularly on the class A. Divindends on the class B were resumed with the 20 cent a share payment on Feb. 15, 1934.

The A stock is medium grade.

Cincinnati Union Terminal.

Investors' Guide: I would like your opinion as to the standing of Cincinnati Union Terminal bonds as a conservative investment.—P. C. A.

Answer: These bonds answer the qualifications of a conservative investment. They are unconditionally guaranteed, both jointly and severally, by Baltimore and Ohio railroad, Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, Louisville and Nashville, Pennsylvania, Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific, and Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis.

CAPITAL EVENTS, OTHER BAD NEWS DEPRESS STOCKS

Senate Moves and Auto Strikes Are Factors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—Washington news hit the share market in several vulnerable places today and price declines of 1 to 3 points were spread over a fairly wide trading area. Issues which had been more or less vigorously bulled in the late runup were the chief selling targets.

Banking and alcohol stocks were borne down by the price fixing investigation at the national capital. The senate's move to pry into the receivership of the Interborough Rapid Transit company brought a "run" on New York traction issues. Disclosures of pool operations in the senate's market inquiry hurt several trading favorites, among them Libby-Owen-Ford Glass and Celanese, both of which have been named as pool vehicles. Strikes in the automobile plants at Toledo, O., and Racine, Wis., brought liquidation into the motor and motor accessory groups, which had been enjoying "constructive" patronage lately.

Utilities Also Get Jolt.

The utilities got another jolt from announcement that Newark, N. J., was seeking a $20,000,000 loan to be used in constructing a municipal plant. Finally, there was a number of unfavorable dividend actions, notably in Douglas Aircraft and Industrial Rayon, to add to the troubles of belabored issues and divisions here and there.

Selling operations were uppermost throughout the session, although the pressure tended to ease toward the close. The turnover ran to around 2,296,000 shares, as compared with about 1,900,000 on Wednesday.

Not all of the day's news was "bearish." Trade reviews spoke of broadening industrial recovery with the approach of spring, and advices from the steel industry centers indicated prospects of a further stepup after the lull brought on by the cold weather.

Oils Get Some Help.

In the oil group, Seaboard Oil was given a fling on news of the opening of a promising discovery in the Texas field. Better car loadings figures were in favor of the carrier group, but the item was ignored in the face of adverse political happenings militating against other groups and against the list in general.

Secretary Wallace's complaint of price fixing against the packers cost Armour and Wilson preferred issues 4 and 6½ points, respectively. Other issues of both companies were under fire, but the losses were less severe.

Airplane stocks fared a little better on the whole in spite of the Douglas dividend omission. United Aircraft moved against the trend for a net gain of more than a point and Aviation of Delaware emerged on the upside, while Curtiss Wright got by with a small fractional loss.

With the market slipping down through the bottom of its recent narrow trading range and encountering increased volume of offerings on the decline, the view was widely expressed that the list was headed for a test of its low of a fortnight ago.

RUBBER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Crude rubber futures closed steady, 15@18c higher. March, 10.61c; May, 10.85@87c; July, 11.18c; September, 11.42@44c. Smoked ribbed spot closed at 10.86c, nominal.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Cotton goods were quiet and firm today. Advances were announced on blankets and many lines of wash fabrics. Higher towel prices are expected. Shipments held back by the storm are being asked for by merchants. Acetate rayon yarns were reduced ranging from 5 cents to 22 cents per pound on different deniers. Rayon yarn sales are running ahead of production. Wool goods are slow. Silk prints sold in fair lots. Burlaps were slightly higher.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed barely steady, 3@4½c lower; sales, 2,650 bales. March, $1.43; May, $1.46; July, $1.48. Open market quotations (sixty day basis). Shanghai steam filature 78 per cent seriplane, 20-22s, $1.55. Canton double extra "A," 14-16s, $1.25. Japanese special crack double extra 81 per cent seriplane, 13-15s, $1.60. *Bid.

WHEAT CLOSES AT LOSS AFTER EARLY UPTURN

Corn Gains Support for Slight Net Rise.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets made only a moderate response to the strength in the Winnipeg and Liverpool wheat markets on Thursday when American exchanges were closed. An upturn of around ¾ cent in wheat here yesterday in the early trading on scattered buying was followed by a recession of more than 1 cent from the top and the close was at the bottom in sympathy with the break in stocks. Final sales showed net losses of ¼ to ⅝ cent, May at 88 to 88⅛ cents and July at 86⅜ to 86½ cents.

Corn and other grains also strengthened early and showed more resistance to pressure than wheat. Corn closed ⅜ to ½ cent higher, May at 50⅝ cents. Oats were unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, May at 35⅛ cents. Rye was ¼ to ⅝ cent higher at 59 to 59⅛ cents for May.

Government to Buy Seed Wheat.

Announcement that the surplus relief agency was to buy $5,000,000 worth of seed wheat for use in the drouth stricken areas in the northwest failed to have any effect on the market. There was no buying during the day which was attributed to this business, although it had been announced the purchases would start immediately.

Bearish sentiment has increased in the wheat trade and it is believed radical news will be necessary to bring about any material upturn in the market under existing conditions.

Winnipeg closed ⅝ cent higher, while Liverpool was up ¼ to ⅝ cent, with further liquidation in evidence in the March delivery. Export demand was decidedly slow.

Corn Has Support.

Strength in corn was regarded as due in part to buying of that grain against sales of wheat by spreaders and at no time did prices drop more than a fraction below the previous close. Trade, however, was light, with some buying credited to cash interests. Country offerings were light and little improvement shown in the shipping demand.

Fear of liberal imports of Polish rye apparently will not down and some traders are inclined to operate cautiously in this market. There is no disposition to sell short, however, in view of the close adjustment of apparent supplies to the prospective demand.

Chicago Grain Board Asks High Court End Co-op Suit

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Chicago Board of Trade filed in the Supreme court today a brief opposing a review asked by the federal government of a decision denying membership in its clearing corporation to the Farmers' National Grain corporation. The Board of Trade asserted the controversy had ended and there was nothing for the high court to decide. The board declared that on Jan. 18 the Farmers' National had been admitted to membership in the clearing corporation and had obtained all it claimed to be entitled to receive.

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES FIRM; POTATOES DECLINE

Butter and egg futures were steady to firm on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Butter closed unchanged to ¼c higher and eggs up ½@¾c. Potatoes finished unchanged to 6c lower.

Butter opened about steady. March dropped back but recovered later, while February lost an early gain. Statistical reports showed nearly 4,000,000 pounds more butter moved out of storage in the last three days than in the same period last year. Production was reported off 16 per cent from last week.

Eggs advanced despite somewhat less favorable news. Receipts were heavy and the storage figures showed 4,300 cases more in than last year. However, prospects of colder weather stimulated buying.

Sales—Butter, 64 cars; eggs, 45 cars; potatoes, 10 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car; eggs, 1 car. Prices:

HOGS ADVANCE DESPITE LACK OF U. S. BUYING

Prices Rally as Packers Purchase Freely.

Further gains were scored by hogs yesterday without the help of federal buying orders. Packing houses, which have not bought hogs for the Federal Surplus Relief corporation since Tuesday afternoon, turned their attention to purchasing supplies for the regular trade channels during the last two days.

Prices have moved slowly upward in face of rather drastic cuts in the wholesale price of fresh pork. Pork loins dropped to 12½ cents yesterday, showing a 3¼ cent per pound decline from the high spot about ten days ago.

The sudden exit of federal buyers early this week temporarily upset the market and was blamed for the break in prices on Wednesday. However, much of this loss has been recovered.

Hogs Advance 5 to 10 Cents.

Yesterday's top sales at $4.65 were within 5 cents of the high mark of the week on Tuesday, while the general average at $4.50 stood only 5 cents under last Tuesday, when $4.55 was the highest February mark in three years.

Good action featured yesterday's hog market, with prices mostly 5 to 10 cents above the average of the preceding session. Colder weather and the good action in best cattle and lambs in the last few days stimulated buying of hogs regardless of the unfavorable reports from the wholesale pork trade.

Underweights and pigs are the only classes of hogs which have actually suffered by the absence of government orders.

Lambs Rise, Steers Firm.

Lambs turned higher again yesterday on light receipts and cold weather. Eastern buyers were aggressive in the top grades of wooled stock up to $9.85, equaling the highest figures in the lamb trade since the summer of 1931. Large local packers were eager for numbers up to a top of $9.75, securing a big share of the best grades at this figure.

Best grades of steers maintained a firm position again yesterday, but the cheaper grades of steers and low grades of cows exceeded the requirements of the trade and these sagged. Hardly enough of the better grades were in the 2,000 cattle on the market to put prices to a test.

The best animals available were 1,151 pound steers, which sold at $6.60. Packers buying cows for the government found the supply of these liberal and prices weak to 15 cents lower. The contracts packers are working on for the government in the cattle market terminate next Friday.

GOOD TRADING PUSHES UP LARD FUTURES AND SPOTS

Lard trade was active and had a stronger undertone yesterday. Offerings were readily absorbed. Houses with eastern connections were good buyers and the market advanced in the face of weakness in cotton and stocks.

The close was 17½ to 22½ cents higher on futures. Cash lard closed at $6.55, loose was 5 cents higher at $6.05, and leaf unchanged at $6.25.

Liverpool lard was 6d to 1s higher on futures. Export clearances were 45,400 pounds of lard and 275,000 pounds of bacon. Bellies were unchanged for future delivery and cash lots were held at $8. The trade is expecting an announcement of government purchases of cured meats today. Prices:

MORE PACKERS DENY PRICE FIXING CHARGE AND PREPARE TO FIGHT

Further denial of charges made by Secretary Wallace that retail prices of meats had been fixed and sales apportioned by leading packers were issued yesterday as ten of the country's largest packers prepared to fight the accusations.

Philip L. Reed, vice president of Armour & Co., said his concern was certain there had been no violation of the law as charged.

"I am confident that the facts, when developed, will show conclusively that there is keen competition among packers and that the charges will not be justified," he asserted. "We are coöperating in every way with the Agricultural Adjustment administration and complying with provisions of the packers and stock yards act."

Mr. Reed's assertion was backed up by President T. Henry Foster of John Morrell & Co. He denied every allegation in the secretary's charges and said the firm was not nor never had been in combination with any packers in restraint of trade or for the purpose of fixing prices and apportioning sales.

"John Morrell & Co. is operating a business and always has done so in full compliance with all state and federal laws," he added.

Denials came from Swift & Co. and Wilson & Co. Thursday almost before Wallace had finished his charges. Concerns named were the Swift and Wilson companies, Armour, Morrell, the St. Louis Independent Packing company, Jacob Dold Packing company, Memphis Packing company, Abraham Bros. Packing company, and the Cudahy Packing company.

ORIGINALITY!

The Astonishing Revelation in Moler's Private Lesson Course in Beauty Culture cannot be conceived by reading this ad. You must see it or have it explained by letter or phone.

Mr. Moler originated the first Beauty Culture school ever established in 1896—now the private lesson course. It is almost inconceivable that a course so short, so superior and so distinctively advanced could be given so economically!

Moler's regular course at half rate for a limited time.

THIS IS NOT ALL.

Moler's are giving away $300 in scholarships in a novel advertising contest. Get details—no cost or obligation.
